UMSL researchers - bring your expertise, ideas, and innovative drive to explore new solutions to address the critical needs facing supply chains.

Experts from across disciplines will brainstorm solutions to pressing issues within supply chains that are affecting businesses and people around the world.

Teams will be formed to further explore the best ideas. With the assistance and resources of the Office of Research, new technologies, processes, and/or services will be developed and potentially brought to market.

GOAL: Innovative research and inventions that help solve important problems facing society.

Attendance is limited to keep the discussions focused, so make sure to Register Today !
