Council Okays Club Grants

The Central Council has allocated funds totalling $1870.50 to subsidize the activities of various campus organizations this semester.

President Sam Bommarito emphasized that total allotments are less than half of the Council's $4000 budget for the year. More than $2000 remains for use next semester.

Allotments were made on the basis of the following criteria: the size of the allotment; service to the school by the organization; and service to the school by the activity. Other considerations were proof of unavailability of alternate funds; and in case of an event, evidence of planning. Finally, events conflicting with the Activities Planning Committee or other previously scheduled events have low priority.

The budget authorizations are subject to the approval of the Dean of Student Affairs David Ganz. Bommarito indicated that he anticipated no difficulty in obtaining Ganz's okay.

The Evening College Council received $381.50 for publicity, postage and operating expenses. Bommarito said this was a modest grant, considering the total fees paid by Evening School students and the accomplishments of the Evening College Council.

The Congress for Student Involvement received $200 for the "Four-Letter World", to run a University Center and to pay off the debt for their film series.

Angel Flight received $200 for uniforms at a cost of $50 per uniform.

There were other prominent grants of over $100 to the History Club, Student Inter-Faith Council, Steamers Club, and CIRUNA.

Other organizations receiving grants were the Marketing Club, the Young Democrats, the Spanish Club, the Philosophy Club and the Russian Club.

More budget requests -- such as Alpha Xi Delta's request of $500 for a Sadie Hawkins Dance -- are still under consideration by the Council's Executive Committee.

Organizations must sign vouchers and go through the other proper administrative channels for funds rather than receiving cash.

Canteen General Manager Don Schaefer stresses a point during the November 20 meeting with students. Seated to the speaker's right is Canteen Sales Manager Robert E. Reece. The officials told students that the rise in prices of the vending machine products was due to the rise in prices of food commodities. The meeting was arranged by Cindy Smyrniotis, chairman of the Central Council Committee on Food Service. Miss Smyrniotis said that a petition of grievances passed by the Central Council will be taken to a Canteen board meeting.

1970-71 Budget Proposal

University Seeks $103.5 Million

The University is seeking $103.5 million in state funds for the 1970-71 general operating budget, President John C. Weaver announced in Columbia November 20. The St. Louis campus would receive $8,165,726 in state funds, if the budget is approved.

Last year the General Assembly appropriated $80.7 million for the University.

The $103,490,388 in requested state funds, along with $43,135,108 in University funds from other sources, brings the University's recommended operating budget for 1970-71 to $146,625,496, an increase of 20 per cent over the current fiscal year.

In addition to the funds requested from the state, President Weaver said the St. Louis campus would have available $3,798,521 in University funds from other sources during the fiscal year, which begins

July 1, 1970. This would give UMSL a total general operating budget of $11,964,247 for the 1970-71 fiscal year, an increase of 33 per cent over the present year.

The figure does not include restricted funds earmarked for such activities as sponsored research and other sponsored programs, student unions, cafeterias, intercollegiate athletics and bookstores, none of which can be used for any purpose except that for which the money is provided.

President Weaver said the $11,964,247 proposed general operating budget for the St. Louis campus recommends the following expenditures by program: instruction and departmental research, $7,365,622; separately - budgeted research, $258,708; Extension service, $502,270; library, $786,960; student services, $765,495; physical plant, $1,235,439; general administration, $283,250; and general institutional expense, $766,503.

The University has requested $55,987,010 in state funds for the Columbia campus. Along with $24,753,613 in University funds from other sources, this would give the Columbia campus a total of $80,740,623, including funds for the Medical Center. This is an increase of 23 per cent over the present year.

For the Rolla campus, $11,036,823 has been requested. Along with $4,205,237 in University funds from other sources, the total budget for UMR would be $15,242,060 for the fiscal year, an increase of 21 per cent over the current year. $14,676,035 has been requested in state funds for the Kansas City campus. With $4,711,700 in funds from other sources, the UMKC campus would have a total of $20,387,735 for the fiscal year, an increase of 23 per cent over the present year.

Also, University-wide programs and services would receive $13,624,794 in state funds which, along with $4,666,037 in funds from other sources, would give a total of $18,290,831, a gain of 32 per cent over the present year. President Weaver noted that about $5,250,000 of the University-wide funds would be allocated to the various campuses as the fiscal year progressed.

The University announced earlier that it is requesting $50,766,000 in capital improvements funds from the state for the 1970-71 fiscal year. The request includes $5,000,000 for a Physics and Chemistry Building and $1,000,000 for a General Services and Warehouse Building for the St. Louis campus.

In addition, UMSL would receive a portion of $7,445,000 which has been requested for all four campuses to use for repairs, replacements and deferred maintenance; physical plant improvements and construction of support facilities; and acquisition of sites for campus development.

Oleski to Head Area Drive Seeking Lower Voting Age

John Oleski, president of the Students for Political Action, was selected recently to head a petition drive in the First, Second, and Third Congressional District. The drive is aimed at putting a resolution to lower the legal voting age in Missouri to 18.

The drive needs the signature of at least 35,000 registered voters including 21,000 from the St. Louis area, by July 4, 1970, to place the resolution on the November 3, 1970 ballot along with Senator Earl Blackwell's tax referendum bill. Oleski estimated that the cost of the campaign will exceed $100,000.

Representatives from several area universities and colleges, including UMSL, Washington University, Fontbonne, Maryville, Cardinal Glennon, Florissant Valley and Meramec attended a November 22 statewide convention in Jefferson City to make plans for the petition drive. UMSL delegates were Mike Shower and Gail Goldstein.

Missouri Attorney General John C. Danforth called the convention. Danforth told the delegates, "Victory in the issue stands or falls on your convincing the people that 18-year-olds do deserve the franchise. You must execute this task with class, as I know you will."

Oleski said a meeting for all interested students and organizations at UMSL will be held Sunday, December 7, at 1:00 p.m. in room 208 of the Administration Building. Plans for the next five months of the drive will be discussed at the meeting.

"I hope and encourage the Young Republicans and Young Democrats as well as other interested organizations to attend this meeting to initiate an UMSL backing for bipartisan success," Oleski said.

Chorus Concert Sunday

The University Chorus and Missouri Singers at UMSL will present their annual Christmas Choral Concert at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 7, in room 105 Benton Hall. Under the direction of Ronald Arnatt, UMSL associate professor of music, the performance is free and open to the public.

The afternoon's featured work will be J.S. Bach's Magnificat in D, with soloists Christina Blumfelder, Judith L. Boyd, Vicki Schmidt, Stephen W. Heist, and Merle Schmidt.

Other selections included in the program are some traditional carols and compositions by Peter Cornelius and Peter Warlock, featuring soloists Karen Wiers, Veronica Moore and Dennis Skerik.

The Missouri Singers will sing carols by twentieth century composers Vaughan Williams, John La Montaine and Ronald Arnatt. They will also perform five sections of the Ceremony of Carols by Benjamin Britten, accompanied by harpist Judith M. Harrison.

Soloists with the Missouri Singers will be Sarah E. Dain, Diane Diehl, Eugenia G. Fleisher, Sharon Holacher and Stephen Heist.

Gregory Courtney will be the piano accompanist for the program. All performers are students at UMSL.

Wiggins Discusses Liquor ID Law

by Nancy Lewis,
Current Staff Reporter

The State Liquor ID--for which persons reaching 21 years have to drive to Jefferson City and pay $1.50--is not required by law for the purchase of liquor. Instead, it was approved by the Missouri Legislature at the behest of tavern and restaurant lobbyists who wanted a standard ID card to reduce the possibility of the sale of liquor to minors.

Mr. Harry Wiggins, Supervisor of the Department of Liquor Control, told this reporter that nothing in the law requires any citizen to purchase the card as a means of identification. Nor does the law require dealers to accept only the official card as proper identification.

Wiggins said that the law only says that dealers may protect themselves by asking for the official card. He added that "nothing precludes them from accepting other forms of identification."

The law went into effect October 13, 1965. Wiggins said that much of the support for it came from tavern and restaurant operators who were in danger of losing their licenses due to serving minors in their establishments.

Wiggins also answered a number of other questions concerning the State Liquor department:

1) Why were the state ID offices closed throughout the state except Jefferson City, and are any plans being made to reopen them in the near future?

"The program was curtailed because funds appropriated by the General Assembly for operation of the Department of Liquor Control were reduced for this fiscal year. Naturally, it is impossible to operate any program without money. Faced with this dilemma I took the application centers except for our main office in Jefferson City," Wiggins said. "I have exhausted every possible way to make the program available once again in St. Louis as well as other parts of the state, and I am continuing to investigate every possibility."

2) What can students do to aid in getting the state to reopen offices in the St. Louis area?

"The legislators are aware of the problem and the inconveniences and confusion the present situation has caused. I cannot suggest any other action you could take except to request your support for the emergency appropriation which I will request.

3) What is being done with the $1.50 charge for the ID's?

"The total collected goes into the general revenue funds of the state. None of it goes to the Department of Liquor Control."

4) Why was the ID office brought back to Columbia for two days at the beginning of this school year and the same service not offered in the St. Louis area?

"Applications for ID cards were accepted in Columbia for a brief period at the beginning of this school year because Columbia is less than 30 miles from our Jefferson City office. We have agents in that area who handled the applications without any extra cost to the state.

"I am attempting to arrange at least a temporary reopening of the program in St. Louis and other areas. If I am successful, a public announcement as to times and locations will be made in that area."

5) Why isn't a driver's license acceptable as an ID for the purchase of liquor?

"During the last session of the General Assembly I testified at committee hearings in both branches of the legislature for a bill introduced by Representative Joe Rains of Sedalia, which would replace the present ID card system with a uniform state drivers license.

"This would have been a laminated driver's license, bearing a color picture of the holder. I felt this would make proper identification readily available to all citizens--non-drivers could have obtained a similar permit for identification purposes. This would be a much more widely acceptable type of identification.

"The present driver's license has no picture and is easily altered. The proposed bill passed the Missouri House of Representatives." This bill is currently tied up in the Senate due to Senator Earl Blackwell's tax reform bill.

Wiggins said that he was aware of the inconveniences caused by the present system and said he would "do anything possible within the law to alleviate the problems. Hopefully this will be done in the near future." He added that he was certain that the members of the General Assembly share the concern of the persons affected by the present system.

ROTC Hearings Next Week

The first in a series of hearings on the advisability of instituting an ROTC program at UMSL will be held Friday, Dec. 12 at the Noonday Forum, Room 100 Clark Hall.

The hearings are being conducted by a student-faculty committee set up to study ROTC.

Leonard Tinker, of the American Friends Service Committee, will speak against ROTC. When the Current went to press, an advocate of ROTC had yet to be chosen. Also, a spokesman for the University will be on hand to outline official priorities and positions.

In addition, a panel discussion with students and faculty has been tentatively scheduled for the Noonday Forum, Tuesday Jan. 6.

UMSL Gets $19,500 Grant For Joint Education Study

UMSL has received a $19,500 grant to support a cooperative venture with the Murphy-Blair District Education Board aimed at increasing resident participation in understanding of the educational decision-making process within the district.

The funds are part of $99,880 in University of Missouri grants received by the St. Louis campus to underwrite five "urban problem solving" projects. Dr. Frederick Brechler, UMSL assistant professor of education and Extension Division staff member, is supervising the Murphy-Blair program.

The Murphy-Blair grant calls for the assignment by UMSL to the district of a "parent participation specialist" to create and provide direction to the activities of parent groups and other resident organization.

The specialist, Miss Marilyn Lammert, is the recipient of a master's degree from the George Warren Brown School of Social Services at Washington University. She is a former employee of the Division of Community Services of the City of St. Louis.

Miss Lammert and her assistants have begun work with various "grass roots" organizations within the Murphy-Blair district on a series of direct action programs intended to: (1) help residents articulate their needs and questions about education in the area; (2) establish effective routes of dialogue between residents and school officials; (3) help discover ways for schools to respond and act on reasonable and feasible resident recommendations; and (4) help the more capable and interested residents develop leadership skills and to serve as liaison between the community and the schools.

The Murphy-Blair District is bounded on the south by Cass avenue, on the west by North Florissant avenue and Twentieth street, on the north by Salisbury street and on the east by the Mississippi River. The district education board was established early in 1969, and is officially recognized as an advisory group to the St. Louis Board of Education. The board is composed of 15 resident representatives elected from the district, and 10 members from St. Louis business, industry and education. Dr. William Griffith, UMSL assistant professor of education, is one of the ten.

Badaracco Here

Joseph L. Badaracco, president of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, will speak on "Politics in the City of St. Louis" at 11:45 a.m., Wednesday, December 10, in room 100 Clark Hall. There is no charge for admission and the public is invited.

Badaracco's appearance is being sponsored by the campus Young Republicans and by the UMSL Activities Planning Committee.

Debate To Pose Arguments Concerning Sex Education

The Student National Education Association will sponsor a debate on sex education Friday, December 5 in the Physics Annex Lounge from 11:30 to 1:30. Reverend Sterling Lacy will represent the view that sex education should not become part of the elementary school curriculum. Reverend Robert Simpson will present the case for sex education.

All students are invited to attend the session. A question and answer period will follow the initial presentations.

According to Kathleen Vielhaber, vice-president of SNEA, the debate is designed "to bring before classroom teachers and interested students the main issues of this highly controversial subject. Nationally, it has become a major issue involving organizations, parents, school systems and school personnel. Religious groups have become defenders of both points of view. Parents are badgered from both sides to give their support to both sides," she said.

"For the parents and parents to be a basic issue bordering on the encroachment of freedom is involved," Miss Vielhaber explained, "and this is the question 'Is sex education reserved only for the home?' For the teacher and the school, the issue is one of defending the rights of society and possibly the child."

Al Capp Chapter Here YAF to Present Conservative Influence

by Chris McKenzie,
Current Staff Reporter

Within the past two months a new political organization has formed on the UMSL campus. Recruiting much of its membership during the October and November moratoriums, the group is the Young Americans for Freedom.

Temporary chairman Lee A. Buchschacher said that the YAF chapter was founded primarily as a reaction to the October 15 Moratorium activities, in an expression of siding "with the President rather than the mobs in the streets." Also, he indicated that the group wanted to "bring out some conservative movement on campus" as an alternative to the Congress for Student Involvement, which was formed a year ago. A request was made by the group and permission obtained to set up an information table in Benton Hall during the October and November moratoriums.

Sponsored by Dr. James Gravitt of the Physics Department, the organization has grown to approximately 25 members and has completed all the paperwork necessary for permanent recognition by the Chancellor. Upon receiving this recognition, the chapter will be entitled to a representative on the Central Council.

Buchschacher's denied that YAF is totally reactionary. He admitted that at first the organization was a reaction to leftist movements, but in the last nine years YAF has become less concerned with reaction and more concerned with forming a type of conservatism and conservative outlook among its members.

A conservative, Buchschacher said, is no longer a person who stands for the status quo. His definition of the new conservative is a person who "holds to the concept of individual freedom and maximizing the individual's freedom while minimizing government control of that freedom" Also, he said, there is an economic aspect to modern conservatism. The modern conservative supports the economic concepts and theories of capitalism, but realizes that pure capitalism and "certain elements of it are undesirable." Thus, there is a necessity for a capitalism mixed with government control, Buchschacher said.

While there was once quite a bit of support in YAF for one Vietnam policy of complete military victory in Vietnam, there no longer exists such support. In fact, there is significant division within YAF ranks. Many members, including Buchschacher, feel that a military victory is "unrealistic" and support President Nixon's policy of "Vietnamizing" the war. This group's main objection to the Vietnam Moratoriums is that they strongly influence the United States' position at the Paris Peace Talks.

Many YAF members believe that the North Vietnamese negotiators think they will never have to come to terms nor concede anything. Simply by waiting long enough, and by playing on American dissent, the North Vietnamese hope to have everything come their way.

Many YAFers feel that support of President Nixon's policies will bring the North Vietnamese back down to earth while anti-war demonstrations merely strengthen their opposition.

The YAF chapter at UMSL is called the Al Capp chapter, because as Buchschacher explained it, Al Capp "symbolizes the American dream" Other suggestions for chapter names included Dwight D. Eisenhower, Everett McKinley Dirksen, Lewis and Clark, and Douglas McArthur.

Prior to the week of the October 15 Moratorium the YAF ran an ad in the Current advertising that if some students wished to take legal action against their teachers for calling classes on October 15, they could. The ad also gave instructions for getting in touch with persons to direct the legal action. Similar ads were placed in newspapers across the country.

YAF lawyers, all of them voluntary, ran into trouble in Hawaiian courts, however, and decided to drop similar cases in other parts of the country. There were rumors that a faculty member at UMSL would be taken to court by YAF lawyers, but the suit did not materialize.

The Al Capp chapter's plans for the immediate future are not yet completely formulated. However, the group does intend to participate in a Vietnam Seminar at St. Louis University December 13, sponsored by the Missouri Young Americans for Freedom. The seminar will be open to the public.

There are also plans for a YAF newsletter on campus. Buchschacher feels that the campus is in need of an opposition paper (to the Current). The paper would advocate more conservative policies and views.

Most of the chapter's plans, said Buchschacher, are organized on a local level. "The power is organized from the base up," he explained.

The chairmanship of the chapter will rotate each month among the seven administrative officers who were elected November 26. The officers are: Treasurer, Mary Sansevere; Secretary, Susan Whitworth; Information Coordinator, Albert Saunders; Action Coordinator, H. Andrew Marshall; Sergeant-at-Arms, Joel Tittenger; Board member, Robert Hart; and Central Council representative (when officially recognized), Joyce Disman.

Accounting Club

The Accounting Club will hold an open meeting December 10 in room 208 of the Administration Building at 12:30 p.m. Anyone interested is invited to attend. Mr. Ed Busch, from St. Louis County Hospital, will speak on the opportunities of accountants in hospital accounting.

The Budget. . Here We Go Again

Once again, the prospects for the University of Missouri's ever rising above mediocrity appear dim. The University 1970-71 budget request of $103.5 million is a fair amount to ask from a traditionally tight-fisted legislature. But we suspect that before it is all over, the University will end up with somewhat less than a "fair" amount of money to operate on.

Last year, the University asked for $97.1 million, but received only $80 million. Not only were operating expenses cut, but capital improvements funds for all four campuses were denied. The total amount lopped off the University's budget and capital improvements requests was around $53 million dollars.

The result was that incidental fees for students was raised $35 to help meet costs, as the University once more had to find ways of getting by. When an institution must spend its time trying to "just get by," it is hard to see how it can hope to strive for excellence.

Within a week after the University submitted its proposal for 1970-71, the Missouri Commission on Higher Education recommended to Governor Warren E. Hearnes a budget for the University some $18 million less than what it requested. With ammunition like this, the Legislature should have an easy time finding justification for cutting the budget even further, if past performances are any indication. And the University will be faced with the prospect of ending up with a budget slightly higher than last year's. Is this any way to establish excellence in the University of Missouri system?

Moreover Senator Earl Blackwell's petition drive to put the income tax increase to a state-wide vote clouds the picture. If the drive succeeds, then additional revenue could be delayed until after November, 1970.

The University of Missouri system, if it is to make any progress at all, must not have to face the same financial picture again. Learning to cope with a meagre budget may be good for learning discipline and thrift, but it hardly fosters excellence in the system.

Therefore, we urge all students to write their representatives to led opposition to Senator Blackwell's petition drive, as well as to support the University. Some of the students are voters and can have a direct influence in the tax issue. All students, however, are taxpayers, and being such, have the right to expect an above-average educational institution.

lose in a lottery, without any rational basis for their particular loss. To them, it is unfair.

No merit of any sort was involved in the drawing, no standard, other than chance was considered. We, like Ishmael studying the wool and way of Queenqueg's mat, may recognize that the future is determined by necessity, free will, and chance, but recognition does not equate with reconciliation, especially when the role of chance is so ridiculously important.

We do not contend that man is rational, nor do we argue that the selective service system preceeding the lottery was more rational. We do argue that it is psychologically important to at least make a pretense at rationality, which the lottery fails to do. It all seems absurd.

A Bipartisan Effort

If campus political groups wish to contribute their energies to a political cause, we can think of a no more worthwhile project than the drive to lower the voting age in Missouri to eighteen. The movement should be bipartisan if it is to succeed statewide, and the benefits of participation on a campus level should be obvious: a sense of purpose as well as unity (or at least familiarity) among the organizations could evolve. Another possible benefit would be increased memberships.

Initiated by Missouri Attorney General John C. Danforth, a Republican, the drive has an excellent chance, we feel, of being bipartisan in nature. This is the key to a successful petition drive, and campus groups should lend not only manpower but a wide range of support as well.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

If I may reply once more (and more briefly) to Bill Church, he strikes me as being in a dreadful hurry to inherit the earth. Admittedly, in view of what his elders are doing to the earth, he has good reason to be apprehensive. But in his rush to claim his inheritance before it is too late, he also runs the risk of not knowing what to do with it once he has it. This is why I urged him, for the present, to put more stress on being a student and less on governing the University.

In making this suggestion, I intended no invidious comparison between faculty and students. The point is that they do and must have different responsibilities, while respecting one another as moral equals. If we fall short of this ideal, then of course reform is needed. But the reforms should not be such that learning is sacrificed to governing - still less that thought is sacrificed to blind action. When one issues a call for action, as Mr. Church has, he needs to have thought critically about what actions to take. This is surely why being a student is so important, and why, in Mr. Church's words, students are the University's reason for being.

Sincerely,
James F. Doyle
Associate Profess of Philosophy

Dear Editor:

It would seem that there is a journalistic feud being fought between your Mr. Church and Professor Doyle concerning the make-up, philosophy and policies of the so-called University Senate. I know nothing of this august body, and I care even less. Perhaps the worthy gentlemen mentioned above find my attitude deplorable; I find theirs more than slightly irritating.

A university is nothing more than a source of information, either factual or theoretical. Its function is not to be "a critic of society" nor to become a testing ground for political action. If a student thinks he needs four years of intense study and expansive education in order to be let loose into the world, he's in the wrong type of institution. I therefore find the pronouncements on the above-mentioned Senate to be little more than annoying professions of self-importance. In short, a pox on both your houses!

Letters: Church's Column, Miss UMSL Contest, Tribute to ABC, Pass-Fail, Library

Dear Editor:

Many thanks to Bill Church for lightening our learning load with a little levity! Complete absence of cogent thought together with careful avoidance of dreary facts add fantasy and depth to his humor and style. May Bill go far - and when he does, I hope the Current will continue to provide its readers with a section on campus humor!

Dear Editor:

The Miss UMSL contest was advertised in the school newspaper as being open to any girl who wanted to apply for that position. It is a function that is sponsored by the Steamers Club to promote school spirit and also provide our school with a representative who is attractive, has a knowledge of the history of our campus, and is active in school affairs. We of the Steamers did our best to find a board of judges who would represent the entire campus to select five finalists from all entrants. These five finalists are to compete in campus wide election. This board consisted of:

- Marty Hendin - President, Steamers Club

- Margie Kranzberg - Student Court Justice
- Kerry Robinson - UMSL cross country team
- LaRoyce Stevens - 1968-69 Miss UMSL

We felt that the board represents a cross section of the University whose impracticality is beyond question.

We received fourteen applications from girls who wished to be considered for the title of Miss UMSL. Of these fourteen, eleven were members of Greek organizations (four girls who ran as independents were members of sororities) and two were not. This implies only that the Greek organizations took an active interest in this contest and urged their members to participate in it. Five of the girls who entered were in Angel Flight, a service sorority. Of these five, three of the girls belong to various social sororities. In addition to belonging to sororities and Angel Flight all of the girls who entered are members of various clubs and organizations on campus.

This is an explanation to the CSI, History Club, and ABC who were contesting this election. The CSI wished to run Miss Gail Goldstein who was sponsored by them and consequently eliminated in fair competition. Miss Goldstein is also a member of the History Club. The ABC, one of the other contesting groups, did not even bother to enter a candidate, and their representative, Miss Stevens did not attend when the board met. We feel that this is a very childish attempt by Miss Goldstein and her sponsoring organization to get their way no matter what, and therefore are not going to allow her write-on vote to be counted. This decision to not count write-ins was made by a unanimous vote of the Steamers Club at a meeting at which Miss Goldstein and her supporters were invited to state their case but did not attend.

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on the statement by ABC Director Michael W. Jones. Just as many black students in high school are never inclined to consider going to college, thinking that its only for people from the suburbs. But I also think it should be included that a majority of black students in high school believe that it is necessary for them to be A and B grade students to get into college. And I think it is a tribute to the members of the ABC who are trying to instill in black high school students a college-directed attitude.

Before I enrolled at UMSL, I never got a chance to get a first hand look at a big university. I believe it is the duty of all black college students to lead the attempt of getting more black students into college. So in the future I hope to lend any service in getting black students orientated here and I believe all other black students besides the ABC should do the same.

Dear Editor:

As of next semester, every faculty member will have access to the percentage of students on pass-fail in their class. This will enable each teacher to evaluate the performance of his class, which is all well and good. However, this resolution will also engender the following consequences:

- 1) Teachers may raise the standards of the grading scale, thus making a student achieve a higher grade to pass, than would normally be the case.
- 2) Teachers may use the fact that there is a high percentage of students on P-F to lower the standards of performance, thus encouraging not being prepared for lectures, not meeting the class or lecturing the topics of interest to him but not pertinent to the course.

3) If there is a high percentage on P-F, the teachers can easily extrapolate the identity of the students on P-F by noting absentees, those not discussing in lecture, those who perform poorly in the exams, projects, etc., and observing whether the student is in the College of Business, Education or Arts and Sciences. This obviously violates the anonymity of those students electing a course on P-F. Teachers should be able to evaluate the performance of their class. Why can't the percentage of students on P-F be revealed after final grades for the course?

Bob Ehrig

Dear Editor:

Many have asked why go to the moon when there is so much to be done here. The space program's goal is not sending men up to take pretty color pictures; the possible benefits are tremendous.

For instance, global weather data for analysis and advance warning to coastal areas, those on the sea and in the air. Better information on cosmic radiation, solar flares, magnetic fields, and the effects in the earth. Scientists will be able to observe physical conditions and events impossible to duplicate here. The moon itself is a giant laboratory for the study and understanding of the physical sciences. We may find new minerals, or vast quantities of known minerals to revolutionize our technology. There will be an increasing demand for highly specialized personnel in medical and environmental research, engineering, computers, etc.

These are some of the possible direct benefits, but there is an important indirect one; a change in men's attitudes toward each other. Our sphere of existence and thought has developed through history from the tribe and village to cities, empires, nations. It's time to break through the limits of race and culture; to think in global terms of the responsibility we have to each other.

Space exploration is a goal and a common interest that is shared by people across the world. Our energy should not be used to condemn this new way of gaining knowledge, but in trying to discover good ways of using the great potential that exists. It is the greatest opportunity we have.

Dear Editor:

In comment on Jerry Gaylord's letter concerning the noise in the UMSL library and the quiet in the Washington University library, I would only say that (1) Washington University students have dormitories (as a rule) to socialize in; (2) a different kind of student, who is probably a little more introverted than the average UMSL student, attends Washington University; (3) UMSL desperately needs a student activities building, I concede.

Dear Editor:

Who is kidding who? The review of Once Upon a Mattress was as lacking as the reviewer felt the play was lacking. Is it poor "critic" policy to "hand out" too many deserved reviews - be they favorable or not? The casual placement of the favorable comments at the end of the article was far too token to believe. I, too, viewed the play twice - Friday and Sunday - and noticed, specifically, two more performances which were more than adequate. As Sir Harry, Tom Geislinger, should have been paid more attention than passing him off because of poorly hit notes. Do you remember King Sextimus' foil - the Queen? Her lines were delivered well and the timing good - without her ability to play the part well the comic element of the King often would have been nonexistent. My point is that a review need not be complimentary to all the players, but valid criticism of a performance is more welcome than no criticism at all.

Name withheld by request

Editor's note: By accident, the byline for the review of "Once Upon A Mattress" was omitted. Our apologies to John Bratkowski, the reviewer.

A meal disguised as a sandwich.

This is McDonald's new Big Mac Sandwich. It's two patties of pure, lean beef. Cheddar-blend melty cheese. Crisp, fresh lettuce. Slices of tangy pickle. And drenched in McDonald's own special gourmet sauce. All on a club-style sesame seed bun. Now bring us a bigger than average appetite. We're ready. McDonald's is your kind of place.

'Paint Your Wagon' is Tasteless Movie Musical

by Mike Thacker,
Current Movie Critic

"Paint Your Wagon" is one of those movies you go to thinking you ought to like. It's a western and a musical and a comedy all rolled into one big color package and you should be able to enjoy it somehow. But try as you might, you can't do that with this movie. The screenwriters and songwriters and director and stars all seem to be working against you, and "Wagon" finally emerges the least enjoyable and perhaps most tasteless movie musical ever made.

Director Joshua Logan, whose dismal "Camelot" of last year was redeemed only by Vanessa Redgrave's glowing Guenevere, is given no home-free with "Wagon" stars Lee Marvin, Clint Eastwood, and Jean Seberg. Marvin relentlessly plays his "Cat Ballou" drunk all through the picture, and Eastwood is the same tight-lipped, scowling man-with-no-name of his Italian western fame. Seberg, though charmingly pretty, is no Redgrave in the acting department. Her main talents seem to lie in the area of fuming and sighing loudly and tugging at her dress to show anger or displeasure.

The story of "Wagon," as concocted by Paddy Chayefsky and Alan Jay Lerner is nothing short of incredible. Marvin is a drunken gold digger who buys Seberg from a Mormon who is willing to part for one of his wives in return for gold. With the only woman in No Name City, an all-male mining encampment, Marvin is understandably proud of and jealous for Seberg. But his relationship with Eastwood is almost as dear as his marriage.

Eastwood is his "Pardner" who Marvin has saved the life of in return for a pledge of friendship and companionship. The partnership is eventually extended even to Seberg, for while Marvin is out of town, Eastwood and Seberg fall in love.

Instead of breaking up the tight little triangle by killing or driving Eastwood off, Marvin resolves the dilemma by reasoning: "If two partners want to share the same wife, well... that don't seem one inch out of the ordinary to me." Seberg, who is by this time emerging a true-blue nymphomaniac, agrees to the arrangement willingly, as does the shy Clint Eastwood.

The second half of the film clarifies the sleeping arrangements worked out by the two husbands, and shows Marvin introducing a sheltered, religious lad to Life in the form of a whore with the classic line, "Gracie, I give you the boy, you give me back the man."

Eventually, of course, Marvin, along with the rest of the town, must pay for his sins. So by the end of the picture the town--and the movie--literally falls apart.

The only decent song "Wagon" offers is clumsily worked into the picture by having a haggard old miner stare wistfully down a muddy, rain-puddled street and sigh, "It's gonna be tough up here with the rain, and mud, and... wind!" Then the camera pans to Harve Presnell, who we haven't seen before, singing "They Call the Wind Maria."

Most of the songs never rise above the level of a lyric the women-starved miners robustly sing as Seberg and Marvin are being driven on a wagon shaped like a big wooden bed to the tent where they will spend their wedding night. The song goes: "Ben Rumson took a wife and went to Cal-i-for-neeeeeeee; he should have stayed home, drunk and horneeeeeee."

We like what Judith Crist said: "Paint Your Wagon" is family fare for the family that leers together."

"Race" Will Be Studied In Interdisciplinary Course

The History, Psychology and Sociology departments will team next semester to offer a three-hour interdisciplinary course entitled "Race." Listed as History 45, Psychology 45, and Sociology 45, the only prerequisite for the course is 12 hours of college credit. No special background in any of the social sciences is required.

One of the organizers said that the course is "part of a continuing effort to develop courses that bear a meaningful relation to the urban concerns to which UMSL has committed itself." He said that the instructors are hopeful that the course will attract students of diverse backgrounds.

The instructors will be Dr. Harry Bash of the Sociology Department, Dr. Richard Resh of the History Department and Dr. Milton Strauss of the Psychology Department. The professors plan to abandon the traditional lecture form and instead institute "triologs" in studying the issues of race, racial ideologies, and racism. Guest lecturers have also been invited. Readings will include Goffman's Stigma, Ashley Montagu's Race, Science, and Humanity, as well as contemporary professional and semi-popular literature.

In addition, students will be expected to participate in shaping the substance and direction of the course. Between "tri-ologs" will be class meetings during which the students will be required, through discussion, "to crystallize salient questions for further analysis," said Dr. Bash. "These meetings will also provide students with the opportunity to point out the instructors' points of disagreement, inconsistency, and theoretical gaps and/or blind spots in their analyses."

Dr. Bash hoped that, with active participation by both students and faculty, "a clearer understanding will emerge of 'racism' in its relationship to the individual and his social milieu as it has been shaped by the nation's history."

'Human Freedom' Seminar

A seminar on "Human Freedom in a Mass Society" will be offered to a limited number of freshmen during the winter semester, 1970. The seminar is designed to provide freshmen with an opportunity to explore critically, in a small-group, give-and-take atmosphere, a major current problem relevant to their lives.

The class will meet each Wednesday from 1:40 to 3:30 for discussion of selected readings and topics. Members of the seminar will also meet with one or the other instructor in individual tutorial. Three hours credit will be given for the course.

fessor of Philosophy, and Dr. Ruth Jones, Assistant Professor of Political Science, will direct the seminar. Anyone interested in the seminar is asked to complete a form available in the Philosophy Department office, Benton 437, or in the Political Science office, Benton 517.

Riverman of the Week

Although the UMSL Rivermen basketball team defeated William Jewell College 84-76 in their first game of the season, they played a sloppy game and shot poorly from the field (37%). An exception to this poor shooting was Glen "Doody" Rohn. Glen shot 75 per cent from the field and led the Rivermen with 21 points. He also had a game-high total of eleven rebounds. It was also "Doody's" three-point play with 4:25 left in the game that put the Rivermen ahead to stay. An easy choice for the coaching staff to select Glen "Doody" Rohn as "Riverman of the Week."

Hendin's Headlines

by Marty Hendin,
Current Sports Editor

Apathy at UMSL? Of course there is, in the vast majority of our 9500 students. But there are also 600-700 enthusiastic Greeks Newmanites, Current staffers, Angel Flighters, cheerleaders, and band members who showed up at Viking Hall on a Monday night and did a great job of cheering the Rivermen on to a come-from-behind victory over William Jewell. Some people might say that as Steamer's Club President, I am prejudiced and accordingly will praise the great spirit showed by the fans. Okay then, let some other people talk about UMSL spirit:

Head Coach Chuck Smith: "We don't have a home court advantage but we certainly have a home crowd advantage. When you're losing, there's a tendency to give up but the students and band were there to fire the team up."

Dean of Student Affairs David Ganz: "The spirit was fantastic. In the second half our fans were among the most spirited groups I've seen at any sporting event."

Guard Mark Bernsen: "The spirit was there when we needed it. Even when we were losing, they were still yelling."

Center Denny Whelan: "The spirit was the difference we needed to beat Jewell. The kids never gave up on us."

Center Chuck Henson: "I think the crowd did a great job. It really helps the team's momentum when you have the backing which we had in the game."

Cheerleader co-captain Pat Freeman: "The crowd was fantastic. I didn't expect that many people there on a week night."

Getting back to this reporter's opinion, I must say that after seeing games at Washington University and St. Louis University in the past few years, UMSL's spirit is the best in the area. Much credit for this spirit goes to the basketball team because it's much easier to cheer a winner. But praise must also go out to our great pep band led by Rick Sharp and Dr. Warren Bellis and to, in my opinion, what is the best cheerleading squad UMSL has had in my four years here. And when we add the booming voices of Riverman Neil Friedman and yell leaders Tom Cradick, Ed Farrell, and Farrel Sherman to the cheerleaders and band, we come up with an unbeatable combination of spiritmakers. Then too, there are the drums and noisemakers used by Newman and the fraternities and sororities and the great spirit shown by the Current staff in spelling out University of Missouri - St. Louis.

The thing that caused the great spirit Monday was the Rivermen's second half comeback. Head Coach Chuck Smith attributed the comeback to the fact that after much substituting, UMSL finally found a combination that was capable of doing a good job at both ends of the court. This combination, Chuck Henson at center, Doody Rohn and Greg Scott at forward, and Verle Sutton and Mark Bernsen at guard, played, in the last nine minutes of the game what Smith called "as good a defensive effort as any Rivermen team has had in my four years here."

While Smith was pleased with the job done by his aforementioned combination, ironically UMSL's smallest combination, he named Monday's starters - Henson, Rohn, Sutton, Denny Caldwell and Shedrick Bell - to start against Millikin Saturday night. "They played well in outside scrimmages," the coach said, "and they deserve another chance."

Speaking of Millikin, Smith said that they were fast, quick and good shooters much like SEMO, UMSL's Tuesday opponents and William Jewell, the Rivermen's first game victim. Smith said the team would have to make adjustments against each opponent but "we're looking forward to playing a big team like South Alabama."

If you'll pardon the pun, UMSL is "hurting" in the injury department. Assistant Coach Arnold Copeland, who serves as team trainer, gave the Current the following account of Rivermen injuries. Denny Whelan and Greg Scott both injured their ankles against William Jewell but they should be available Saturday. Whelan's knee came through the game in great shape. Joe Laukemper is currently getting over a knee infection that followed a floor burn suffered in pre-season competition. Bruce Ryan's knee is very tender; there's no ligament or tendon damage, but there seems to be a "floating object in the joint." Bob Pikula has ligament damage on the inside of his right leg and will be in a cast for one more week. If his knee is not healed correctly, he may need surgery at the end of the year. "Doctor" Copeland said that UMSL's current injury situation is more than would be considered normal. On the plus side, freshmen center Pat Green practiced Tuesday for the first time since dislocating his ankle in pre-season practice and should be available to play sometime in January.

Steamers Plan Trips To Cape, New Orleans

The Steamers' Club is sponsoring two bus trips to road basketball games during December.

Tuesday, December 9, the Steamers will accompany the Rivermen varsity and JV to Cape Girardeau for games with Southeast Missouri State. The bus will leave at 3:00 p.m. from the west drive by Benton Hall, and return there at approximately 1:00 a.m. Cost of the trip will be $3.25 per person, payable at the cashier's office anytime before noon on the 9th.

The Steamer's longest trip in their history will take place from December 18-23 and will include stops in New Orleans, Louisiana and Martin, Tennessee.

Thursday, December 18, the Steamers' bus will leave the west drive of Benton at 7:00 p.m., and fourteen hours later will arrive in New Orleans for the game December 19 against the Louisiana State University branch there. Following that game, the UMSLans will be on their own in New Orleans until Monday December 22 when they will leave for Martin, Tennessee and the game there against that city's University of Tennessee branch. The cost of the round trip will be $41.00 per person. This includes $25.00 for the bus and $16.00 for three nights at the Sheraton Delta Hotel near the French Quarter (four in a room $5.00 each per night, plus tax.) Students wishing to drive to New Orleans may stay with the Steamers at the hotel at the special rate if they can get four in a room. The $16.00 for the hotel or $41.00 for the whole trip must be paid by noon Friday December 12 at the cashier's office. All checks should be made payable to UMSL Steamers Club.

Future Steamers' bus trips will be to Chicago and Milwaukee February 6 and 7 for UWM game February 7 and to Kansas City for Rockhurst game February 14. Also included will be bus trips to all post-season playoffs.

For more information about any of the trips, contact Rich Kannappell at EV. 2-5899 or Marty Hendin at PA. 7-4034.

Bus trips are open to all students whether or not they are Steamers' members. The next Steamers' meeting will be Monday, December 8, at 7:00 p.m. in room 101 Life Science Building.

Cagers Start Slow But Finish Fast To Win Opener

Doody Rohn (with ball) and Verle Sutton try to get the UMSL offense moving against William Jewell defenders Nolan Smith (43), Dan Ehlenbeck (25) and Gary Holley (13). The action occurred in UMSL's 84-76 opening game victory over the Cardinals December 1.

Millikin, SEMO Next For Cagers

Saturday night the Rivermen will play host to Millikin University in an 8:00 game at Viking. The Big Blue from Decatur, Illinois have never lost to UMSL, winning 104-78 in 1966-67, 67-66 in 1967-68 and 94-90 last year. Those victories were accomplished with the help of All-American Jesse Price, Millikin's all-time leading scorer and rebounder who graduated last year and is now playing in the ABA. The Big Blue return four lettermen from last year's 16-9 team that won NAIA District 20 but lost in the first round of the national tourney.

Tuesday the UMSL varsity and JV will travel to Cape Girardeau to face their counterparts at Southeast Missouri State. The Rivermen defeated SEMO 73-68 last year in the only meeting between the two teams. The Indians have six lettermen back from last year's 7-15 team, including their leading scorer, guard Fred Anderson.

Before the game Saturday, a team of alumni will take on a team of faculty members in a championship game, starting at 6:00.

(1968) and Dave Willson (1968).

The faculty team, which defeated the members of the Current staff last year, is led by Big John Boswell, a man who really "psyches" the opposition. Other team members include Peter Wolfe, Associate Professor of English; Paul Czervinski from the personnel department; Jake Leventhal, Associate Professor of physics; Jerry Pulley, Assistant Professor of Education; Jim Staudt, English instructor; Fred Wilke, Assistant Professor of math; Herman Nebel of the Purchasing Department; Peter Harris, instructor of English; Arthur Littleton, Assistant Professor of Education; Miles Patterson, assistant Professor of Psychology; and coach Larry Bogue of the Personnel Department. The faculty team will have a rematch with the Current staff before the January 28 basketball game.

At half-time of the game Saturday which is Alumni Night, the Alumni Association will present their second annual award to an outstanding faculty member.

UMSL's 1969-70 basketball season actually began with 4:48 left in the game December 1 against William Jewell at Viking Hall. At that time, UMSL center Chuck Henson scored a three-point play to tie the game at 69-69. In the previous 9 1/2 minutes, after UMSL had led 51-50, Jewell had opened up a lead that reached as high as nine points with 9:40 left in the game.

Following Henson's three-pointer, the Rivermen began to play as they did last year, as they outscored the Cardinals 15-7 in the last 4 1/2 minutes of the game. After Jewell missed a shot, UMSL had a missed shot and two missed rebounds before "Doody" Rohn topped in a rebound and gained another three-point play. Greg Scott followed with a basket to raise the UMSL lead to 74-69. Following two free throws by Scott, and two baskets and two free throws by Scott, and two baskets and two free throws by Jewell, the gap was cut to 76-75, when Denny Whelan made a beautiful move toward the basket for a lay-up that raised the Rivermen lead to 78-75. Following a basket by Mark Bernsen, foul shots took over as the story of the game with UMSL hitting four and Jewell one to account for the final margin.

UMSL's Doody Rohn had the honor of scoring the first points of the new season as he played in the new gym at his alma mater, Normandy High School. The 6'1" sophomore grabbed the first of his eleven rebounds and scored with 35 seconds gone in the game, to give UMSL an early lead. Following Shedrick Bell's basket, the lead shifted back and forth through the rest of the first half with Jewell prevailing at halftime with a 45-42 advantage.

Rohn scored two baskets at the start of the second half to give UMSL the lead, but then Jewell took advantage of sloppy Rivermen ball handling and bad calls by the referees to open their lead.

Urged on by the fanatical crowd and helped by some bad calls against the Cardinals, UMSL began their comeback, and prevailed as the crowd went wild.

Both teams showed early season jitters as they committed a total of 38 turnovers, 21 by Jewell and 17 by UMSL. This was coupled by horrendous field goal shooting, 35% by the Cardinals and 37% by the Rivermen. Both teams took advantage of the 56 fouls called by the referees as Jewell shot 70% from the free throw line and UMSL 77%. Led by eleven rebounds by Doody Rohn and 10 by Denny Whelan, UMSL had a 50-33 rebounding edge over one of the few teams this year they can match in height.

Rohn led the point scoring parade for UMSL with 21, tying his career high, while guards Verle Sutton and Mark Bernsen each scored 12 to lead the Rivermen second half comeback. William Jewell's Dan Ehlenbeck was high for the game with a career high of 25 points. Lee Roark scored 22 and Nolan Smith 10.

Following is the UMSL box score:

Name	FG	FT	Reb.	Pts.
Utnage	0-2	1-3	0	1
Sutton	2-12	8-9	4	12
Laukemper	1-4	0-0	0	2
Bernsen	3-11	6-8	2	12
Rohn	9-12	3-5	11	21
Caldwell	3-12	3-4	2	9
Scott	3-12	2-2	5	8
Bell	2-4	1-1	2	5
