In the course of their corporate activities and the individual activities of their members, many historical societies gradually gather together a body of historical material concerning the area of their interest. This is especially true for railroad historical societies. Often this material comes to the historical society from present and retired employees who possess a special bond to that railroad which leads them to seek the preservation of materials of historical research value which they've gathered over their years of employment, and which were threatened with destruction in the course of the company's normal business activities. In other cases, non-railroaders with an interest in a railroad's history assemble groups of materials by collecting through trading with others, purchases at shows and auctions, and by receiving groups of items, such as timetables, from railroad employees.

Such is the case with the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Historical Society and its members. Long recognized among rail history groups for the quality of its publications, GM&OHS members also over the years assembled a substantial archive of primary and secondary source materials concerning the GM&O and its predecessors. Many articles and photographs in the Society's fine magazine originated from this material. The deep interest of GM&OHS members in this colorful and historic Midwestern and Southern road and its predecessors such as Chicago & Alton, Alton Railroad, Mobile & Ohio, and Gulf, Mobile & Northern have thus resulted not only in creating a published record of historical information about the GM&O and its history, but in also assembling a manuscript and photographic collection of information which could be useful not only to GM&OHS members, but to other researchers who might have reason to be interested in the history of the GM&O, or in aspects of railroading generally which are reflected in its history.

Desiring to make the collection as accessible as possible to both GM&OHS member and non-member researchers alike, the Society's officers and board of directors donated the collection to the St. Louis Mercantile Library for placement in the collections of its John W. Barriger III National Railroad Library. There, in the context of the nation's largest and finest railroad historical library, the wealth of information about the GM&O and its history in the collection could serve researchers from across the nation, who would also be able to have access to a vast array of other railroad historical resources in the Barriger Library's holdings to further their research.

The St. Louis Mercantile Library sincerely and deeply thanks the past and present officers, board members and members of the GM&O Historical Society for their present and past support in making this collection accessible through the John W. Barriger III National Railroad Library. It is a valued portion of the Barriger Library's collections, filling a significant gap of material in its holdings on the GM&O and its predecessors, and also adding valuable primary source material on daily railroad operating practices in several departments which will prove to be of interest to researchers of several disciplines, and of railroads in general across the nation. In particular, we wish to thank Mr. Keith Sherman, president of the GM&OHS at the time of the donation of the collection who patiently worked out the arrangements for the placement of the collection at the Mercantile Library. Thanks also go to Mr. John Piccarelli, past president, who also participated in working out these arrangements. Mr. John Sanner of Decatur, Ill. assisted with legal matters regarding the donation of the collection. Mr. John Carpenter of Murphysboro, Ill., who held the collection for the Society in his home for a number of years, was gracious and helpful during planning visits before the time of the move to the Library, and on moving day itself.

Mr. Darren Doss, current president of the Society, and Mr. David Wagner, vice president and director of publications, have both offered tireless support, and have given great encouragement toward the completion of the detailed and time-consuming work of processing the collection and publishing this guide. Finally, special thanks go to the members of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Historical Society, whose efforts in painstakingly collecting this body of historical information over many years, and whose support for its placement at the St. Louis Mercantile Library, will serve railroad historical researchers in numerous areas for many years to come.

Scope and Content Notes

The Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Historical Society Collection holds 292 boxes or individual separately cataloged larger items, containing documents, photographs, framed prints and artwork, and some small artifacts, all reflecting many aspects of the history and daily operations of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad; its predecessors, such as Chicago & Alton, Alton Railroad, Mobile & Ohio, and Gulf, Mobile & Northern; its successors, such as Illinois Central Gulf and Chicago, Missouri & Western; and related companies, such as New Orleans Great Northern and Southern Railway, with which the GM&O and its predecessors shared operating facilities, purchases, or other business relationships. The records date generally from the late 1800s through the 1970s, with the strongest concentrations in the early 1900s, the 1940s and '50s, and the 1960s. The material is comprised of one large, unified collection which has a common origin from its gradual accumulation by members of the Society over many years of collecting, and three smaller subcollections having later origin by donation to the Society by three members in subsequent years. These three subcollections, each with their own provenance, were maintained separately by the Society, and have been so maintained by the Library. Virtually all of the material in all of the collections except for many photographs, photocopied documents in editorial and research files of the Society, and publications of other organizations or railroads, has its origin from various internal files of the GM&O and its predecessors and successor.

The collections holds extensive internal correspondence among railroad officials and between officials and outside suppliers and business contacts; internal reports and memoranda on many topics, primarily dealing with management, operational and mechanical matters; agreements and contracts for real estate, facilities, rail equipment, and intercorporate relations with other railroads and financial institutions, including mergers and consolidations; employee records, including labor agreements, seniority rosters, rule books, paymasters' record books, promotion examinations, and some individual employee files; employee and public time tables; operational documents for freight and passenger service, including train order record books and train dispatchers' records; records of passenger service operations; extensive files of correspondence, reports and memoranda on steam and diesel locomotives, freight and passenger cars, and other mechanical topics; extensive files of track maps, station and location plats, and plans for structures of all types; black-and-white and some color photographs; GM&O Railroad employee newsletters; publications of other railroads and rail trade or craft organizations; and research and editorial files from the GM&O Historical Society.

The collections are divided into 14 series, each of which contains material of common subject focus and/or provenance. The series are as follows:

Series 1 Executive Papers

Series 1, containing four boxes of material, is divided into two subseries. Subseries 1 – Mergers and Consolidations, holds correspondence, reports, memoranda and publications related to the merger or consolidation of various components of the GM&O. Subseries 2 – H.B. Voorhees Files, holds correspondence, memoranda, reports and other documents from

Mr. Voorhees' files, primarily from the 1930s and 1940s, when he served as Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio and its subsidiary and GM&O predecessor, Alton Railroad.

Series 2 Annual Reports

Series 2, containing three boxes of material, holds corporate annual reports to stockholders for the Chicago & Alton, Alton Railroad, and Gulf, Mobile & Ohio.

Series 3 Legal Papers

Series 3, containing seven boxes of material, is divided into two subseries. Subseries 1 – Agreements, Contracts, Leases and Other General Papers holds copies of such documents involving the GM&O and various predecessors. Most items are real estate leases or deeds, but there are also mortgages and contracts with other railroads for joint facilities, and documents related to litigation over private railroad passenger car operations. There are also some consolidation and merger documents in this series which were retained here to preserve the original order of the files. Subseries 2 – Court Records, holds court documents related to the GM&O's receivership in the 1930s.

Series 4 Personnel

Series 4, containing ten boxes of material, is divided into two subseries. Subseries 1 – Employee General Records, holds labor agreements, employee promotion examinations, seniority rosters, and paymasters' ledger books. Subseries 2 – Employee Records, Specific Names, holds personnel files for about 70 individual operating employees.

Series 5 Traffic and Transportation

Series 5, containing two boxes of material, holds documents and publications on planning for special trains and freight movements, directories of industries along the railroad's lines, documents related to ICC rate cases, and traffic density reports and studies.

Series 6 Operations

Series 6, containing 20 boxes of material, is divided into four subseries. Subseries 1 – General Operations holds employee time tables for the GM&O and predecessors and several other railroads; a sample group of rural station agent's reports; rule books and operational manuals and orders; sample groups of train orders, switching orders and waybills; train order record books; Office of Defense Transportation general orders from World War II; and accident reports. Subseries 2 – Freight Operations holds two boxes of various documents related to freight service, including delivery receipts and other agent reports, groups of waybills, a freight service schedule, and a group of train orders. Subseries 3 – Passenger Operations holds passenger car servicing yard daily operating reports, reports of dining car operations, correspondence regarding leased facilities and operations at passenger stations in Chicago and St. Louis and the joint Alton-CB&Q Ozark State Zephyr service between St. Louis and Kansas City, and tickets and passes. Subseries 4 – Bus Operations holds correspondence, memoranda and reports concerning the Alton Railroad's motor bus operations in the 1930s.

Series 7 Mechanical

Series 7, containing 28 boxes of material, reflects the broad scope of operations within the purview of the Mechanical Department of a railroad, and is divided into seven subseries.

Subseries 1 – Steam Locomotives - General holds specifications, correspondence, memoranda, reports and some order and contractual documents for the design, evaluation, testing, purchase, and sale of steam locomotives, principally on the Chicago & Alton.

Subseries 2 – Diesel Locomotives - General holds correspondence, reports, memoranda and publications concerning diesel locomotive design, testing, performance and operating characteristics, and maintenance and repair. Subseries 3 – Diagrams and Plans holds copies of drawings, diagrams and plans for locomotives and freight and passenger cars and their components, as well as for some shop equipment and other facilities. Subseries 4 –

Freight and Passenger Cars holds correspondence and reports concerning freight and passenger car construction, operation and repair. Subseries 5 - T.W. O'Connor Files holds documents from the files of the Mechanical and Stores departments and Ridgely Yard in Springfield, Ill. during Mr. O'Connor's supervisory tenure there. Subseries 6 – Files of the General Master Mechanic, Bloomington, Ill. holds extensive correspondence and reports originating from that office at the Alton/GM&O's principal "north end" shop facility during the tenures of Mr. C.W. Esch and Mr. H.R. Kinney in the position of General Master Mechanic. Included are reports and correspondence on motive power status, availability and problems, including on some of the Alton's earliest diesel units; high/wide load bulletins; and "bad order" and accident reports. Subseries 7 – 1935 Western Region Shop

Consolidation Surveys holds reports and detail site plans for several major locomotive shops in the Midwest, gathered as part of a survey related to consolidation of these facilities between railroads.

Series 8 Engineering and Maintenance of Way

Series 8, containing 135 boxes of material, is divided into six subseries. Subseries 1 – General Project Plans and Related Documents holds plans, drawings and related documents for structures and revisions of facilities across the GM&O system, but principally for the former Chicago & Alton. Subseries 2 – Maps, Plats and Deeds holds maps and property plats for locations on the former Chicago & Alton. Subseries 3 – Condensed Profile Track Charts holds such charts maps detailing the structure and operational characteristics of line segments of former Chicago & Alton trackage. Subseries 4 – Track Maps and Location Plans holds detailed track plans for many specific locations on the former Chicago & Alton. Subseries 5 – Valuation/Track Maps holds copies of detailed valuation maps of trackage and land property for former Chicago & Alton and Mobile &

Ohio "north end" lines. Subseries 6 – Rolled Charts, Plans, Plats and Maps holds numerous rolled maps, charts, plats, detailed track drawings and plans for structures and facilities across all parts of the lines of the GM&O and predecessors.

Series 9 Photographs

Series 9, containing 25 boxes of material, is divided into twelve subseries. Subseries 1 – Steam Locomotive and Train Photographs holds black-and-white photos of steam engines individually and with trains for GM&O and its predecessors, and some other railroads, where the photographic emphasis is on the locomotive or the lead locomotive is

and some color photographs of diesel locomotives for the GM&O, Alton, GM&N and other railroads, both individually, in multiple-locomotive "lashups" and settings, and with trains, where the photographic emphasis is on the locomotive or the lead locomotive is identifiable. Subseries 3 - Motor Cars and Self-Propelled Trainsets holds black-and-white photographs of the GM&N/GM&O Rebel trainset, and other gas-electric motor cars ("doodlebugs") and their unpowered trailing cars. Subseries 4 - Freight Service holds black-and-white and some color photographs of freight trains in which the lead locomotive is not identifiable, or the photographic emphasis is on the train overall. There are also images of freight handling and car loading and unloading activities. Subseries 5 - Passenger Service holds black-and-white and some color photographs of passenger trains, individual car exteriors and interiors, and related aspects of rail passenger travel, such as images of passengers waiting at stations. Subseries 6 - Employees holds black-and-white and some color photographs of railroad managerial, supervisory, operating, and maintenance-of-way employees at work in a variety of settings. There are also images of parades, celebrations and other gatherings of employees and their families. Subseries 7 - General Subjects holds black-and-white and color photographs of a wide variety of railroad-related subjects, including scenes of locomotive and freight and passenger car repair shops, with particular emphasis on the Bloomington, Ill. Shops. Subseries 8 - Stations and Locations holds black-and-white and color photographs of depots and urban and rural locations across the GM&O system. Subseries 9 - General Publicity Photographs holds black-and-white and color photographs used for general publicity purposes for various locations across the GM&O system. Subseries 10 - Photo Albums holds four albums of black-and-white photographs related to GM&O predecessors, Gulf, Mobile & Northern, and Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City. Subseries 11 - Motion Pictures and Videotapes holds motion pictures and videotapes of GM&O-related subjects. Subseries 12 - Negatives and Color Transparencies holds black-and-white negatives for some photographs in the collection, and a group of 35mm color slides.

Copy prints and slides are available for those images in Series 9 to which the Library has reproduction rights. Prints and transparencies to which the Library does not have rights may be viewed, and xerox copies made of prints for purposes of reference and selection. However, the patron is responsible for contacting the photographer to secure copies of the image, or securing permission for the Library to make copy prints or slides for the patron's use. Reproduction and usage rights have been granted by some photographers to the GM&O Historical Society for use in the organization's publications.

Series 10 Railroad Employee Magazines and Newsletters

Series 10 holds two boxes of employee publications, principally from the GM&O, but also the Baltimore & Ohio and the Illinois Central Gulf.

Series 11 Other Railroads and Organizations

Series 11 holds one box of correspondence, maps and publications originating from railroads or organizations not part of the GM&O system or its predecessors.

Series 12 GM&O Historical Society Files

Series 12 holds eight boxes of material gathered by editors and other members of the Society in the course of conducting research and preparing articles for the Society's publication, as well as some business records of the Society. It is divided into two subseries. Subseries 1 – General Subjects contains topical files of clippings, notes, typescripts and reprints of historical articles, photocopied documents and correspondence on a variety of subjects explored by the Society's publication editors and various members. Many of the documents in these files are copies gathered in the course of research, but some are original documents from elsewhere in the collection which were filed with these copies and notes in the course of research and publication activities before the collection came to the Library. At the request of the Society at the time of donation, these documents were allowed to remain in these subject files rather than being refiled in another location in the collection. Subseries 2 – Society Editorial and Business Files holds files of photocopies and some original documents, notes and correspondence gathered by the Society's editors in the course of publication activities. There are also files of membership correspondence, and the organizational and financial status of the Society.

Series 13 Oversized and Framed Materials and Artifacts

Series 13 holds 37 large flat and tubular boxes, a large bundle of oversized documents, as well as several framed prints, documents, a portrait and an original painting; and several large wall maps and plans. Subseries 1 – Operations holds large dispatcher's train sheets, oversized employee time tables, yard operations record books, conductor's registers, and large documents related to the Chicago & Alton's valuation filing with the ICC in 1919. Subseries 2 – Mechanical holds oversized diagrams, drawings and plans for freight and passenger cars and shop equipment, and a steam locomotive painting diagram. Subseries 3 – Engineering and Maintenance of Way holds additional oversized maps, track charts and condensed profiles, and valuation maps. Subseries 4 – Photographs holds one box of oversized photographs on various subjects. Subseries 5 – GM&O Historical Society Files holds two boxes of oversized scrapbooks, news clippings, and railroad logos and advertisements. Subseries 6 – Framed Materials holds three small framed documents and photos, a large framed portrait, and an original painting, depicted on the cover of this guide. Subseries 7 – Large Rolled, Unboxed Maps, Plans and Charts holds several large wall maps, and oversized charts and plans. Subseries 8 – Artifacts holds two boxes of unused original operational forms from the GM&O and predecessors for freight and passenger service.

Series 14 Additional Subcollections

Series 14 holds 10 boxes of material arranged in three smaller subcollections having later origin by donation to the Society by three members in later years after most of the rest of the collection had been accumulated. These three subcollections, each with their own provenance, were maintained separately by the Society, and have been so maintained by the Library. They are numbered herein as subseries of Series 14. Subseries 1 – The Norbert J. Shacklette Collection holds documents on C&A steam locomotives and their maintenance and operation. Subseries 2 – The M. Barkoviac Collection holds Chicago & Alton contracts, tariffs, invoices and correspondence, principally for various scattered dates from the 1870s to circa 1928. Subseries 3 – The Lee A. Hastman Collection holds detailed C&A passenger car specifications, plans and related documents.

Introduction to the Collection

The GM&O Historical Society Collection is one of several manuscript collections of the John W. Barriger III National Railroad Library, a special collection of the St. Louis Mercantile Library Association. The collection is housed on shelving in closed stacks on the mezzanine level of the Barriger Library room at the Mercantile Library's building at 510 Locust Street in downtown St. Louis. The Library and the GM&O Historical Society Collection are open to the public during the Library's regular hours. Use of the collection by the public and GM&O Historical Society members working on Society research and publication projects is encouraged. Membership in the Mercantile Library or the GM&O Historical Society is not required to use the collection.

Researchers planning to use the collection should use this finding aid, or a computer-searchable database at the Library, to locate items in which they are interested. These can then be requested for retrieval by the Library's staff and use by the researcher at the Library. Appointments for research at the Library are requested, but not required. Materials in the collection do not circulate outside the Library.

Requests may be made in person at the Library, or by telephone, mail, e-mail or fax through the Mercantile Library's MercSource (tm) research service. For an hourly fee plus photocopy, photographic reproduction, and transmittal costs, the Library's staff will conduct the research for you, and send you photocopies or other materials to fulfill your inquiry. MercSource fees may be billed to MasterCard or VISA, and checks are accepted for payment in advance when a credit card is not used. Established customers may be invoiced. Researchers may set any maximum amount for a MercSource inquiry; the Library's staff will work only up to that limit, and bill only for time and services actually performed, refunding any difference on a pre-payment. Please contact the Library for additional information on MercSource services.

Materials in this guide are listed by box and folder number. The numbering scheme is as follows:

Box numbers (e.g., B5-96)	B5- 96	Collection number Box number in the collection
Folder numbers (e.g., B5-4-1-1)	B5 -4 -1 -1	Collection number Series in the collection Subseries in the collection Folder number (sequential) in the series or subseries

In addition to the resources of this collection, the Barriger Railroad Library, one of the nation's largest and finest railroad subject collections, has some 40,000 books on railroad subjects and other large manuscript collections, such as the John W. Barriger III Papers, the Isabel Benham Papers, the Archives of The Milwaukee Road, and the ACF Industries Archival Collection to provide in-depth resources for railroad historical research about the GM&O and other railroads as well. These include extensive corporate annual reports for GM&O and predecessors from their inceptions. Other materials regarding the GM&O from its corporate archives are housed at the McCain Library and Archives at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. The Illinois Historical Society Library in Springfield also holds original documentation on GM&O predecessor Chicago & Alton, and the papers of Benjamin Godfrey, an early contractor for predecessor Alton & Sangamon. The Chicago Historical Society and the Transportation Library at Northwestern University also hold bodies of documentation from GM&O and its predecessors.

A Brief History of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad

The Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad from the years after 1947 represented the final stage in the long evolution of a group of Southern and Midwestern railroads into a unified system. Its principal components were, from north to south: the Chicago & Alton (later Alton Railroad), between Chicago and St. Louis; the Mobile & Ohio, from St. Louis to Mobile via Cairo and Meridian; and the Gulf, Mobile & Northern, from Jackson, Tenn. to Mobile .

Chicago & Alton traces its origins from the organization of the Alton & Sangamon in 1847 intended to connect Alton with Springfield, which was reached in 1853. The railroad was extended first to Bloomington, then Joliet, as the Chicago & Mississippi in 1854. Renamed the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis, then the St. Louis, Alton & Chicago, entry into Chicago was gained by the latter company through a lease of Joliet & Chicago in 1858. Overcapitalization led to the road's collapse, but after a short period of receivership, the company was reorganized in 1861 as the Chicago & Alton Railroad with Timothy B. Blackstone as president. Under his leadership, the railroad enjoyed its most prosperous and expansive period. East St. Louis was reached in 1864 through a lease of the Alton & St. Louis Railroad; and Kansas City through leases of the St. Louis, Jacksonville & Chicago, Louisiana & Missouri River, and Kansas City, St. Louis & Chicago Railroads between 1864 and 1878. In 1899, the C&A came under control of legendary railroad investor Edward Harriman before control was transferred to Harriman's Union Pacific and Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific railroads. During the Harriman period, short branches were added through the acquisition of short lines, all within Illinois. Control passed briefly to the Toledo, St. Louis & Western (Clover Leaf Route), then in 1922, after a number of lean years due to significant shifts of its traffic base, intense passenger traffic competition between St. Louis and Chicago with several other roads, and generally high operating costs, the C&A fell into receivership. The Baltimore & Ohio purchased the road at foreclosure in 1929, creating a subsidiary, the Alton Railroad, in 1931. Unable to make it pay, the B&O relinquished control in 1943 with the railroad placed under court supervision until 1947, when it was purchased by the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, ending 100 years of operations.

The Mobile & Ohio was intended by its founders to connect the port of Mobile, Ala. with the great rivers of the upper Midwest: the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio. To reach its goal of a point near the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio at Cairo, Ill., the M&O built northward from Mobile beginning in 1852, reaching Columbus, Ky. on the east bank of the Mississippi south of Cairo in early 1861. There the M&O was to connect with the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern (later part of the Missouri Pacific system) via ferry. But the devastation of the Civil War, and the failure of the Iron Mountain to reach the ferry crossing opposite Columbus at Belmont, Mo. until 1871 forced the M&O into bankruptcy. The Iron Mountain's traffic instead would substantially flow southwestward into Arkansas via new connections to the Cairo & Fulton (also to be part of the Missouri Pacific system), and the importance of the Columbus gateway to the Gulf via the M&O declined. In 1886, the M&O took its fate into its own hands to gain a vital St. Louis entry by purchasing the narrow-gauge St. Louis & Cairo between those cities and widening its track gauge to standard. The StL&C was itself the product of a failed grand narrow-gauge railroad scheme from the Midwest to the Southwest, but its inclusion in the M&O made the M&O stronger through its East St. Louis connections. Still, M&O operated under the financial influence of the vast Southern Railway system, and purchased material jointly with the Southern. Merger never occurred, however, and a weak M&O entered receivership in the Depression in 1932. Finally, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio, organized in 1938 to acquire the M&O and GM&N, purchased the M&O in 1940.

Gulf, Mobile & Northern was chartered in 1890 as the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City, reaching from Mobile to Hattiesburg, Miss. in 1902. After a brief receivership, it became the New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago in 1906. The NOM&C became the Gulf, Mobile & Northern through a 1917 reorganization, led by Isaac B. Tigrett, a Jackson, Tenn. banker who for many years after would influence the course of the GM&N's and GM&O's affairs. After acquiring control of the New Orleans Great Northern between Jackson, Miss. and New Orleans, GM&N under Tigrett's leadership became a colorful, lean operator and, for its Southern service territory, a modest innovator. It introduced the South's first lightweight, streamlined, diesel-powered passenger train, the Rebel, and developed an extensive bus and truck service network through its Gulf Transport subsidiary. GM&N continued to try to make its way alone, but its indirect traffic connections always proved problematical. Like M&O before it, GM&N needed a solid northern traffic connection such as at the St. Louis gateway. It finally obtained one by merger with the M&O under the aegis of the GM&O in 1940.

The consolidated Gulf, Mobile & Ohio developed a solid service network between St. Louis and the Gulf of Mexico at Mobile through the combination in 1940 of the M&O and GM&N. But the growth of the road ever northward was not yet complete. Between St. Louis and Chicago was one final link: the Alton Railroad. Under B&O control since 1929, Alton was made independent by B&O in 1943. GM&O soon investigated acquiring the Alton, and finally did so on May 31, 1947, finally becoming the Gulf-to-Great Lakes railroad which its founders had perhaps envisioned as they began sending rails northward from Mobile Bay almost a century earlier.

The final chapter in the GM&O's history occurred when it merged in August, 1972 with its long-time competitor and strong predecessor between the Great Lakes and the Gulf, the Illinois Central Railroad, to form the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad.

SERIES 7 MECHANICAL

Subseries 6

Files of the General Master Mechanic, Bloomington, Ill.

This subseries holds extensive correspondence, memoranda and reports originating from this office at the Alton's and GM&O's principal "north end" shop facility during the tenures of Mr. C.W. Esch and Mr. H.R. Kinney in the position of General Master Mechanic. Included are reports and correspondence on motive power status, availability and problems, including on some of the Alton's earliest diesel units, high/wide load bulletins, and "bad order" and accident reports.

Negatives and color transparencies

This subseries holds black-and-white negatives for some photographs in the collection, and a group of 35mm color slides.

BOX TITLE AND DESCRIPTION OF CONTENTS

- B5-230 One box of primarily black-and-white negatives in various formats from 4x5 in. to 35mm. Some items appear to be related to prints filed elsewhere in this series, but there are few content notes, descriptions or captions to make associations. These negatives will be further analyzed and matched to prints filed elsewhere in the collection, or gradually made accessible by printing or scanning if they do not already have prints. Also in this box are positive glass plate images of the Nilwood, Ill. wreck of 1910.
- B5-231 One box of 35mm color transparencies of various GM&O subjects from several member photographers of the Society, with subjects including many views of depots and other structures.
- ²⁹
~~B5-231~~ An additional box of small-format black-and-white prints of various subjects, including steam and diesel trains, locomotives, cars and other scenes along the GM&O. These images appear to be related to the negatives in this collection, or to be smaller duplicate copy prints of prints found in other files in the collection in larger formats. They will be further analyzed for content and description.
