Students handicapped for day

Members of the UMSL community maneuvered around campus in wheel chair and on crutches, April 17.

Thirty-eight students, faculty and staff members, participated in Handicap Awareness Day, sponsored by the Office of Student Affairs and the Disabled Students Union. The sponsors gave anyone willing, the use of crutches or wheelchairs for the day. In return, the participants gave a written analysis of how it felt to be handicapped on the UMSL campus.

"I didn't change when I was in the wheelchair, people changed toward me," said Mehrdad Kamaliazad, an UMSL student. "It looked like everyone felt sorry for me which in turn made me feel worse."

Pat Connaughton, another UMSL student stated, "The doors were very hard to get through unless you had help." Most of the participants, in fact, found that getting through doors was the hardest obstacle. Other problems cited were getting on

Fraternities and sororities to compete in Greek Week

The "biggest week of the year" for the fraternities and sororities will be April 22-28, according to Don Donley, president of Inter-Greek Council.

The week is predicted to draw between 300 and 350 participants. The Greek Week coincides with UMSL's 15th anniversary celebration (see page 6).

The week's activities include a various assortment of contests and games. The public is invited to attend all events, Donley said.

The week will start with the annual Greek Sing and Talent Show at 8pm in the J.C. Penney Auditorium, April 22. The four social fraternities and the three the elevators, using the rest-rooms, and going up hills.

Harry Moore, director of the Handicap Awareness Day activities said, "The whole purpose behind this day was to raise the consciousness of the UMSL community with regard to any structural barriers or any other hinderences that may effect handicapped and non-handicapped students, faculty and staff in their performance at UMSL." Moore said that the effort to raise the consciousness of the UMSL community would continue.

Wrestlers receive two-year reprieve

UMSL wrestlers will have a team to return to next year, UMSL Chancellor Arnold B. Grobman announced this week.

The intercollegiate wrestling program will be continued on a probationary basis for at least two years. The decision to continue the program was announced April 18 and came after

The activities which included guest speakers and discussions, was a success, according to Moore. "Maybe not so much in numbers but in sincerity," he said. "The people were very active and sincere."

The guest speakers included Lois Vanderwaardt, UMSL's Affirmative Action officer, who spoke on the impact of legislation for the handicapped. Otis Pitts, for the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation spoke on the Role of Vocational Rehab-

UMSL Athletic Committee had reviewed the wrestling program for several weeks. The Committee initially recommended discontinuing the program, citing a lack of interest.

In announcing the intent to continue the wrestling program, Grobman said, "In the spring of 1981, the Athletic Committee will again review the wrestling program using the NCAA Division II regulations as guidelines. If the Committee finds at that time that our program has not been minimally meeting those guidelines during the prior two-year period, I will accept a recommendation that the sport be dropped."

NCAA regulations state an institution must fill a minimum of seven weight classes in a minimum of 12 meets within one season to be recognized. UMSL had been forced to forfeit decisions at several weight classes at various meets due to a lack of wrestlers.

"I think it's great," wrestler Joe Stevens said. "I just want to get the chance to wrestle."

UMSL finished the 1978-79 season with a dual meet record of 4-6.

Students protest 'rights violation'

Jim Wallace

The Student Association for Christian Alternatives (SACA), a university recognized organization is petitioning against a university policy that it says is threatening their civil liberties.

The rule prohibits the use of rooms by student organizations that would teach or proselytize religious dogma and beliefs. The petition states that the undersigned object to the Board of Curator policy regarding censorship of the Bible is an infringement on students' rights.

Bob Levin, director of SACA, said that so far the petitioning is going well. "We have had an overwhelming response," he said. "So far we have gotten around 1,700 signatures from both students and faculty." The petitioning is being done in the lobby of the University Center and the snack bar.

Barbara Toulster, reservationist at the University Center, said that the group's use of the University Center lobby was an approved demonstration but that the use of the snack bar was unauthorized. She explained that as long as the group was not holding a religious meeting they could get room and that the petition drive was not illegal.

The administration, said Levin, maintains that the issue is one of "separation of church and state." But, he continued, "this is just a smokescreen." Levin said that the university fears that by granting his group a room, it would be considered supportive of religious organizations teaching on campus. He said that such thinking on its part was unnecessary because, "the UMSL Student Handbook states that the university cannot be identified as supportive of any position held by a recognized group."

Rick Blanton, director of Student Activities, said that the problem was one of legality. "The position has been recently reaffirmed by the Supreme Court that there can be no religious teaching on campus."

Blanton said, "What the group is doing is probably within the guidelines of proper procedures." He sees the group's ultimate goal is to change Board of Curator policy.

He said that the key words in question were "teaching and proselytizing," and that, "these terms need to be defined." He continued to say, "I won't be upset if this rule is deemed to be needing revision. As regarding student activities, it might even work out to my benefit."

The petition is not the only form of communication used by SACA. The group hands out a free, semi-annual newsletter entitled The Daystar Chronicle. Blanton sees no problem in this form of activity "as long as the literature is non-religious and informative in nature" which he considered the Chronicle to be. No action has been taken by the administration against the group because, Blanton stated, "no complaints have been filed and they have a right to their own opinion."

Gephardt to speak here

U.S. Representative Richard A. Gephardt will meet informally with students, faculty and staff to discuss his recent trip to the Soviet Union from 10:30am until noon Monday, April 23, in room 126 of the J.C. Penney Building.

The discussion will be moderated by Edwin Fedder, director of the UMSL Center for International Studies. Gephardt will also address a metropolitan forum on "Taxpayers in Revolt" that same day on campus. His address is at noon in the J.C. Penney Auditorium. His speech is free and open to the public, as is the morning session.

Haas to present free public concert, May 7

Karl Haas, the host of "Adventures in Good Music," will present a free public concert, May 7 at 8pm in the J.C. Penney Auditorium.

Haas, a native of Germany, came to the U.S. in 1936 to teach and to study with Artur Schnabel. He founded the Chamber Music Society of Detroit and was chairman of Michigan's Council for the Arts under four governors, as well as U.S. delegate to UNESCO's International Music Council. He is a consultant to the Ford Foundation and director of fine arts at WJR, one of America's leading broadcasting centers.

For 20 years, Haas has been the author and host of the daily, hour-long radio show, "Adventures in Good Music" broadcast by more than 480 stations all over the world.

Slide show to be held

The Center for International Studies will show a slide-tape on the semester study abroad program available through Denmark's International Student Committee (DIS), in 331 SSB from 1:30pm-3pm April 25. In addition, Becky Flotron, and UMSL political science major who studied in Copenhagen during the Fall, 1978 semester will be on hand to talk about some of her experiences and answer questions about the program.

Field study not cancelled

Anthropology 329, "Field Study in Archeology," has not been cancelled for the summer session, as was previously reported in university publications. The six-hour course will be offered for six weeks, beginning May 14. The course provides students with the opportunity to participate in ongoing archeological excavations and analysis. For more information, call Van A. Reidhead at 453-5284.

UMSL Orchestra gives free concert, April 23

The UMSL Orchestra, under the direction of Paul A. Tarabek, assistant professor of music, will present a concert April 23, at 8pm in the Mark Twain Building.

The first half of the concert will consist of the overture to the "Barber of Seville," by Rossini, and the "Carmen Suite, No. 2," by Bizet. After intermission, the orchestra will perform Schubert's Symphony No. 5.

The concert is free and is open to the public.

Tutorial forms available

Applications for a position as a tutor for the Summer 1979 and Fall 1979 semesters are now available in the Center for Academic Development through the tutorial lab. These positions are available to UMSL students who have an accumulative grade point average of 3.00 and an "A" or "B" in the subject areas for which they would like to tutor.

All applications will be screened by the coordinator of the tutorial lab and certified by the academic department(s). The present rate of pay for tutors is $3.41 per hour, however, tutors are allowed to determine their own schedules each week.

For applications and further information, contact Ivory Travis in 502 Tower or contact the tutorial lab at 453-5650.

Six Flags discounts here

Discount tickets for Six Flags Over Mid-America amusement park are currently on sale at the UMSL information desk. Regular discount tickets, which may be used anytime before June 30, are sold for $7.06, including tax. Tickets at the gate will be $8.99.

Discount tickets are also available for "Senior Night" on May 18. On this night only, the park will remain open from 7pm-5am and special entertainment will be featured. Advance tickets are $8.36 including tax; tickets at the gate will be $12.

The information desk is open 7am-8:45pm, Monday through Friday. For further details, call the desk at 453-5148.

Grobman to give annual report

UMSL Chancellor Arnold B. Grobman will present his "Annual Report to the Community," April 25, at the Cervantes Convention Center. A part of the University's fifteenth anniversary celebration, the event is co-sponsored by the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association.

Grobman will discuss the relationship of the recently-completed long-range plan for the university to the mission of the campus and to the unique character of UMSL's student body.

The report will be preceded by a noon-hour luncheon, to which the public is invited. Reservations, which must be made by April 23, may be arranged by calling 453-5411. Cost of the luncheon is $7.50 per person.

Levin said that SACA had been present on the university off and on since the early 1970's and consists of "a handful of students—nondenominational—who believe in the Bible." Levin went to UMSL from 1971-73 when he transferred to a Bible College where he received a Bachelor's degree in Biblical Education. He is presently enrolled in UMSL once more, working on a B.A. in history.

Levin said that all his group wanted was "to communicate views of why we believe, as any other student group could present their views, and try to persuade people that that's the way to go."

"We would like to communicate," he continued, "that Christianity is true objective history and prophetically sound. The realization of the re-birth of Israel and the Mid-East crisis show objective evidence that the Bible is a divinely inspired book."

He said that the University offers two courses on The Old Testament viewed as literature. He maintained that the interpretations made in these courses would be of a humanistic, scientific viewpoint. Levin objects to having professors present "philosophical and humanistic world views. For them to say, 'You cannot discuss a different world view' is wrong."

Levin said that teaching of any kind was using forms of interpretation and he cannot see why he was being denied a room for wanting to do, basically, the same thing as any professor would do.

SACA plans to present the petition to the Chancellor, the University Board of Curators, the Missouri State Legislature and the Attorney General. "In any case, I guess the courts will have to decide," Blanton concluded.

ilitation in Higher Education with handicapped and non-handicapped individuals.

The effects of the environment on handicapped and non-handicapped students were discussed by Debbie Phillips, for the Mayor's Office on Disabilities. Kathaleen Haywood, from the UMSL behavioral studies department spoke on physical education and recreational needs of the handicapped student at UMSL.

A pannel discussion on the "Employment Opportunities and Disadvantages for the Handicapped Individual" was staffed by Steve Bedart, from the Missouri Division of Employment Security, Rosemary Bruno, of the UMSL Career Planning and Placement Office, and Wyndel Hill, UMSL's personel director.

Two vehicles designed to accommodate the handicapped were displayed on the patio area outside the University Center.

There's more to flying than just flying. Ask any Naval Flight Officer.

The Naval Flight Officer is a vitally important part of the Navy flight team. Although the pilot flies the plane, the Naval Flight Officer is the man who takes over when it's time to call the shots.

At his disposal is a multimillion dollar package of technology. Equipment that assists him in navigation. Helps him monitor electronic countermeasures. And enables him to perform such complex tactical functions as tracking and guidance.

Not many men can measure up to responsibilities like this. Or the training it takes to perfect the skills and techniques required.

That's why you have to be a college man to even get started. And you have to prove yourself, again and again, every step of the way. Until you've stretched your mind and your capacities to the limit.

But few accomplishments in life are more worthwhile than winning the wings of a Naval Flight Officer. And the respect and responsibility that goes with it.

UMSL Week promises fun, entertainment, involvement

A typical complaint of UMSL students is the lack of social atmosphere and absence of extra-curricular activity taking place on the UMSL campus. April 21 and 22 will kick off a week of activity to celebrate UMSL's 15 year anniversary. During UMSL week UMSL will host various forms of entertainment, beginning with a carnival held this Saturday and Sunday. During the carnival, several concerts have been scheduled as well. UMSL's 15th anniversary celebration promises to be entertaining and of interest to all members of the UMSL community.

The planners of the anniversary celebration have made all efforts to inform UMSL students, faculty, staff, and the public about the upcoming festivities. They have scheduled events tightly within the 9-day celebratory week. Events will be scheduled at varying times each day.

No students should have any difficulty attending at least some of the events scheduled.

However, the success of the 9-day celebration is severely threatened by those students who will be distracted by other activities occurring throughout the St. Louis metropolitan area simultaneously. For example Serendipity Weekend, (the carnival and concerts planned) are threatened by Washington University's annual weekend Thurtene Carnival also held this Saturday and Sunday.

UMSL week promises to be a festive occasion for all students, faculty, and staff to enjoy.

A large turnout at this event could perhaps spur future activity and involvement and cure the apathetic disease UMSL's been suffering from for the better part of its 15 years.

Complains about waste

Dear Editor:

I wrote last year about this time complaining about the excessive waste of materials at UMSL. These include paper especially. There were too many fliers, posters, memos and notices going around.

There are fewer now Good! There is still much room for improvement, though. Does the university have a conservation committee? Having a recycling station on campus could not only serve UMSL but the community around it.

I have noticed that people are at least being more conscientious about their use of materials. This also means our money. We are headed in the right direction and the Current has helped, but a strong editorial or commentary would help more. A little research into the subject about the amount of paper and materials as well as the costs involved would be interesting.

The publications office could save a lot of money this way. I must take this time also to say that the publications office does a great job of capturing the character of the UMSL community and notably the students. But why did they choose to put the back side of the woman on the fall course catalogue, or was that her best side? (I guess the cover picture is not very important, though).

Thank you for your time.

Says police valueless, inept, laughing stock

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the letter to the editor entitled "Irate About Police Behavior" in the April 12 issue of the Current. Likewise, I have read similar letters all year long about the antics of our campus' men and women who "serve and protect." Today, I decided to observe the UMSL police in action.

I sat in front of the J.C. Penney Building this afternoon and observed the UMSL police stop car after car after car for allegedly failing to come to a complete stop for the new stop signs between Penney and Woods Halls. I watched as two marked cars and one unmarked car arbitrarily stopped every driver they could nail for this alleged violation. The sad fact is, the majority of the vehicles stopped by the police had in fact come to a complete stop at the aforementioned sign. I will admit that I saw no citations issued, but I did see many warnings issued to innocent drivers. As I left campus late this afternoon, I made a point of coming to a full stop at this stop sign, but lo and behold I too was stopped by an UMSL policeman and warned that next time I had better come to a complete stop.

Many students, myself included, feel that the time has come for a sweeping change within the UMSL police department. Not only are the UMSL police inept, but they are also dangerous. I am tired of seeing and hearing about the UMSL police constantly abusing the power given them. It is true that our policemen are proficient at some areas. For example, they are superb at issuing tickets to students who commit the hideous crimes of backing into a parking spot in the parking garages or parking in an unassigned spot because their allocated area is covered with six inches of week-old snow. However, our campus' finest seem to be totally unable to be of any service at all when they are needed such as when a flasher appeared in various classroom buildings this winter, when a student was attacked in the gym last semester, when lockers are broken into in the gym locker rooms, when books are stolen from the cubby holes inside the book store, or when a stranded motorist is in need of assistance.

In short, I feel that the UMSL police are totally valueless, essentially incompetent, abusive of the power given them, and in general the laughing stock of the university; thus, major changes are in order.

Council thanks workers

Dear Editor:

I should like to thank all of the people who had worked in the recent Central Council/Student Government Elections. Some gave massively of their time, others a small fraction but the time and effort were needed.

I should specifically like to thank the following people: Genia Weinstein, Earl Swift, Jim Day, Jim Baker, Dean Akers, Rick Blanton and all the candidates who ran.

I would like to thank Ann Daugherty, who put up with our constant changes and reworking of the ballot. I also want to thank Sharon Duncan for working more hours on the polls than any other person involved.

To these and any one else who gave of their own time and effort, my own heart felt thanks and praise.

Yours,
Pat Connaughton, Chairman
UMSL Central Council

Concerts to enhance festival

The Serendipity Weekend Festival, taking place April 21-22, is one of several activities being held celebrating "UMSL Week." In addition to amusement rides and game booths, several concerts and musical events will be featured.

The Gateway City Band Festival, which is an annual event, will be held from 9am-4pm, April 21 and April 22, in the Mark Twain Building. The festival will feature high school bands from the St. Louis metropolitan area and bands outside of the St. Louis area.

The UMSL Greek Sing will kick off Greek Week April 21. Like the band festival, Greek Sing is an annual, traditional event. It will be held at 8pm, in the J.C. Penney Building.

A local bluegrass musical festival will be held April 22 from 1-6pm. Featured bands will be the Harmon Trio; Dub Crouch, Norman Ford and the Bluegrass Connection; The Cedar Hill Grass; and the Bluegrass Ramblers.

Admission is free for all Serendipity Weekend musical events. For more information, call 453-5641.

Dance company to give lecture

The Bill Evans Dance Company will give a lecture demonstration April 24, from 12:15-1:15 pm in the gym of the Mark Twain Multi-purpose Building.

The professional modern dance company, made up of six dancers, features the dancing and choreography of Bill Evans. All of the dancers are featured soloists and experienced teachers.

The Company is based in Seattle, where it rehearses, conducts home performance seasons and resident activities, and is developing a curriculum for the serious modern dance student at Dance Theatre Seattle, the official Company school.

The repertory reflects a philosophy of movement and dance concurred with human communication. Themes of dances are varied and assure a balanced and accessible program for audiences with both little or much exposure to modern dance. The repertory is composed of Evans' works and works by Anna Sokolow and Matt Mattox.

The appearance of the Bill

Evans Dance Company at UMSL is one of many events planned for the university's week-long fifteenth anniversary celebrations. For more information, call 453-5148.

University players to present Moliere play

The University Players will present Moliere's "School for Wives" April 20-22 at 8pm in the Benton Hall Theatre.

Linda Koenig, speech instructor, will serve as director of the play. Shee will be assisted by Kathleen Nelson, who will serve as assistant director and stage manager.

Cast members include Steve

Clark, Joel Bennet, Patti Norman, Patrick Lane, Cindy Kuhn, Ken Woods, Richard Green, Russ Monika, and Jerry Holdenreid.

Tickets are $1 with an UMSL ID and $2 for the general public, and may be purchased in advance at the Information Desk or at the door. For more information, call 453-5485.

Shew to guest at jazz festival

Bobby Shew, accomplished jazz artist, will be the guest critic and soloist for the Suburban Jazz Festival and the UMSL Jazz Ensemble concert, both to be held here April 24.

The festival involves 12 high school jazz bands and will be going on all day. Shew, after critiquing the bands, will conduct an improvisation clinic late in the afternoon.

The highlight of the evening will be the Jazz Ensemble concert featuring Shew as the guest soloist. Shew's solo will include an arrangement of "Evergreen" and an arrangement of "People." The Ensemble will play "Grenada Smoothie," "Intimacy of the Blues" and "Just Friends," among others.

Shew has played lead trumpet for Buddy Rich and Woody Herman. In addition to doing studio work on the west coast, he is currently playing trumpet for the Louie Belson Orchestra and lead and jazz trumpet for Lew Tabackia and Toshiko Akiyoshi.

The concert will be held at 8pm in the J.C. Penney Auditorium. Admission is $2 for faculty and students and $3 for the public. Tickets may be purchased at the door. For more information, call 453-5901.

Pictured above is the official seal of the University of Missouri at St. Louis. On the left is the flag of the State of Missouri signifying the University as part of the state educational system. On the right is the new flag of the City of St. Louis, signifying the university's basic service to the Greater St. Louis area.

The famous "columns" landmark of the University of Missouri at Columbia denotes the fact that the St. Louis campus, was in a sense, an offspring of the Columbia campus. At the bottom of the seal is the first administration classroom building of the St. Louis campus. The date 1839 is the year the university was founded; the date 1960 is the year the St. Louis campus was born. Concerned Dix looks for improved pitching

Jeff Kuchno

Jim Dix, UMSL's baseball coach, has been a bit worried of late. After all, when a team scores 13 runs in two different games and loses both of them, something is definitely wrong.

It seems now, however, that Dix's worries may be over. "Our pitching has been terrible this year until the last few games," he said. "They (the pitchers) didn't get to pitch much in the early going, but now that the weather is better, they're getting more opportunities to throw."

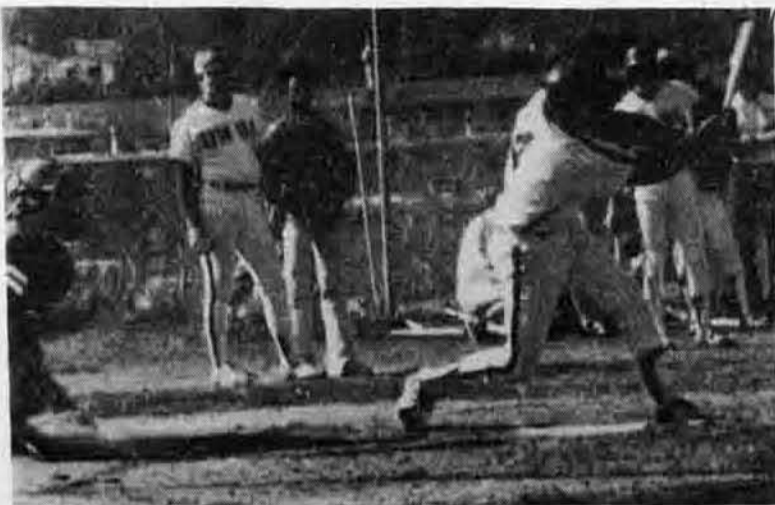

The Rivermen battled St. Louis University April 10, and edged the Billikens in a 'wild' game, 16-15. UMSL exploded for an early lead, but almost threw the game away when its pitcher had difficulty finding the strike zone.

"It was a windy day, and that caused a lot of the scoring," explained Dix. "Our pitching was just terrible."

Since that game, though, UMSL's hurlers have looked impressive.

On April 13, UMSL swept a doubleheader from Missouri Baptist, 9-3 and 10-3. Steve Ahlbrand and Steve Jones notched victories for UMSL.

The next day the pitching was even better. Sophomore Keith Kimball allowed only three hits in leading UMSL to a 5-2 victory over Southeast Missouri State in the first game of a twin bill.

In the nightcap, Lenny Klaus bettered Kimball's performance by blanking the Indians on only two hits as UMSL won, 4-0. Klaus' shutout was the first for UMSL's pitching staff this season.

Offensively, the Rivermen have set a torrid pace all season. They are hitting a booming .350 as a team and swiped 105 bases in only 19 games.

Two of the leading base bandits, Skip Mann (15), and Jim Lockett (16), have been the most prominent offensive leaders.

Mann, who was an honorable mention All-American last season, is currently batting .537 with 36 hits, 6 doubles, and 23 RBI, while Lockett is batting .507 with 6 doubles, 5 tripples and 29 RBI.

Other offensive leaders include left fielder Greg Ready (.392), OH Mike Stellern (.370, 18 RBI) and catcher Marty Flores (.320).

"Lockett and Mann have both been ripping the ball," said a delighted Dix. "I think they will both cool off a little bit, however, and Ready and Flores should get hot. Ready is a great hitter and he could explode any day."

RIVERMAN NOTES: Last Monday at UMSL, the Rivermen split a doubleheader with Greenville College, losing 6-5 and winning 8-3. Rick Tibbles picked

THE AIR FORCE.

Women start out on the same footing as men in Air Force ROTC. Women wear the same insignia and hold the same cadet positions in AFROTC, just as they do later on as Air Force officers.

And the same AFROTC scholarship can be yours as a woman. If you qualify, you can have your tuition, book costs and lab fees paid by the Air Force, and receive $100 a month for other expenses. It helps you to concentrate on your education. And that's important.

As an Air Force officer, you'll be expected to use your training and education, and be a leader managing people and complex systems. You'll be handed executive responsibility starting with your first job.

It's a great way to be equal, and a great way to serve your country. Check into the AFROTC program at your campus. Be sure to ask about AFROTC scholarships — you may be helping yourself earn an exciting new lifestyle.

UMSL's Bartow capitalizes on hard work

Jeff Kuchno

Only two days after being named UMSL's head basketball coach, Tom Bartow issued a warning:

"The players on our team next year will have to be tough and hard-nosed or they won't make it through practice," he said.

Suffice to say, Bartow is a firm believer in hard work, and it has been hard work that has enabled him to climb the coaching ladder.

excited about it sometime this summer when I'm water skiing, but for right now, I've been busy working on recruiting."

Bartow realizes how essential recruiting is to the success of his team. Everyone knows that the most successful teams are the ones who can attract the most talent. Bartow, however, is looking for something more than talent.

"I'm looking for a good athlete who is a hard worker," he said. "They must have quick-go up and get the ball," he said. "There are some excellent high school players in the St. Louis area who fit in that category."

"We're also looking at a guard who is a proven floor leader in high school," he said. "You win with good people and good athletes. If you don't have good people or good athletes, it will eventually catch up with you. I think the quality of players we have here now, though, is excellent."

Bartow has his work cut out for him, however. Awaiting the Rivermen on next season's slate are powerhouses like Arkansas, Wichita State, and Illinois.

"After I get recruiting done, I'll take a look at next year's opponents," said the native of Independence, Mo. "There may be some teams who will have more talent than we have, but no team will work harder than we will."

Although Bartow is 29 years old, he has 10 years of coaching experience behind him.

Bartow, who is about 5-feet8-inches tall, coached at West Platte and Moberly high schools, and Central Methodist College before arriving at UMSL as an assistant coach in 1976.

"I can remember a time at each school, when we won a game that we shouldn't have won, and so I let the players know how I felt," said Bartow.

"I could see them looking at each other and saying, hey, maybe this little runt knows what he's talking about."

"I can also remember players who were fair athletes, but by hard work and desire, became much better."

It's evident that Bartow has become a better coach as a result of his own hard work. He is a likeable coach, one who displays an excellent rapport with his players. He is also a coach who gives his best as long as his players do the same.

"I don't guarantee the players that we will win one single game," he says. "I'll guarantee them, however, that if they work hard then they'll become better players."

One thing is for sure. If hard work breeds success, then Coach Tom Bartow and the UMSL Rivermen cagers can look forward to a tremendously successful season next year.

Tom Bartow

'If we can get the recruits, then success will take care of itself'
Tom Bartow

Although he has made a prominent step forward in his coaching career, Bartow isn't as excited about getting the job as might be expected.

"I haven't had time to get excited about getting the job," he said. "I will probably get ness, jumping ability, and other characteristics like desire."

Looking at UMSL's roster, it would seem a necessity for Bartow to sign a few big men. "The forwards and centers we are recruiting are ones who can

The UMSL golf team posted its best showing of the spring last Monday as they grabbed second place honors in the UMSL Best Ball Classic, which was played at the nearby Normandie Golf Club.

The event was originally scheduled as a 15-team meet on March 26, but was postponed due to snow that weekend. Because of the conflict, only six schools could make it to the rescheduled tourney last week.

The team of Tim Gerhig and Derrick Dolenz fired a 4-under-par 67 over the 6,8000-yard layout to lead the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars to a first place finish. St. Louis University finished third.

"We're playing a lot better since the weather improved," said Riverman coach Andy Smith. "We're starting to play well as a team."

For UMSL, the twosome of Gary Esayian and John Hayes led the pack as they carded 69, good for fourth place honors overall. Joe Peterson and Michael Hartman matched the course with 72 and the team of Dave Manes and Clay Smith shot 76.

"We are really starting to look good. This week's practice was very intense. Everybody's playing competitively," Smith said after the tournament. "We've gone with a few lineup changes and it's helping. John Hayes is playing very good."

The Rivermen are in Joplin, Mo., today, competing in the two-day Crossroads of America Intercollegiate tournament. Tomorrow they will venture to Macomb, Ill. to play in the Bea Classic.

Men's tennis wins; run record to 3-6

The UMSL men's tennis team won two of three weekend matches, defeating Washington University 5-4 and Central Iowa 7-2 Friday and then losing to Principia Saturday, 5-4. The decisions brought UMSL's season record to 3-6.

Winners against Washington University were Gut Knapp at number two, John January at number three and Al Wolk at number four. In number one doubles, Steve Griffey teamed with January for a win and, at number three, Ken Helm and Ken Schroeder.

UMSL took on through the four singles and all three doubles against Central Iowa. Winners were Griffey, Knapp, January and Wolk at singles, respectively, and Griffey and January, Wolk and Knapp, and Schroeder and Mark Johnson.

Against Principia, Knapp won at number two singles, January at number three and Jim Drazen at number five. UMSL won number two doubles with January and Johnson.

up the win in the nightcap while Mark Craige lost in the opener. The split brought UMSL's record to 13-6.

UMSL plays SIU-Carbondale in a doubleheader today, and meets Western Illinois this weekend.

UMSL edges arch-rival SLU, 6-5

Jeff Kuchno

Whenever St. Louis University meets UMSL in any type of athletic event, a competitive game can be expected. Such was the case when the two schools met in a softball contest April 10 at St. Louis U.

In a game played in frigid, breezy conditions, UMSL edged the Lady Billikens, 6-5.

"It was a very good team effort," said UMSL head coach Tonja Adreon. "The weather was terrible, but we still played a good game."

Both teams exchanged runs in the early going and neither team took charge until the final frame.

With UMSL batting in the top of the seventh and the score 5-5, Nancy Cadenhead led off with a single to right-center. Pat Conley sacrificed Cadenhead top second, and Cathy Lewis followed suit by bunting Cadenhead over to third.

Patti Crowe, a freshman standout from Rosary, stepped to the plate and smacked a line drive down the third base line, which the third baseman had difficulty handling. The throw to first was not in time as Cadenhead dashed across home plate with the winning run.

The game was far from over, however.

St. Louis U. put its first two batters on in the bottom of the seventh, and then second baseman Sherry Cook saved the day for UMSL. Cook roamed behind second base to make a dazzling play for the first out and then snared a line drive for the second out. Pitcher Michelle Siemer retired the last batter and UMSL notched its seventh win of the season against four defeats.

The victory was significantly gratifying especially for Adreon.

"Everybody thinks SLU always has a better ball team than UMSL, but we showed them that isn't necessarily true."

Adreon would like to think the St. Louis U. game was a stepping stone to the state tournament.

"I think we are going to peak by the state tournament," she said. "Our hitting is coming around, our defense is superb, and our pitchers are looking really good. We are finally starting to gell as a team."

If it's sick to love a pen, then the world's going crazy.

People are fanatics when it comes to their Pilot Razor Point pens. They're reluctant to give them up. And when someone borrows one, what happens is inevitable.

First, they love the way it writes. Really smooth and extra-fine. They go wild over its clever metal collar that helps keep the point from going squish. Naturally they "forget" to give it back, although it's only 79¢.

This can be very embarrassing when they're caught in the act. Others have pocketed Pilot's Fineline pen. The one with the slightly less delicate stroke. It's only 69¢.

So if you borrow someone's Razor Point or Fineline pen you'd better be prepared to pay the consequences. But, for much less than a dollar, you'd be smart to buy your own.
