Alternative courses to satisfy the History requirements

Some courses may satisfy the History requirement even though they are not listed as such, depending the content. These include courses at the Honors College, and in other departments. If a course covers some aspect of History, a student may request to include it as satisfying a degree requirement. The student should obtain a description and syllabus and submit both to the History undergraduate advisor for approval.

Justification for request:

Revisions to courses and and requirements following incorporation of Anthro Department faculty into the History Dept. Expanded disciplinary and research methods incorporated into new course selection and 3000 level requirement.
