INTRODUCTION

The St. Louis Mercantile Library

The St. Louis Mercantile Library was founded in 1846 and chartered by the State of Missouri the same year. The St. Louis Mercantile Library is the oldest general library in continuous existence west of the Mississippi River. Established by civic leaders and philanthropists wishing the citizens of frontier St. Louis to have a fine library even in the city's earliest days, the Mercantile, as it has now been known by generations of Missourians, exists today as a vibrant, active community asset, celebrating its heritage while making great collections accessible to new scholars.

The special collections of the library consist of over 400 individual collections with archival materials numbering in the millions, including over 100 historic newspaper titles, presidential letters, early travel diaries and civil war era letters, fur trade records and the newspaper and printing morgue of the St. Louis Globe Democrat. Archival materials in the Special Collections do not circulate, but may be used by researchers at the library during reading room hours.

Researchers may arrange for copies of documents and photographs from the staff of the Mercantile Library for a fee, according to the St. Louis Mercantile Library's Image and Price List. The St. Louis Mercantile Library Association owns the publication rights to the unique materials in the Special Collections.

Any materials from this collection used or quoted for publication should be credited as follows:

THE WILLIAM DOUTHIT URBAN LEAGUE COLLECTION

The William Douthit Urban League Collection from the St. Louis Mercantile Library Special Collections contains business papers, photographs, correspondence, newspaper clippings, magazine, government reports, pamphlets, and fliers from the programs, research, and daily operations of the Urban League of St. Louis and Oklahoma City during Douthit's tenure as Secretary of the Industrial Relations Department of the St. Louis Urban League (1954-1959), Executive Director the Oklahoma City Urban League (1959-1962), and the Executive Director of the St. Louis Urban League (1964-1969). Materials related to the organization at a national scale, as well as materials from other cities, have been included in their own series.

The collection consists of 12 Hollinger boxes and is subdivided into the following series:

Series 1: St. Louis Urban League Materials

Series 2: Oklahoma City Urban League Materials

Series 3: National Urban League Materials

Series 4: Personal Materials of William Douthit

Most materials are described at the folder level. Some materials are described at the item level. Within this finding aid, materials in the collection are listed according to their folder title and folder number. The folder number consists of three or four numbers, such as 2-3-29, which represents: (series #) – (box #) – (folder #). The William Douthit Urban League Collection is designated as M-362 (Mercantile Special Collection #362).

HISTORY OF WILLIAM DOUTHIT, ST. LOUIS & OKLAHOMA CITY URBAN LEAGUES, AND THE NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE

The National Urban League was founded in New York City in the early 20th century as the National League on Urban Conditions Among Negroes when three organizations merged: the Committee on Urban Conditions Among Negroes, the Committee for the Improvement of Industrial Conditions Among Negroes, and the National League for the Protection of Colored Women. These organizations all began as grassroots efforts to improve social and economic conditions for the recent migration of African-American to the northern United States following the 1896 Plessy v. Ferguson movement in the U.S. Supreme Court.

The organization adopted its current name in 1920 and began to focus its efforts on improving educational, recreational, housing, health, and career opportunities for disadvantaged communities. While the organization focused primarily on methods for improving the conditions of African-American communities, the stated purpose of the League has always been interracial in nature, dating back the founding interracial board of the League's first iteration. The N.U.L. is perhaps best known for its participation in the 1963 March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom, where Martin Luther King Jr. delivered his iconic "I Have a Dream" speech.

The Urban Leagues of St. Louis and Oklahoma City were founded in 1918 and 1946, respectively. Both have played significant roles in the desegregation of their cities, as well as leading neighborhood improvement initiatives and career training for the African-American communities.

William Douthit, originally from Pennsylvania, earned a B.A. in Economics from Dillard University of Louisiana and a master's degree in Industrial Relations from the University Of Illinois Institute Of Labor and Industrial Relations. Douthit spent much of his professional career with the Urban League, serving as Secretary of the Industrial Relations Department of the St. Louis Urban League (1954-1959), Executive Director the Oklahoma City Urban League (1959-1962), and the Executive Director of the St. Louis Urban League (1964-1969).

SCOPE AND CONTENTS NOTE

The materials in this collection come from William Douthit's professional tenure with the Urban League of St. Louis and Oklahoma City in various roles, including Executive Director and Secretary of Industrial Relations. The papers in the collection reflect this, with a pronounced focus on employment statistics, reports on industry in the cities, and plans for career training and neighborhood improvement initiatives. Also reflected are collaborations between the Urban Leagues and other local organizations, including the NAACP, Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc., local churches, and social organizations. Materials are included from the National Urban League as well as the Urban Leagues of other major U.S. cities, usually within the context of research, planning, and communications between the St. Louis and Oklahoma City chapters with the organization on a national scale.
