Poll Shows Faculty Favors Joint Student-Faculty Senate

by Matt Mattingly,
Current Staff Reporter

A majority of Faculty Senate members favor the conversion of the present Faculty Senate into a broadly representative University governing body including students with voting power, a recent Current poll revealed.

Two plans for changing University governance will be considered at the Thursday, February 12 meeting of the Faculty Senate. One plan would create a University Senate, while the other would seek to improve communications between students, faculty and administrators while maintaining the present separation between faculty and student government.

Of the 24 Faculty Senate members contacted by the Current, (about one-third of the membership), 13 expressed a preference for establishing a University Senate. Six others opposed the change, preferring to retain the present Faculty Senate and devise new means of improving communication between students and faculty. Five expressed no opinion.

Most of those favoring a University Senate agreed that such a body would provide a common meeting-place for the faculty and students. Dr. J. Neal Primm (History), declaring support for a "one-house legislature," explained, "I don't think the other plan is very realistic, because it doesn't bring all the people together."

Emery Turner, Dean of the School of Business, said a University Senate would be the better alternative since it would "bring under one umbrella all the diverse groups."

Several who declared support for a University Senate also expressed reservations or misgivings about such a venture.

Dr. Valerie Lagorio (English), said that she supported student representation, but she also said that she harbored doubts about the conscientious attendance of meetings by elected student representatives. She further questioned the effectiveness of maintaining a liaison between a Faculty Senate and a student government, characterizing the Central Council as "inefficient."

Dr. Joseph McKenna (Economics), supported a University Senate but remarked, "I don't think it really makes any difference—I don't think the decisions would be made any differently with students on the Senate than otherwise."

According to Dr. Donald Driemeier (Business), while there is "much to be gained by student-faculty contact in a University Senate," there still remain matters of primary interest either to faculty or students, but not to both groups.

Dr. Robert L. Allen (Economics) said that a 90-member Senate is "unwieldy. . . It should be a smaller body, with students making up about 25 percent."

A few who opposed a University Senate did so reluctantly, indicating that the plan had not been thought out sufficiently to make it a viable means of University governance.

Council Considers Three Governance Alternatives

On Sunday, February 15, Central Council will be considering three very different proposals: the question of student representation on the Faculty Senate, the proposed Central Council Bylaws; and the "Articles of Student Government."

The Faculty-Student Committee of the Faculty Senate has sent its report to the Central Council for deliberation. This report includes two plans, the first calling for student representation on the Faculty Senate. The ad hoc student faculty committee endorsed this plan.

Under plan one, students are assured of not less than 25% representation on the Faculty Senate. The report asserts that "Students must have a large enough representation to make them feel they have an effect. The current lack of interest of many students in student government is probably the result of their perception of a lack of potential influence."

The assumption underlying the plan's position is that student representation on the Faculty Senate will both increase and enhance effective participation in University affairs. Some of the new avenues of influence opened by student representation on the Faculty Senate will enable student to contribute to the formulation of rec-

Student-Faculty Equality in Budgeting Urged

At a meeting Wednesday, February 4, the Student Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate approved a plan for a Student Activities budgeting committee that would feature equal faculty and student representation. The proposal must be approved by the Faculty Senate before being submitted to Chancellor Glenn R. Driscoll.

The recommendation from the Faculty Senate will be one of two formal recommendations to be submitted to the Chancellor. A second proposal will come from an ad hoc committee of the Central Council. In addition, Driscoll has stated that he will accept recommendations from any other source on campus.

Under the plan approved by the Student Affairs Committee, the Student Affairs Committee itself would serve as the budgeting committee which would make recommendations to the Chancellor concerning the allocation of the Student Activities budget.

Hearings on budget requests from student organizations would be held by the student members of the Student Affairs Committee, who would be assisted by the Dean of Student Affairs. The recommendations of this subcommittee would have to be approved by the entire Student Affairs Committee before being submitted to the Chancellor.

Except for the composition of the budgeting committee, the Student Affairs Committee's proposal follows Dean of Student Affairs David Ganz's working paper on the subject, detailed in an earlier issue of the Current, which called for a separate budgetary recommendation for athletics being made directly to the Chancellor by the Athletic Committee of the Faculty Senate. Five dollars of the twenty dollar Student Activity Fee would be subject to the recommendation of the Student Affairs Committee.

In conjunction with this proposal, the Student Affairs Committee will recommend that its composition be changed from the present eight faculty members, four students and the Dean of Student Affairs to an equal number of faculty members and students plus the Dean of Student Affairs. This will require a change in the Faculty By-Laws and approval by the faculty and the Board of Curators.

The Student Affairs Committee had earlier approved a plan in which its entire membership would have participated in the budget hearings, with each of the four students receiving a full vote and each of the eight faculty members receiving one-half a vote.

Symington First Speaker in New Series

Congressman James Symington will inaugurate a new speakers' series with a speech Friday, February 13, in 105 Benton Hall at 11:45 a.m. There will be no charge for admission.

The speakers' program, sponsored by the UMSL Alliance for Peace in conjunction with the Student Activities Planning Committee, is called CENTURY III to bring attention to the fact that the 1970's will usher in the third century of the United States' existence.

Other speakers to appear in the series this semester will include Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas F. Eagleton, and Representatives William L. Clay, First District, Leonor K. Sullivan, Third District, and William L. Hungate, Ninth District.

In addition, the Alliance is extending invitations to the Governor, Mayor, County Supervisor, and other officials.

Topics for discussion in the series will concern not only the ending of the war in Vietnam, but also environmental pollution, jobs and housing, the cities, and foreign commitments.

Mike Shower, President of the Alliance for Peace, indicated that some of the programs would be sponsored in cooperation with other campus groups such as the Young Democrats and Young Republicans. He mentioned the possibility of co-sponsoring with the Young Republicans a speech by George Romeny, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development in late March.

Students seeking more information about the Alliance or the CENTURY III program may contact Shower, vice president Greg Eastman, or secretary-treasurer Gail Goldstein in the Student Activities Office, room 117, Administration Building.

Allen Disputes ACE on Ending Student Deferments

Glen Allen, Assistant Director of Admissions and Registrar at UMSL, challenged the beliefs of the American Council on Education that the ending of student deferments won't affect the flow of highly-educated manpower.

The ACE recently reversed its policy of supporting student 2-S deferments, adopting a resolution that no more draft deferments be granted to the nation's college students. The ACE had supported 2-S deferments since 1951 in the belief that there should be as many educated young people going through college and into civilian life as there were those participating in the military.

Allen said that "the whole country would be affected" if the 2-S deferment were dropped, and that the student would be hurt more than the university.

He also said that fewer students would try to obtain a higher education if they knew they were to be drafted, and that those drafted early in college might not come back after fulfilling their service requirements. Enrollment would probably decrease throughout universities in America, he said.

Pollution Meeting Monday, Feb. 16

Students concerned with the ecological and environmental problems will meet Monday, February 16 to plan UMSL's role in this spring's Nation-wide Environmental Teach-in. The organizational session will begin at 4:00 p.m. in room 101, Life Sciences.

The Nationwide Teach-in, an attempt to mobilize large-scale response to air and water pollution, the population explosion and other environmental dangers, will take a variety of forms in communities and on campuses across the country. In St. Louis the Coalition for the Environment is now organizing civic and professional groups and university and high school students in a concerted effort to stir public action on these issues. The activities at UMSL will be coordinated with this community effort.

Debbie Dey, campus organizer for the Teach-in, said that planning, publicity, and finance committees must be established at the February 16 meeting.

"An enormous amount of manpower will be needed to organize successfully April 22," she said. "We must establish a central hub of activity, we must find finances and mimeograph machines, and we must have ideas."

The Biology Society is sponsoring the campus Teach-in. All inquiries should be directed to a club member or to Miss Dey, HA 6-5397.

Allen stated that basically one university would not be affected greater than another. It would depend upon the percentage of male enrollment in each university. (UMSL's male enrollment now stands at 56%.) He went on to say that one reason ACE might be backing termination of the 2-S is that in every college there is a certain percentage of students who are enrolled chiefly for the 2-S deferment classification; ACE would be trying to do away with this condition to achieve the "equity" called for in President Nixon's random selection draft.

The resolution did recommend a transition period to be granted to those with a 2-S deferment, but no specific dates were mentioned.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird has announced the Nixon Administration's intent to gradually reduce student and occupational deferments in an effort to assure equity in the draft.

Conference on Library Problems

All students interested in organizing a reform drive to press for maintenance of a quiet study atmosphere on the third floor of the library are urged to attend a meeting on Feb. 18 at 12:30 p.m. in BH 409, Kathy Koch has announced.

Miss Koch, the organizer of this effort, said that she felt that repeated complaints to university officials regarding the noisy situation have resulted in nothing but "frustration". No one, she commented, seemed really interested in remedying the noise.

She warned that failure to establish a plan of action at this meeting would strongly eliminate any chance of seeking library improvement in the near future.

Sponsored by the All-Student Association at UMKC, the symposium is planned to "initiate dialogue in the underlying principles and policies in the mass media . . . to expand the scope of knowledge for intelligent evaluation."

All panel discussions and speeches will be held in Pierson Hall.

Keynoting the Symposium will be Rod Serling's "The Key of Imagination" at 8:00 p.m. Wednesday, February 25. Serling created, wrote and produced the Twilight Zone, which lasted five years on the CBS-Television network.

Media Topic of UMKC Symposium

Eighteen speakers will be featured in the second annual Robert F. Kennedy Symposium to be held at the University of Missouri-Kansas City February 25-28.

The topic of the symposium is "Mass Media in Society." Scheduled speakers include Pierre Salinger, Vance Packard, Hal Walker, Otto Preminger, Sander Vanocur, Jimmy Breslin, Henry Morgan, and Rod Serling.

Speech and panel topics for Thursday include "The Medium: Really the Message?"; "The Power and Responsibility of the Press," and "Mass Media: Government Control and Politics."

Friday's discussions will be "The Grey Flannel Mind," "Censorship: A Doilie for Your Mind," and "The Changing Role of Motion Pictures in American Society."

"Black History: Lost, Stolen or Strayed," "The Role of the Black Man in Mass Media," and "Through the Looking Glass: Wasteland or Wonderland" will close the Symposium Saturday, February 28.

Salinger, who will appear Thursday, February 26, was former press secretary to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. Mr. Salinger is the author of With Kennedy, which has sold over one million copies and has been published in twelve foreign languages.

Social critic Packard, the author of The Status Seekers, The Waste Makers, The Pyramid Climbers, The Naked Society, and The Sexual Wilderness, will appear Friday.

Mr. Vanocur, and NBC News correspondent since 1957, is host of the monthly two-hour TV magazine, First Tuesday. Vanocur has covered the 1960, 1964, and 1968 political conventions, as well as the 1968 Presidential primary campaign of Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Breslin, author of such best-sellers as The World of Jimmy Breslin, Can't Anybody Here Play This Game?, and Sunny Jim, will appear in a panel discussion Thursday.

Discussion on Black Needs at UMSL Friday

A symposium for black students is scheduled for Feb. 13 from 11:30 to 12:30 in CH 100. The purpose of the program will be the discussion of what the needs of black students are on campus.

Questionnaires containing certain suggestions, such as possible activities, will be distributed to those present. They will also query black views of issues of importance to the black student at UMSL.

One portion will deal with the recently formed tutoring program. The program was organized to help blacks stay in school here instead of leaving after a few years.

The symposium has been in the planning stages since a discussion last Dec. 22 on the future direction of black students here. However, organizers said that it should not be regarded as a direct sequel to that meeting.

A discussion of the needs and desires of the black man by a four-member panel will head the program.

Center Needs Volunteer Tutors

The Easton-Taylor Gateway Center, 4800 Natural Bridge Road, needs volunteers to tutor students in grades four through eight. Tutoring will be primarily in reading and math, Monday-Thursday from 3:00-5:00 p.m.

Interested students should contact John Mercadante or E.N. Messonen at 385-5990 from 5:00 - 9:00 p.m. or after at 652-9526.

New Budget System Urged

However, the student members of the committee, led by John Wolk, requested that the decision be reconsidered, objecting to the preponderance of faculty members on the committee and the unwieldy size of the body for the hearings. The chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, Dr. Alan Berndt, associate professor of chemistry, granted the request for reconsideration, and the present proposal, suggested by Dr. Jacob Leventhal, assistant professor of physics, was adopted.

Ganz was generally pleased with the recommendation. "My only reservation," he said, "is the second step required the change in the composition of the Student Affairs Committee."

He pointed out that, given the present composition of the Student Affairs Committee, the subcommittee of students would have to report to a committee with a heavy faculty majority. He expressed confidence, however, that the Faculty By-Laws would be amended to allow equal student representation on the committee.

The ad hoc committee of the Central Council formed to present its recommendation to the Chancellor has yet to meet.

Gail Goldstein, Central Council

Treasurer and member of the committee, informed the Current that she had received copies of Ganz's working paper and the Board of Curators' policy statement on the subject last week. Miss Goldstein said that because of her concern with budgetary matters as Central Council treasurer, "I am taking it upon myself to call a meeting of the committee late this week or early next week."

Pair Wins Eat-Off

UMSL students Paula Lumetta and Steve Dagger battered their opponents in the Shrove Tuesday Pancake Eating Contest held Feb. 10 at The International House of Pancakes on Florissant road at Highway 140.

Dagger a freshman, downed 74 dollar-size pancakes while Miss Lumetta, a sophomore, ate 64 to finish as the top team with 138. A Florissant Valley Community College opponent was the top individual with 77. However, his partner ate only 40 as they finished second to the UMSL two-some.

Steve and Paula, both Current staff members, are having their totals considered for the regional championship and may go on to the nationals.

ommendations to the Chancellor, who in turn represents the campus in the University of Missouri system.

The report states that plan one would transfer this body (the Faculty Senate) into a University Senate which would represent all or most of the community in a single legislative organization This plan, therefore, allows for participation of university groups as problems arise, so that decisions do not have to be reversed by otherwise separate legislative bodies because of inadequate information and faculty communication."

Plan two of the report, which would preserve the Faculty Senate and the Central Council as independent governing bodies, proposes numerous methods of increasing communication and coordination between these two bodies. Examples of such improvements include creating a "super-council" composed of elected members from both the Faculty Senate and the Central Council, adding more students to the Faculty Senate committees, holding joint meetings of the executive committees of the two bodies, publishing agendas of forthcoming Senate meetings, and exchanging the minutes of the two bodies.

Those who support plan two argue that certain matters concern primarily the faculty, such as tenure, and others concern primarily students, such as social planning. Any combined student-faculty government, in their view, will neglect these particular and important areas.

Also coming up for adoption are the Central Council Bylaws. These Bylaws deal with procedural functions of the Council. The committee system, with which the Central Council has been operating since the adoption of the new constitution last May, is formally incorporated in the Bylaws. The proposed Bylaws also provide for the replacement of elected representatives and establish the policy toward meeting attendance and the expulsion of members.

The "Articles of Student Government," a proposal for a student constitution to replace the newly adopted one, will be brought up for consideration at this meeting, its author Michael S. Shower said. The "Articles" cannot be voted on at this meeting, but according to Central Council Chairman, Stephen Heist, may be referred to the Rules Committee.

These three proposals, student representation on a University Senate, the Bylaws, and the articles of student government, offer three alternatives to the Central Council. Membership in the University Senate may afford students greater influence in University life. It would also eliminate, or at least devalue, the Council. The Bylaws, on the other hand, will maintain the status quo. And finally, the new "Articles of Student Government" will attempt to create an entirely new student government, involving the Council once again in difficulties of adopting and adapting a constitution.

Intervisitation Conflict Continues

The intervisitation controversy at the University's Columbia campus continued last weekend when several hundred university independents took part in an illegal intervisitation at six university dormitories last Friday night from 6-12 p.m.

Reports on the intervisitation should be reaching the Dean of Students office sometime this week, according to Dean of Students Jack Matthews.

"We will get the facts and then act upon the reports," he said. "For any violation there are established procedures set up by the Board of Curators." The Head Residents of the dormitories indicated that lists of students who participated in intervisitation will be sent to the University Housing office.

Head Residents were instructed to warn students they were violating rules and to get the names of those students.

"We were told to instruct men as they went upstairs that their actions were illegal. When they reached a floor, the personnel assistant again warned them and asked them to leave. If a man entered a room, the Head Resident and Personnel Assistant warned him a third time and asked him to leave. If he did not, we were to take his name," said Mrs. Anne M. Calvert, Head Resident of Jones Hall.

The dormitory intervisitation, sponsored by the Independent Residence Halls Association, was taken following illegal intervisitation by 20 fraternities January 10, all of which were subsequently suspended January 17 by University Chancellor John Schwada. The interfraternity Council January 10 disobeyed university housing regulations by allowing coeds in fraternity men's rooms.

Schwada took the suspension action after the Board of Curators failed to approve a motion to suspend the 20 fraternities at the regular monthly meeting January 16 at the Columbia campus.

Schwada said he took action against the fraternities contrary to the curators' decision because he had received new information concerning immoral conduct and drug usage in the Greek houses during the intervisitation.

When the fraternities were informed of their suspension by Schwada, they expressed shock at the action.

The fraternities had met with Jack Matthews within a few days after the January intervisitation, and according to several of the Greek house presidents, it was indicated then that the matter would be handled by an approved University student-faculty committee.

"I feel I've been lied to," Rand D. Kovitz, president of Zeta Beta Tau, said. "After talking to Dean Matthews, I expected this issue to go to an appropriate student-faculty committee. Then Schwada stepped in and did this. I feel we've all been lied to."

Richard H. Lackey, president of Farm House, said, "I think that his action was a little bit harder than it should be. Under normal circumstances we wouldn't have been reprimanded this harshly."

The 20 fraternities faced hearings before the student-faculty committee on Student Organizations, Government, and Activities February 3 and 4. That committee placed all 20 fraternities on disciplinary probation for the rest of the academic year.

At the time these closed hearings were being held, IRHA voted to endorse the illegal intervisitation held by the dormitory residents last weekend.

Sixty-two of the ninety dormitory houses approved the resolution to endorse the intervisitation. Only 45 of the houses needed to approve the resolution for its adoption.

In sessions explaining the intervisitation proposal before the vote was taken, Mike Conger, IRHA president, told dormitory residents the University could take three courses of action against those involved in the illegal intervisitation.

He said action could be taken against IRHA for endorsing the proposal, possibly even disbanding the organization; individual houses could be suspended; or action could be taken against the individual students taking part in the intervisitation. Thus far, no action whatever has been taken by the University.

Conger said it was his supposition that action against individual students would only be taken if the student stayed in the dormitory after midnight or if the door is closed while a member of the opposite sex is in the room.

Many of the students, however, feared that individual punishment would take precedence over house punishment.

Brian Faison, President of the Rollins Dormitory Group Council, said that at a council meeting it was emphasized that a "person could get hung."

Asked if he felt the illegal intervisitation would jeopardize possible reconsideration of intervisitation by the Curators at their February 13 meeting, Conger said he had learned "from a very good source" that the Curators were not even planning to consider the issue at that meeting.

Civil Service Exam Feb. 14

A special, on-campus Federal Service Entrance Examination will be conducted by the U.S. Civil Service Commission on Saturday, February 14, beginning at 9:00 a.m., in room 309, Benton Hall.

The two-hour qualifications examination is the principal means for hiring young college graduates in careers in 50 agencies throughout the nation. It is designed primarily for social science, humanities, and business majors.

Seniors and graduate students who wish to take the examination should pick up in the Placement Office a copy of the announcement package, which contains sample questions, or walk in to the test.

Philosophy Journal To Emphasize Novelty

The Intercollegiate Philosophical Review, to be published in May by UMSL's Philosophy Club, will serve as the Club's answer to the challenge of those who believe that philosophy has become nothing more than a collection of ancient abstractions limited to textbooks.

"Much philosophy has been written in dry, abstract, expository form, by professional philosophers — academicians," maintains Frank Hoffman, Philosophy Club Chairman. "In a broader sense, however, each man is a philosopher to the extent that he reflects about the human condition and records his thoughts, regardless of his mode of expression."

It was this type of reasoning that led to the Philosophy Club's formation of Zarathustra's Enema, a publication whose proceeds will be used to fund The Review. Named after the legendary Persian creator of morality and edited by Richard Nadler and Hoffman, Zarathustra's Enema will be on sale for twenty-five cents very shortly.

Both publications, as described by Hoffman, will communicate philosophical ideas characterized by novelty and fluidity through refreshing artistic styles in poetry, prose, and the short story. Illustrations will also be included. In short, each will be dynamic escape from analytical exposition, Hoffman said.

The Intercollegiate Philosophical Review, according to the Philosophy Club, will involve the creative efforts of students from several Missouri colleges. Contributions from UMSL students will be welcomed. Manuscripts may be composed in any form of expression, up to 3,000 words in length. They are to be typed on one side of the paper, double-spaced, and submitted to the Philosophy Club, in care of the Philosophy Department, by March 31. "If the anticipated response to The Review is obtained," says Hoffman, "this sort of journal may appear in succeeding years."

Natural Force View of Man False

For those who study "modern science", it is impossible, the late Carl Becker, an early 20th Century historian, suggested, "to regard man as the child of God for whom the earth was created as a temporary habitation. Rather we must regard him as little more than a chance deposit on the surface of the world, carelessly thrown up between two ice ages by the same forces that rust iron and ripen corn It has taken eight centuries to replace the con-and graphs are the prophets, it will be impossible for me to demonstrate the unequivocal validity of my statement, much as one can never hope to prove that mountain air is fresh or that the dawn is rosy-fingered. What I hope to accomplish, then, is to show that there is merit to my viewpoint without insisting on its absolute validity.

Let us consider for a moment, the thoughts of John Stuart Mill on liberty and individuality and compare them with some of the notions being nurtured by contemporary social engineers.

To safeguard individual liberty from the tyranny of the majority, Mill has proposed a single criterion for social control of the individual. "The sole end for which mankind are warranted, individually or collectively, in interfering with the liberty of action of any of its members, is self-protection," he says in his essay On Liberty.

Mill places great emphasis on the idea that freedom from government or social coercion is the freedom for the maximum development of individuality--freedom to be as different from all others as one's personal inclinations, talents, and tastes dispose one and enable one to be.

Today the approach to the social-engineering issue might well cause Mr. Mill to cringe in disbelief. Education theorist Theodore Brameld has held that "a revitalized 'group mind' functioning as both ends and means" is required today. Another social scientist feels that man should be amenable to "scientific" control and that although at the present this is merely a dream, the "ideal set-up is one wherein we can control every factor."

Liberal labor spokesman Walter Reuther has stated his belief that free individual decisions must be overridden by "a national planning agency", while former Senator Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania believes that the vast expansion of government is a positive good since, contrary to Jefferson, "government is not best that governs least." Similar statements have been expressed by liberal spokesmen too numerous to mention.

All too often in recent years,, the decline in the importance of the individual has been blamed on

Put Quality, Not Quantity, on Faculty Senate

Both student and faculty governing bodies at UMSL are presently considering proposals for revising University government. One proposal suggests a University Senate comprised of faculty and student representatives; the other argues for preservation of the current Faculty Senate and Central Council as distinct bodies with separate functions while creating a "super-council" to coordinate their efforts.

The first proposal is clearly superior to the second for at least two reasons. In terms of administrative effectiveness, the University Senate will reduce the duplication of effort, communication failures, and time loss inherent in a two-channel government. Its virtue is its simplicity. With the University Senate there will be less bureaucracy to entangle one and all in a web of overlapping jurisdictions and confused lines of authority.

The second advantage of the University Senate proposal is the qualitative promise of an integrated student-faculty government. Universities consist of students, teachers, and administrators, each dependent on the others; any separation of these groups fosters false independence and an alienation from the organic whole of the University community. That is, separation of these groups leads to the development of interest group politics in which faculty seeks to safeguard faculty privileges, students seek to increase student power, and administrators seek to preserve administrative autonomy. This interest fragmentation is artificial, for none of these groups is truly independent of the others. All their interests, the interests of every member of this academic community, are inseparably intertwined and represented in the interests of UMSL.

We are not suggesting any Rousseauian theory of a general will;

we are suggesting that students, faculty, and administrators can work together for the common good. We are also suggesting that the act of working together will prove instrumental in the creation of a University-oriented outlook on the part of all three groups.

For these reasons, those individuals who constantly prattle about significant representation for students in the Senate disturb us. Students are not gaining representation simply to advance the students' interest; they are gaining representation because their unique and quantitatively invaluable perspective on University affairs can play a significant role in the promotion of the University's interest. What is of primary importance, then, is not the election of statistically significant numbers of student log-rollers to a University Senate, but the participation of thoughtful, conscientious, and articulate students who will serve both their fellows and their university.

Whites Need New View of Black Separatism

There appears to be a misconception among some white students here that black separatism is a necessary evil.

Apparently these students, adhering to the commendable ideals of the defunct civil rights movement of the early 1960 that died when whites lost their crusading zeal for racial equality, are troubled that a separate racial identity is desired.

What they fail to realize is that only the black community can organize itself with any real hope for recognition of racial equality and social justice.

A defensive reaction to white bias has been the formation of black student groups, such as the Association of Black Collegians (ABC). These groups are seeking to establish their own identity in a white-dominated society that often purposely downgrades them. Once they have achieved any identity as a people can whites hope to remain unbothered by black protest over political, economic, and social discrimination.

Another cause of white concern is the point of view from which black studies are taught. White students should realize that the the separatist viewpoint is stressed is that they relate what has occurred in the view of an oppressed black. Blacks can be proud of their cultural achievements in spite of white discrimination.

Correctly or incorrectly, black students here believe that there was a deliberate attempt to exclude black students in the Miss UMSL... There is a hope among blacks that the two contests can be integrated back into one next year if the differences can be settled. Meanwhile, the Student Court is inquiring into the charges of racial prejudice.

How to Beat Mediocre Lectures

Last semester students on campus protested in the classrooms against boring irrelevant lectures and archaic testing procedures.

One class staged a walk out and met with the department chairman to demand a new professor for the course. Another group boycotted finals while some students stopped attending their language courses in protest over the language requirement. Concerned students began to realize that with our increased population of students and faculty we've reached a compromise level of mediocrity.

Our young, inspired faculty has had to sacrifice lecture preparation time and student bull sessions everything from an exploding technology to the holes in computer punch cards. The real reason we are slowly losing our identity is, not because our names have been lost in a binary code, but rather because our goals and aspirations and the means to obtain them are being decided by a collective national will.

to put the final touches on their doctorate theses or to finish unpublished works under pressure. Well-informed and interesting lecturers like Lorena Tinker got the administration's axe because they were late obtaining their doctorate theses while boring and pompous full professors sat back and collected $17,000 a year for putting their students to sleep.

Last semester UMSL students began to notice that our small personal university has become just another degree factory with glassy-eyed teaching assistants and sterile, body-packed halls.

Students all over the world are getting tired of shoddy education and are halting the process by subtle means. For instance, West Berlin university students coughed in unison during boring lectures. Student governments in America have started publishing "faculty evaluation booklets" to help the students avoid obvious disaster areas.

But what happens if you're already trapped and you're reading this at the same time the professor is endlessly droning on about nothing? Stand up and tell the man he's a bore and then see if that doesn't wake him up.

How about if you're suckered into another semester of a language taught by globotomized tape recorder? Well just stop going. What would happen if everyone just decides that he is not going to fulfill his language requirement? The only graduates here would be business or education majors. Useless University committees have been arguing about this for months and getting nowhere.

If you want something done about your courses, you have to do it yourself. Your greatest weapon is your attendance at a lecture. You just have to walk out during the lecture. You have an ultimate weapon. Use it and bring student government back into the classroom to show its power.

ception of existence as a divinely composed and purposeful drama by the conception of existence as a blindly running flux of integrating energy. . . ."

This devaluated view of man and his seeming lack of purpose seeks to equate humanity with a flow of natural forces which may be shaped and controlled for the good or the detriment of society, depending on who does the controlling and shaping.

The problem inherent in such a viewpoint is that, even if one were to grant that the controllers and shapers previously referred to had nothing but our good at heart and were somehow irrevocably committed to a course of action to insure that good, the ultimate extension of this view would deny that there can be any value or moral significance in individual actions. It must be admitted that this "natural force" view of humanity is not a precise reflection of the prevailing orthodoxy today, nor should it be.

I do feel, however, that it is not as far-removed from the realm of acceptance as I would care for it to be. There are substantial numbers of influential people in the fields of sociology, politics, and education who have attached themselves to a similar, albeit less ominous, view of the human social structure that may, in the end, turn out to be more devastating in its impact on individual freedom than the so-called authoritarianism of the right wing.

I rather reluctantly make this assertion, knowing full well that, in an age where statistical tables

Letters

Merry-go-round

Dear Editor:

I am a new student at UMSL and frankly, I am teed off over the run-around they give you here.

A friend of mine and myself visited the bookstore, only to find upon our leaving that someone had stolen her books. This has also happened to me. As if losing the book was bad enough, she also lost an important paper with it. We thought if we reported this, something might be done, but we were never more wrong! Instead of help, we were sent around in circles from one office to another, and received no help.

I happen to know that this is not the first time that this has happened. Many more have received the same run-around treatment we received. I think it would help things a great deal if they either put up more lockers or moved the bookshelves. If this doesn't work, then how about sparing someone to stand guard?

I believe that something should be done; and fast, because while we're being sent around in circles, we're also losing money that we can't afford to lose.

Jim Parker

No Witnesses

Dear Editor:

Within a twelve month period I have appeared six times before the Interstate Commerce Commission hearings in St. Louis to protest against the discontinuance of various passenger trains. These discontinuance cases are coming so fast and furious there can be no doubt that the railroad companies have an agreement among themselves that they will try to remove all passenger train service throughout the United States.

There usually are only a few public protestants at these hearings but I was appalled at the last hearing in which I testified when it developed that I was the only public witness.

It is essential to the welfare of our nation that we not only maintain existing passenger train service but also expand such service, especially in view of the obvious need for future rapid mass transit systems. Therefore, I am hereby appealing to individuals and organizations to become active during this year of 1970 and make appearances at hearings to protest against any future passenger train discontinuance.

I can find no one, except the railroad lawyers who try these cases, who seem to feel that railroad passenger trains should really be discontinued. Even some of these lawyers seem to be not too sold on their case.

Black Bigotry

Dear Editor:

I am casting aside my usual apathy for a few moments to voice my feelings on a subject that has bothered me for quite some time, a subject which, I feel, merits discussion.

There is the unmistakable odor of discrimination and bigotry on this campus. For all of its noble goals, it is no less insidious than it is in its less subtle forms. I refer to the presence of black separatists at the school, the prime example of which is the ABC.

The Association of Black Collegians is a group that, by the very definition of its name, reeks of separatism. I wonder what the reaction would be to an "Association of White Collegians" on campus! Would the bias be any more distinct? Would the stench be any less bearable?

Recently we had a Miss Black UMSL contest. This was a reaction to charges of bias in the regular Miss UMSL contest. (A weak attempt at best to gain a symbolic victory). However, would it now be appropriate to rename the regular contest Miss White UMSL? By such lines of reasoning, it would certainly seem logical.

Finally, I come to my sores subject--the existence on this campus of an Afro-American Literature course. This class was the product of a three year struggle by a certain instructor. But it was not a struggle to give black writers their rightful status among American writers--it was a struggle to separate black from white, thereby creating just one more rend in black and white relations and perpetuating the split between the races that already existed without her help. (This same instructor numbered (Uncle Tom's Cabin) among "great" black works!)

Let us re-examine some of the pettiness and small thinking that comes under the banner of civil rights. Bigotry is equally as oppressive painted black or white! It is ugly, no matter what it is called. It is an infection that must be allowed to heal for the sake of our school and our country.

Stage and Cinema

By Marla Marlow

Saturday, February 7 marked the third performance in a four-night run of Arthur Miller's play, "A View from the Bridge." The Webster College Conservatory Theatre production was directed by George Vafiadis.

Miller presents an interesting challenge to the actor in a psychological drama such as "A View from the Bridge"; that of maintaining dramatic equilibrium amid a gradual mounting of emotional intensity to a point (or points) of outburst. Balance and gradual development are the key ideas here.

The main characters are four: Eddy, a man torn between compulsion to abide by marital ethics and an illicit love for his niece; Kate, Eddy's niece, likewise torn between a niece's love and gratitude and love for the self-assertive Rodolpho; Marco, bound in gratitude to Eddy for his hospitality, and slowly angered by Eddy's hostility to his brother Rodolpho, finally outraged at Eddy's betrayal of the immigrant brothers; and Beatrice, torn from all sides by conflicting loves for her husband Eddy, her niece, and immigrant relatives, and the realization that her home life is undergoing a slow and painful destruction. For each of these characters, maintenance of that dramatic equilibrium is essential. Without it, the gradual build-up to fever pitch, wherein lies much of the power of the play, is destroyed.

But Miller wants it to explode.

Dan Guilvezan's performance as Eddy was fairly consistent. Estrangement from his wife and a refusal to admit to himself that he is in love with his niece create an inner tension in Eddy. An angry man, his anger is kindled further when he realizes Rodolpho exists as a threat to take Kate from him. When the threat is actualized and Kate and Rodolpho proceed to the church for their marriage ceremony, the Immigration Officers, alerted by Eddy, overtake the young immigrant and shatter the dreams of his beloved Kate and those of the relatives who hoped to make a better life for the beloved family left behind in Italy. Guilvezan, achieving a difficult balance of emotional expression, unleashed full emotional power at the climax.

Marco typifies the powerful, hard-working immigrant grateful for his relatives hospitality. Bob Jacobson's portrayal of the older immigrant mounted steadily in emotional intensity to enraged realization of his betrayal and the subsequent shattering of his only dream.

Peggy O'Brien did not destroy dramatic equilibrium by her periodic outbursts of emotion. From the start of her troubles, she is a bewildered girl who has just emerged from adolescence only to find the adult world no easier to live in than the former. In her fierce disillusionment with Eddy she reaches her climax of emotion and cannot top this despite the even more tragic situation of Eddy's suicide.

Beatrice as a character is overplayed from the start. All balance for that character is destroyed when she reaches a peak of emotion long before its intended climax.

Cheryl Weinstein's great Bronx mother-type accent cannot compensate for a performance rendered monotonous by ill use of dramatic expression. Miss Weinstein very nearly converted a role Miller intended to be a sympathetic, sensitive, semi-tragic woman into the nagging housewife of Excedrin Headache #109.

Alfieri, the relatively detached onlooker, was played by Alexander Iorio. Sympathetic to Eddy's plight and aware of his situation's potential tragedy, Iorio conveyed his own helplessness and the hopelessness of the entire affair.

The performance of Rodolpho is the least serious challenge to an actor's ability to maintain a dramatic equilibrium because Rodolpho is an easy-going, fairly even-tempered character. Gregg McCaslin displayed excellent sense of timing in line delivery in the play's comic scenes.

The overall display of dramatic balance and the allowance of feeling to be gradually intensified was interwoven throughout the performance to reflect what is this writer's interpretation of Miller's "View from the Bridge."

Debaters Win, Now 71-39

The UMSL debaters travelled to Southeast Missouri State College February 7 to take part in a four-cornered debate. UMSL defeated the host team, St. Louis University, and SIU-Carbondale in winning the meet with a 9-3 record.

UMSL debaters comprised the top three teams of the debate. First place went to the team of Mike Kruger and Bob Hausladen. The second place team was Jim Scott and Marlow Davis, and third place went to H.D. Felber and Mike Beatty. Kruger and Hausladen were the top debaters of the meet, bringing UMSL's award total to 15.

UMSL won 9 and lost 7 at the Mardi Gras Invitational tournament January 30-February 1 at Tulane University.

H.D. Felber and Michael Beatty defeated teams from Virginia Military Institute, Loyola of Chicago, Morehouse State College-Atlanta, LSU-Baton Rouge, and City College of New York. The Felber-Beatty duo lost to squads from Drake, East Carolina, and Gustavus Adolphus College, St. Peter, Minnesota.

The team of Mike Kruger and Bob Hausladen defeated Loyola of Chicago, Vanderbilt, Henry Ford College of Detroit, and Coe College of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. They lost to representatives of Houston, Georgia, Eastern Montana, and Kearney State Universities.

Rivermen debaters have won 71 matches while losing only 39 in 1969-70 competition. They will take part February 13-14 in the Gateway Tournament at St. Louis University and February 21 in invitational competition at DePauw University, Greencastle, Indiana.

Charity Drive

Members of the Angel Flight service organization here are taking part in the charity drive for Our Lady of Grace Child Care Center.

They are now collecting money through Saturday. The funds collected will be presented to Center representatives on the Variety Club Telethon Saturday evening on KPLR-TV, Channel 11.

Appearing on the day long telethon will be actress Maureen Arthur from the St. Louis area, local music makers Johnny Polzin and Russ David, and television stars Shari Lewis and David Canary, who plays Candy on the "Bonanza" series.

The child center cares for emotionally, mentally, and physically handicapped children of all ages.

UP Tryouts

The University Players will hold auditions for the upcoming production of Christopher Fry's drama, "The Lady's Not For Burning", on Feb. 21 and 22 at 12:30 p.m. in BH 105. There are roles for eight men and three women.

Rivermen Stopped by February "Road" Block...

by Marty Hendin
Associate Sports Editor

After romping through January with a 7-0 record, the Rivermen have found the going in February a little tougher with losses to DePaul and UWM in which UMSL has averaged only 69.5 points per game while giving up 90.5. This is in contrast to January when the Rivermen scored 96.8 points per game while holding their opponents to 75.2. For the season UMSL's record is now 10-7. The district's top scoring team saw their season points per game average drop below 90 to 89.8 while their defensive average rose to 84.7.

UWM

After a minute and a half of play against UWM in Milwaukee February 7, Chuck Henson's five points had given UMSL a 5-0 lead over the Panthers. UWM soon began a comeback that saw them leading 20-19 after Henson hit his 12th and 13th points with 9:34 left in the half.

Then the fun began. In the next 9 1/2 minutes the Rivermen continuously brought the ball upcourt only to turn it over to the Panthers or miss their shot. In that time period, UMSL managed only two baskets, one by Greg Scott with 4:55 left and one by Shedrick Bell with 1:00 left, while UWM took advantage of Missouri mistakes to score 27 points and take a commanding 47-23 halftime lead.

UMSL continued its poor play in the second half, allowing UWM to double the score at 52-26 and 74-37. Only eight points by Bob Pikula in the last two minutes allowed the Rivermen to lose only 94-65.

Balanced scoring was the most important factor for UWM while the lack of same hurt the Rivermen. Wisconsin forward Dexter Riesch celebrated his birthday with a game high 35 points including 11 of 12 free throws. Gary Luck scored 21 points, Henry Davis 20, and Cecil Morris 10 as the Panther starters scored 90 of their team's 94 points.

In contrast to this, the UMSL starting five managed only 38 of the Rivermen's 65 points, with Chuck Henson accounting for half of these with 19. The Rivermen guard duo of Mark Bernsen and Joe Laukemper scored only six points between them, all on free throws by Laukemper. Forwards Denny Caldwell and Doody Rohn, averaging a combined 33 points per game, scored only 13. Reserve guards Bob Pikula and Shedrick Bell scored 10 and 7 points respectively.

Statistically speaking, this was UMSL's poorest performance of the year. The Rivermen hit only 10 of 40 second half field goal

Tennis Meeting Fri.

Gene Williams, recently appointed tennis coach, has called for another intercollegiate tennis meeting, Friday, February 13 in the Blue Metal Office building, room 34. The meeting will start at 4:00 p.m. and should last about 45 minutes. Coach Williams has completed his schedule for the 1970 season and is in the process of completing his roster. Any undergraduate interested in playing tennis on an intercollegiate level should be present at this meeting.

attempts to finish with a .315 percentage, by far their lowest of the year. The only statistic in which the Rivermen scored high was turnovers and unfortunately no exact records were kept.

DePaul

After winning all seven of their games in January, the Rivermen began their tough February schedule the wrong way February 3 when they lost to major college foe DePaul University 87-74 at Chicago.

The game can be summed up in two words - Ken Warzynski. DePaul's 6-7, 235 pound center scored 20 points and grabbed 21 rebounds to lead all players in both categories and seemed to intimidate the Rivermen into not driving and missing easy shots. The Blue Demons tried many shots from outside knowing that Warzynski and 6-7 Paul Pomplun would be there to tip in rebounds. Largely through their efforts DePaul built up a 66-33 edge in rebounding as the Blue Demons continuously had two and three attempts at the basket while UMSL knew they would have only one shot in which to score.

UMSL stayed close to the Demons throughout the first part of the game and led 21-20 with 8:36 to go in the half. DePaul came back to lead 46-34 at halftime and 70-51 in the second half before the Rivermen narrowed the margin to 79-69 with 3:44 left in the game. At that point, however, UMSL missed a bonus free throw situation, a tip in attempt and a layup while DePaul came back to score two baskets. Instead of trailing by six points, UMSL fell behind by 14 and never threatened again.

Denny Caldwell played his usual steady game while leading the UMSLans with 20 points. Mark Bernsen scored 15 while doing a good job of quarterbacking the Rivermen, and Chuck Henson added 13 against Warzynski. DePaul had five players in double figures with Warzynski's 20 and Joe Meyer's 18 leading the way.

...After Breezing Through January

"Nobody beats us twice." That was the cry of Joe Laukemper in the happy UMSL locker room following the January 31 game. This seemed to be UMSL's slogan for the game as thinking back to their 101-92 defeat at the hands of LSU-NO in December, the Rivermen met the Privateers in the friendly confines of Viking Hall and more than made up for the defeat with a sparkling 117-90 victory. Besides getting revenge for the loss, the fired-up Rivermen became the first team to score 100 points against the Privateers as they ended LSU's eleven game winning streak while raising their own streak to seven, all in January.

The Rivermen took advantage of LSU mistakes to open a quick 6-0 lead and never trailed after that. Leading 34-30 with 5 1/2 minutes left in the half, UMSL reeled off 14 straight points to open a 48-30 lead before LSU came back to trail 50-38 at the half.

LSU cut the gap to 50-40 early in the second half, but in the next seven minutes UMSL outscored the Privateers 29-8 including 14 points in a row to open a 79-48 advantage.

Balanced scoring, strong rebounding and unselfish ball handling was the name of the game for UMSL. Denny Caldwell, almost at full strength after his ankle injury, hit 50% of his shots from the field in piling up 22 points. Mark Bernsen scored 16 points, Doody Rohn 15 while Joe Laukemper and Chuck Henson contributed 14 each as UMSL outshot the visitors .563-.454 from the field (UMSL's highest percentage of the year) and .794-.750 from the line. Rohn contributed 13 rebounds to UMSL's 45-29 edge off the boards, while Bernsen and the team set new assist highs with 9 and 29. LSU's Butch Webster set a new record for most points by an opponent with 39, however 24 of these came in the second half when the game was already decided.

After defeating UICC by 26 points in Chicago January 7, the Rivermen faced the Chikas January 28 at Viking and found the going a little tougher, although emerging

JV Take Four In 1970

Following six straight season-opening losses, UMSL's junior varsity basketball team has won four straight games as they pursue a winning season. UMSL has three games left, all on the road.

Tonight, the junior Rivermen will play at Boys Club. They end the year teaming with the varsity for games at Rockhurst February 14 and SIU-Edwardsville February 18.

Sanford-Brown

John Killenberg missed the beginning of the jayvee's game at Sanford Brown February 4 but he was there at the finish when it really counted.

With UMSL trailing 89-88 and one second left, the 6-1 freshman hit two free throws to give the junior Rivermen a 90-89 win. Mike Martin led UMSL scorers with 25 points. Dave Krieger scored 17, Pat Green 16, Bruce Bacott 10, Killenberg 9, Ray Steitz 7, and Marty Eresh 6 as UMSL played with only seven players.

College of Pharmacy

UMSL won their third straight JV-varsity doubleheader January 31 when the jayvees defeated St. Louis College of Pharmacy 111-69 before the varsity win over LSUNO. Mike Martin led the way for the Rivermen with 27 points. Pat Green scored 23, Dave Krieger, back after a broken nose, 15, Terry Keller 14 and Bruce Bacott 12.

Sanford-Brown

The junior Rivermen hit the century mark for the first time January 17 when they defeated Sanford Brown 103-68. The Rivermen trailed 4-0 as they did not score in the first three minutes of the game. In the next seven minutes, however, UMSL outscored Sanford 27-8 as they went on their way to a 43-27 halftime lead and a 35 point victory.

UMSL had six players scoring in double figures as everybody played and scored. Mike Dunlap led the way with 22 points. Mike Martin and Terry Keller scored 19 each, Don Wilhite added 12, Pat Green 11 and Ray Steitz 10.

McKendree

Playing up to their potential for the first time this season, the jayvees defeated the McKendree jayvees 86-73 at Viking Hall January 14 to gain their first victory of the season. Don Wilhite played an outstanding game at both ends of the court as he led all scorers and rebounders with 23 points and 16 bounds. The evenly balanced UMSL scoring attack included Pat Green with 16 points, Terry Keller's 14, plus thirteen from both Mike Dunlap and Mike Martin.

Spring Sports Meet

The baseball Rivermen will meet on Wednesday, February 25 in Room 208 of the Administration Building at 4:00 p.m. In addition to the returning lettermen, Coach Arnold Copeland has invited all students interested in trying out for the team for the first time.

Coach Larry Berres has called for the golf team to meet on February 24 at 4:00 p.m. in the blue metal office building at the rear of the campus. The meeting will be held in the building's conference room and is open to all interested members of the student body.

Playoff Spot At Stake In District Meeting

Members of the executive committee of District Sixteen, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, will meet Sunday February 22 to select representatives for the district basketball playoffs.

The four team playoff will be held Saturday, February 28 and Monday, March 2 at locations to be determined after team selections have been made.

Two games will be played Saturday, February 28 at the sites of the first and second ranked teams. The top-ranked team of the two winners will host the playoff championship the following Monday.

Pairings are expected to match the first and fourth seeded teams and the second and third seeded teams. The district committee will make the seedings.

Criterion to be used by the district committee in making the selection is, in order, won-lost records, success against other district teams and common opponents, national rating service (if available), and strength of schedule. Emphasis will be placed on the first two standards.

The champion of the Missouri

College Athletic Union and the top ranking non-conference team are assured of places in the playoff. The district's two best remaining teams, as determined by the committee, will round out the playoff field.

As of February 10, Drury leads the MCAU with a 9-0 league record and a 16-5 season mark. Missouri Southern, 19-5, the top independent has the best record among district teams.

Other teams under consideration for a playoff are MCAU member Culver-Stockton (13-6) and independents Rockhurst (15-7), Southwest Baptist (12-7) and UMSL (10-7). UMSL has played only two district teams, beating William Jewell and losing to Rockhurst.

Members of the district committee who will make the playoff selection are chairman Ed Nelson of Park College, Charley Burri of Missouri Western, and Don Pearson of Evangel. Jack McBride of Culver-Stockton, Rex Brown of Southwest Baptist and Bill Harding of Drury are also committee members, but they will not vote since their teams will be under consideration.

Rivermen at Rockhurst Saturday

After a Wednesday night encounter with SIU-Edwardsville, for which results were not available at deadline, the Rivermen will determine their District Sixteen playoff chances when they travel to Kansas City, Missouri Saturday to take on the Rockhurst College Hawks in an 8:00 game.

Due to Rockhurst's 95-88 win over UMSL at the Arena in December, the Rivermen know that they must beat the Hawks on their floor in order to have a chance to defend their district title. The Hawks currently have a record of 15-7 and have spent much of the year ranked among the NAIA's top ten teams in the country. Rockhurst is led by 6-7 center John Brownrigg who contributed 24 points to Rockhurst's December win and 6-4 all-district forward Carl Cook who scored 21.

Next Wednesday, the Rivermen will travel across the river to take on SIU-Edwardsville in an 8:00 game at Edwardsville High School. They will play a surprisingly tough (15-2) and tall Concordia team at the Seminary February 20 before ending their regular season against Eastern Illinois (7-11) Monday February 23 at 8:00 at Viking.

Before the Eastern game UMSL's seniors - Denny Caldwell, Chuck Henson, Joe Laukemper, and Denny Whelan - will be honored for their contributions to the Rivermen, and at halftime, Eastern's pom-pom group, the Pink Panthers, will entertain.

with an 80-63 victory.

With the Chikas leading 21-18, UMSL hit ten straight points to take a lead they never relinquished. With seven minutes left in the half, UICC began a series of offensive plays in which they could not penetrate the tough UMSL zone defense. As a result the game's tempo slowed considerably as the Chikas passed the ball around waiting for a good shot. Each team scored only six points in those last seven minutes and UMSL held a 34-29 halftime lead.

The Rivermen put the game away in the first seven minutes of the second half when they outscored the Chikas 25-10.

Denny Caldwell, UMSL's leading scorer did not play in the game due to a sprained ankle suffered in practice, but Doody Rohn and Chuck Henson took up the slack, scoring 24 and 19 points respectively. Joe Laukemper scored 16 points and Mark Bernsen 10.

Southwestern

Enroute to a 22-3 season in 1968-69, Southwestern College of Memphis defeated UMSL 98-75 in Memphis. The 23 point margin of defeat was the largest suffered by the Rivermen in their 19-7 season.

Rivermen of the Weeks

Greg Scott scored 40 points and pulled down 26 rebounds in UMSL's wins over UWM and McKendree extending the Rivermen winning streak to five ball games. His 17 rebounds against Southwestern January 17 evening was a Rivermen game-high for the season. The 6-1 jumping-jack junior forward from East St. Louis is averaging twelve points a game and has given the UMSL cagers a lift each time he enters a ball game. Although the Rivermen have been playing exceptional team ball, it was easy for the coaching staff to select Greg Scott, "Riverman of the Week."

Mark Bernsen was selected "Riverman of the Week" by the coaching staff for his performance against the University of Illinois-Chicago Circle and Louisiana State University-New Orleans, both Rivermen victories, extending the UMSL win streak to seven. In the UICC contest Mark played his usual steady floor game, scoring ten points, his current average. Against LSUNO, the 6-0 sophomore played outstanding defense, intercepting numerous passes and upsetting the Privateer's back line. Bernsen included in this fine performance, 16 points and nine assists, a 1969-70 Rivermen high. This is Bernsen's first selection as "RW".

Senior Chuck Henson has been selected "Riverman of the Week" by the UMSL coaching staff, while picking off 11 rebounds and playing a strong defensive game, the 6-4 converted center scored 19 points in a losing effort last Saturday (February 7) against the Panthers of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. Chuck is currently second in team scoring (14.1) and rebounding (7.5) and continues to be one of the steadier players on the Rivermen squad. This is Henson's second selection as RW.

McKendree

Greg Scott entered UMSL's January 14 game with McKendree with 9:54 remaining in the first half. He scored his first basket to tie the game with 7:52 left. He scored again with 5:13 left to tie the score, and then stole the ball and scored to give UMSL a lead they never relinquished. In the last 5:13 of the half the 6-1 junior from East St. Louis scored 10 points while the whole McKendree team could manage only 8. Due to Scott's efforts the Rivermen took a 39-36 lead into the locker room at halftime.

For the game, Scott played 24 minutes and scored a game high 28 points and grabbed 9 rebounds.

Scott was not the only UMSL hero as Chuck Henson contributed 12 points and 13 rebounds, and Joe Laukemper 11 points and 11 rebounds.
