Council to debate ideas for new constitution

Drafts of new Central Council constitution's will be discussed Sunday at the student government's regular monthly meeting.

Ironically, just how the new constitution should be adapted is left unclear in the present constitution, which only provides for amendments to the present form. Major changes being suggested for a new constitution are to tighten up the vague areas now existing.

Other suggested changes include changing the Council's name, altering the number and constituency of elected representatives, and changing the committee structure of Council.

The meeting Sunday, March 23 at 2 pm in 217 Clark Hall, will be open to the public but, according to chairman Gary Esayian, will give preference to those that have a prepared statement.

One statement that has already been prepared is the draft Constitution of the University of Missouri-St. Louis Students' Association. The draft was authored by a group of Council and non-council members. Esayian, who was one of the members, said, "We wanted to get something down on paper; something that Council could start discussing."

Esayian does not feel the name change will be major concern of the new constitution. "But we took an informal survey of other colleges and we found this more in line. When you said Central Council, you always had to explain it."

Among the major changes that Esayian noted were the change in the quorum rule and the change to establish a new constitution.

"The new quorum rule (which allows proxies for all representatives to be used in a quorum) will make Council operate more efficiently, without having to worry as much about quorum," Esayian said.

Under the present constitution proxies do not count in the quorum count.

Apportionment of elected representatives is another item which would be changed. Under 'Membership of the Association, Section 3' students from different schools and colleges would be elected on separate ballots. Students would be elected from the graduate school, evening college and each of the undergraduate schools according to their respective percentages of total students.

"There has been a little problem with the breakdowns," Esayian said, "but I am sure they can be worked out."

Some students are looking for more changes in the constitution. Members of the newly-formed United Students Association have announced plans to submit a constitution that would change the committee structure, possibly eliminate the need for an executive committee, and provide for a different ratio of elected representatives to the total student body.

The USA proposal calls for the institution of just three standing committees—administrative, publicity, and evaluation and recommendation. The evaluation and recommendation committee would be the primary committee of Council and have the responsibility of looking into student concerns.

Powers that are presently given to the executive committee would be absorbed in the three committees, the proposals stated.

"Our proposal would make a real change in the Council format," according to USA member Matt Broerman. "The changes would help the students to get something out of Council."

CENTRAL COUNCIL - The student government, Central Council, is composed of elected and student organization-appointed representatives. It serves as an advising body to the chancellor, other administrators and several committees.

Representatives must be members of at least one of the council's standing committees, which handle administrative duties, student grievances, philanthropy, publicity and course evaluations.

The group conducts its general elections in April and those for new students in the fall. In lieu of conducting a successful campaign for office, students may obtain admission to the council by receiving appointments to seats from other recognized student organizations to which they belong.

Sunday's Council meeting will be the last regularly scheduled meeting for the 1979-80 Council members. New Council members will take part in the April 27 meeting.

The referendum if approved by Council will be held March 31 and April 1.

Senate elections begin

At presstime voting has begun for the 25 openings on the UMSL Senate. Twenty-nine students are competing for the spots in the two-day elections, which end today at 7 pm.

Students run for one-year terms and must have at least 12 credit hours and must not be on academic or disciplinary probation.

The Senate is responsible for recommending and implementing educational policy, particularly in the areas of academic and student affairs. The Senate reports its actions to all members of the university faculty and to appropriate officers of the student body.

Students, both members of the Senate and nonmembers, serve on such committees as Curriculum and Instruction, Admission and Student Aid, Library, Welfare and Grievances, Student Affairs, Student Publications, Athletics, Fiscal Resources and Long-Range Planning, Urban Affairs, and International Studies.

The Senate is the governing body of the campus and is composed of 75 faculty members and 25 students.

Polls will be open from 10 am-2 pm and from 5 pm-7 pm in SSB, University Center, and in the Marillac office building.

The 29 applicants for senate are:

James McNamara, Mark Huff, Rhonda Gasser, Elaine Echele, Linda Maass,

Bill Hebron, Murray Morgan, Michael Drain, Joe Grimaud, Sharon Cox,

Bernard Backer, Jonathan Burstyn, David Gamache, John Richmeyer, Diane Purk,

Chris Melton, Denise Osco, Cindy Maloney, Brad Bernstein, William James,

Donald Schaller, Steve Dioneda, Bob Turnure, Margie Hoffmann, Lloyd Bollinger, Terri F. Reilly, Karen Dudenhoeffer, Denver Radford, Kevin Kelly.

Deadlines for awards approach

Nominations for UMSL's annual Student Affairs Award and Student Life Award are now being accepted in 301 Woods Hall.

The Student Affairs Award will be presented by the Division of Student Affairs at a reception April 23, 1980, to honor those students who bettered UMSL student life through organizational membership, social activities, community involvement and volunteer efforts. The award is intended to recognize areas other than scholastic achievement, which is already covered through selection to Who's Who In American Universities and Colleges. Emphasis will be placed on those activities that benefit other students, faculty, and staff rather than just the nominee.

Nominations must be received in 301 Woods Hall by 12 noon Thursday, March 20, 1980.

In addition, the Division of Student Affairs will simultaneously present the Student Life Award to the administrator, faculty member, or supporting staff person who has made significant contributions to the quality of student life at UMSL. Because other awards recognize excellence in teaching and research, the Student Life Award will emphasize non-teaching endeavors such as: faculty advising (organizations, individuals, or majors); persons involved in the Student Affairs Division as planners or resource persons; persons who actively support student activities; persons who seriously consider student needs when formulating procedures and policies; and any person who "goes that extra mile" in thought and/or deed for improving student life at UMSL.

Deadline for nominations for the Student Life Award is 4:00 pm March 20, in 301 Woods Hall.

If you know of any person whom you feel is deserving of either of these honors, please complete a nomination form for them, specifying why she or he merits recognition. You might wish to obtain additional information from the nominee to augment your statement. A committee from the Student Affairs Staff will evaluate each nomination with regard to organizational membership, offices held, services to campus activities, groups or individuals, and contribution to other student services-related activities. In many instances, the nomination form is the sole basis of judgement by the selection committee so be as complete as possible when filling out the form.

Nomination forms are available at the Information Desk, the Office of Student Affairs, and the Office of Student Activities, and should be returned to the Office of Student Affairs, 301 Woods Hall, by their respective deadlines.

New constitutions need more

There is a sign post between J.C. Penney and Woods Hall. But no sign has been put on it yet. Hopefully the sign will explain the confusing left turn situation at the top of the hill, but for now the post is just a foundation for things to come.

In many ways the sign is similar to the drafts under consideration for a new Central Council constitution. There is the intention of changing the problems, but the sign just is not there.

The draft, which will come before Council Sunday makes some definite improvements in what has been proven to be a weak document. But still it stops just short of changing the real problem.

Council (or Assembly, as is proposed) needs to understand its role on this campus. Clear from the draft, is that no change is being made in the actual service to students. While an argument can be made that by increasing the efficiency of Council there will be a benefit for the students, what is needed is an actual change.

Council must focus itself to address issues of student concern, for that is its purpose.

On this campus little or no absolute power is given to the students, or faculty for that matter, to make changes in the way the campus functions. The power is in these groups' ability to recommend and be listened to.

Rarely in the past several years has Council even considered situations that effected the student body in general, much less developed and circulated resolutions on such topics.

If Council wants to start with a clean slate, as is hoped by proponents of a new constitution, they will need to make sure that the slate does not have the same markings on it that the present and past Councils have had. An important step in achieving this would be to set up a committee for the purpose of evaluating and recommending to the administration issues that effect students.

Council needs to put a sign on their post, a sign that will clearly mark the route for Councils of the future to travel.

Calls Senate bill dangerous to rights

Dear Editor,

Senator Danforth of Missouri is among the bi-partisan group of U.S. Senators who are sponsoring the dangerous Senate Bill 2216.

This bill:

1) repeals most of the Freedom of Information Act that deals with the CIA;

2) enacts a statute that makes it criminal (10 years imprisonment and/or a $50,000 fine) to publish any information which might reveal the identity of a CIA agent or source;

3) eliminates the requirement that all CIA covert operations be approved by the President and reported to "appropriate" committees.

Each section of the proposed bill has its flaws.

The Freedom of Information Act is crucial in maintaining the civil rights of U.S. citizens and averting foreign conflict. It was because of this Act that we found out about Operation Chaos (the CIA's widespread practice of spying on anti-Vietnam war activists in the U.S.), MKULTRA (the CIA's 20 year experimental mind control program), the Bay of Pigs, and the CIA bribe to King Hussein.

The second section of the bill limits the right of the press to report on government activities which is blatantly unconstitutional. Furthermore, the CIA and government officials have themselves often leaked information.

The last section of Senate Bill 2216 is the most worrisome. The nightmares of Hitler's Germany and our own "McCarthy Era" quickly come to mind. The CIA, like every agency of government, must be regulated. The American Civil Liberties Union has stated:

"At the time of rising international tensions, the President's call to make the CIA even more secret and less accountable is dangerous and shortsighted."

Senator Danforth must be informed that the people of Missouri are opposed to any weakening of the controls on the CIA.

Women's Festival begins next week

"Not For Women Only" is emphasized in the Second Annual Women's Festival. Last year was success and organizers are anticipating an even bigger turn out this festival due to a broader variety of addresses, workshops, concerts, and panels. This "Festival" is actually an informational event covering important issues for the future, according to the Stephanie Kreis, coordinator of Programming and Cultural events. All students, staff, and faculty are more than welcome to attend the free festival.

Kreis said that the activities have been scheduled for the afternoons in the J.C. Penney Building for the convenience of students.

Men may be interested in such activities as the workshop on How To Start And Manage Your Own Business, or even Personal Financial Management for Women, which according to Kreis is not solely aimed at a woman's financial wants and needs.

Kicking off the festival on Wednesday, March 26 at 8 p.m. in J.C. Penney Auditorium is Judy Chicago, one of America's leading women artists and an instrumental force in the contemporary art scene.

On Thursday, March 27 at 9:30 a.m. in room 126 J.C. Penney is a panel on choices and changes in women's lifestyles.

There will be two discussions of the future of women in the world of work. The first, an address by Jean Berg in the auditorium at 11 a.m. and a panel in room 126 of the J.C. Penney Building.

Also on Thursday, a workshop will be offered for women who have been out of work for some time and wish to return. Jean Berg will lead this group in room 126 J.C. Penney at 7 pm. The last workshop on Thursday is Progression of Jobs and Promotions for Women. It will be held in room 222 J.C. Penney at 7 p.m.

On Friday, March 28, at 9 a.m. in room 126 a panel meeting on the role and future of women in organized religion will bring together representatives from various religions.

The first workshop on Friday is Personal Financial Management for Women. It will be held in room 222 of the J.C. Penney Building.

Judy Chicago, one of America's leading women artists, will open the Second Annual UMSL Women's Festival Wednesday, March 26. Chicago, a highly instrumental force in the contemporary art scene, will discuss the evolution of her work leading up to the controversial piece 'Dinner Party,' at 8 pm in the J.C. Penney Auditorium.

Chicago has been instrumental in introducing female imagery into the art community and in developing a new environment for women artists. She pioneered feminist art education at California State University and at the California Institute of the Arts. Her autobiography, Through the Flower: My Struggles as a Woman Artist, placed feminist art in a new historical art perspective.

An address by Betty Lee, Editor of Proud Magazine will be at noon in the J.C. Penney Auditorium. Proud Magazine is a publication aimed at black women.

A panel featuring members of various local rape task forces will be presented in room 126. The panel is entitled, Future Strategies to End Violence Against Women.

A workshop of rape and rape prevention by Linda Cooper, a detective of the St. Louis County Police, will be at 3 p.m. in room 222 of the Penney Building.

Final activity on Friday is a concert featuring Jasmine, a local female duo at 8 p.m. in the Penney Auditorium. Tickets are $2.

On Saturday, March 29 there will be a workshop entitled How to Start and Manage Your Own Business. The workshop begins at 9 a.m.

KWMU celebrates more hours for jazz show

Dorothy Thompson

A new era for the KWMU Student Staff's Gateway Jazz program will begin March 22. The popularity of this innovative program has expanded consistently over the past six months, resulting in a time change; the program will be heard at 9 pm Saturdays instead of its former time, 12 midnight.

To celebrate this move, a free jazz concert is being held Saturday, March 22 in J. C. Penney Auditorium. The jazz concert, which is open to the public, will be broadcast live on Gateway Jazz. Jazz enthusiasts will have two choices: to enjoy the concert live, or to listen to it over KWMU-FM 91.

The concert, being sponsored by the Student Staff, KWMU-FM and the Programming Board, will feature Steve Schenkel and Kim Portnoy, a guitar and piano duet, as well as Ray Kennedy and Jazz St. Louis. The Schenkel-Portnoy duo was recorded previous for Gateway Jazz. Ray Kennedy and Jazz St. Louis is a six-piece group that focuses on contemporary jazz. Arrangements by artists such as Chick Corea, Herbie Hancock and Freddie Hubbard are among their repertoire.

Gateway Jazz was conceived in November of 1978 by Bill Bunkers and Mike Greco, who came to be co-producers of the program, as a special three- or four-hour program taping local musical groups. The time had come to expand Student Staff programming and this appeared to be a different and appealing format. In March of 1979, the concept for Gateway Jazz expanded to a weekly hour-long program. Since St. Louis has long been a center for traditional jazz, the staff was convinced that local enthusiast would support such a unique program and at the same time, realize a wider appreciation of the area's jazz performers.

The first step was to secure permission from Musician's Local 2-197. An initial refusal to waive fees for the recording of bands in a "live performance" setting did not discourage the Student Staff. But their continued efforts and determination paid off. The union's board of directors finally granted them full permission. Recent negotiations resulted in a renewal of this contract for a full year, and in addition, permission to repeat broadcasts.

Gateway Jazz premiered September 29, 1979 and featured Bobby Shew and the UMSL Jazz Ensemble. During the past six months the program has presented groups ranging in size from duos to big bands and featured musical styles from dixieland to avant garde jazz. A few of the artists highlighted on the program have been Singleton Palmer, Millenium, the Herb Drury Trio, Mugsy's Jazz Band and the John Mixon Quartet.

The jazz artists who have participated in Gateway Jazz are very complimentary in their remarks. In addition to the exposure it provides for them as artists, it is building a new and more youthful audience for jazz in St. Louis, as well as providing entertainment for current enthusiasts.

Under the direction of Bill Bunkers, now executive producer, Gateway Jazz has acquired a substantial following. It has helped to revitalize a St. Louis tradition and has brought a new awareness and enjoyment of jazz to fans of all ages. In looking toward the future, Bunkers recently said that he would like to see KWMU produce additional special events, similar to the highly successful free jazz concert presented in J. C. Penney Auditorium in mid-February. "There's no reason why we couldn't present the cream of St. Louis jazz artists together in a special concert and record it for the enjoyment of Gateway Jazz listeners at a later time," Bunkers said. "St. Louis has the talent, and we're ready to expand into new areas."

The total effort of all those involved in producing Gateway Jazz has made a strong impact on the metropolitan area of St. Louis. This program has provided listeners with sounds unique to St. Louis.

The Student Staff will present a free jazz concert this Saturday March 22 at 9 pm in J. C. Penney Auditorium; attend the free concert or tune in to KWMU-FM 91. Gateway Jazz, presenting the best in jazz by St. Louis musicians, can be heard every Saturday at 9 pm. This new time slot will hopefully make the program available to an even wider audience of jazz enthusiasts.

could promote the front as the "in" place for the chic, high-fashion crowd. Uniforms could then be redesigned by Halston or Yves St. Laurent utilizing a sleek, narrow lapel cut with contrasting blends of khaki and wool. This step would also be particularly demoralizing for the enemy, for they would be obviously embarrassed to fight hand-to-hand combat wearing

Guns would be replaced by water pistols, tanks by Toyotas (definitely not a Pinto), cannons by pea shooters, and bomber planes by hang gliders with bags of cow manure. Naturally new war strategies would have to be designed, and a set of guidelines with less destructive results would be instituted to determine who has won a war. Rather than measuring the number of human that there might have to be a war—after all, war has its benefits—it's the only time we have full employment, for example (can I help it that most of them are employed in the position of martyr??). I am actually annoyed by the total lack of comfort and convenience on the battlefield. As Zasu Pitts (or was it Dame May Whitty?) once said, "War is Hell," and I would venture a bold guess that few of us are eager to go to hell without a struggle.

There is hope on the horizon, however, and the answer is quite simple. The only manner in which war is going to become a fun place is by physically and materially altering the appalling conditions present on the modern battlefield. Most of us have generally despised war because of its devastating effect on body and spirit to those involved. This opinion could be quickly replaced by one of admiration and desire for war if the proper advertisements were implemented by the various armed services. Perhaps we only the poorly made garments of their native military. Many foreign soldiers would likely go AWOL to their nearest Bloomingdales or Saks Fifth Avenue in hopes of obtaining a military "designer original" with which to show up their enemy counterparts.

A second step would be to establish a code of militaristic union rules, which would regulate the number of hours per day during which combat, snipings, invasions, etc. might take place. The schedule may range from a single nine-to-five shift fighting day, or it may contain various shifts utilizing different portions of the day. Those soldiers unsatisfied with the shift with which they have been given may file a grievance form and transfer to another shift or unit.

The next step many would consider to be the most important. Because many men are accident-prone in a war and manage to somehow get hurt, the various weapons presently used would have to be replaced by less harmful substitutes.

lives lost as a basis for military standing, the losses of other material goods could be substituted: such as the number of pea shooters broken, the amount of manure dumped upon the battle ground (and consequently the number of expensive designer uniforms ruined), or the number of dented fenders and rusted bumpers of the Toyotas.

The last steps in improving the state of way would concern comfort and convenience. First of all, it seems that the most popular areas in which to have a battle are dirty, rock-strewn grounds with little beauty or character. Let's move the combat areas to national parks or maybe wildlife reserves (since no one can do damage with cow manure and a six-inch pea shooter). These scenic parks and majestic animal reserves will no doubt spur our military on to greater victory, to uphold the beauty and natural state of this spectacular land of ours.

Lunacy continues

And anyway, they have bathrooms. Although park restrooms leave much to be desired, they could—with the help of an official latrine squad—be sanitized to serve military personnel. Latrine breaks could be taken twice a day during combat hours to relieve the fighting men of whatever, thus freeing them from the formerly unsanitary conditions which make me sick to think about. These restrooms would also benefit those like me who wear contacts. The thought of sticking those pain-inducing pieces of plastic into one's eyes while men are hurling cow fertilizer at one's body does not particularly thrill me.

Finally, proper sleeping and recreational facilities would have to be built. Because the average soldier would not be engaged in combat a mere eight hours a day, the remainder must be spent in morale-boosting surroundings. Large high-rise apartment houses could be constructed with penthouse suites for the career officers. While these apartments need not be furnished in elegant Early Vietnam, they should reflect the mood and personality of the individual soldier. Recreational facilities should include one proscenium theatre, one concert hall, six bars, and one human sacrifice arena (after all that non-violent fighting, these soldiers will need an outlet).

These simple steps to making war a more pleasant place to be will have a tremendous effect on the size and quality of the volunteer army. Rich young preppies will be falling over their Porsches trying to get in line to enlist, as will the Jane Fondas and Vanessa Redgraves. For the first time in their lives, the Barbra Streisands and James Taylors may concentrate their efforts on those issues besides war which have such pressing importance—like Yachts for Cambodians or Penthouses for the Poor.

You know, now that I think about it, maybe this isn't such a good idea.

Women lose in regionals; Conley reaches 1,000 mark

Terri Moore

Even though UMSL's women's basketball team ended the regular season with a 13-18 record, it was nevertheless a promising campaign which culminated in postseason action.

The women were a much improved team over last year when they won only five games. Also, having the opportunity to show themselves against such strong competition in the region six tournament a few weeks ago should give a lot of confidence to the players who will be returning next season.

There was only one senior on the squad—Pat Conley—so coach Joe Sanchez has a solid foundation to build on for the future. Many of the players are freshmen and having a season's experience under their belts will help. The opportunity to play in this tournament gave them much needed experience of post-season play.

"It gave the freshmen and everyone else a chance to see some high caliber teams play," said assistant coach Mary Chappell. "It also meant a lot for Pat Conley to achieve 1,000 points in her career," which she did in the first game of the tournament, March 6.

UMSL's first round opponent in the AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) region six championship was Fort Hayes (Kansas), which was the Kansas state champion. UMSL played a strong game but lost by seven, 72-65.

Myra Bailey led the women in scoring with 26 points while Lori Smith added 12.

Pat Conley went into the game needing four points to become the first woman in UMSL basketball history to score 1,000 points. At 13:17 of the first half, she hit the mark by converting a free throw.

William Penn came from Iowa and took the regional championship by defeating the University of Nebraska-Omaha, 73-60. William Penn now moves on to the first round of the national playoffs at the University of Dayton.

Bartley tops among college prospects

Jeff Kuchno

Kate Hart, Lori Smith, Caroline Drain. These three women were the cream of last year's crop of women college basketball prospects in the St. Louis area.

It was a vintage year, indeed, for recruiting in this area and colleges such as St. Louis University, which signed Hart and Drain, and UMSL, which landed Smith, are reaping the rewards. These freshmen were among the leading scorers for their respective teams. All have unlimited potential.

So, the focus of attention now is on the current field of prospects in the St. Louis area. Is it as plentiful as a year ago? Who will replace Hart, Smith and Drain as the top blue-chippers?

The quality of prospects in the area this year doesn't seem to be quite up to par with that of a year ago, but there is one who might turn out to be the best area women cager ever. Her name is Roslyn Bartley.

Bartley, a 5-foot-9 forward from University City, can do it all. She led her team to a 26-4 season by averaging 33 points per game (tops in the state). She has tremendous quickness and leaping ability, and is the type of player coaches say "can't-miss."

Bartley is, without a doubt, the best in the area, but there are others who also have a future on the college level.

Included in that group are Connie Price of St. Charles, Michelle Vossen from Visitation and Sheri Hartenberger of Lutheran South.

Price is a 6-foot-3 center who averaged around 25 points per game and dominates the boards. When this awesome figure gets her hands on the ball down low, she is almost unbeatable.

Vossen is a 5-foot-7 guard with quickness and good floor sense, something college coaches look for in a point-guard. She led the Vivettes to a 25-8 season and the Missouri class 3A state championship with her passing wizardry.

Hartenberger is probably the top prospect from the south county area. She average 23 points a game for Lutheran South, which advanced to the Hancock regionals before bowing out.

Hartenberger is not the lone star in the south, though. Debbie Cooke, a 5-foot-7 forward, has been a one-woman scoring machine at Bayless the last few years. She averaged over 20 points per game for the Broncos and scored 61 points in two games at the Hancock regional.

Another talented prospect at the forward position is Ginny Grass of Notre Dame. Grass was a three-year starter for the Rebels and led this year's team to the Hancock regional final

Still, Chappell was pleased with UMSL's season. "Coach Sanchez used all the abilities of everybody," she said. "We put it all together when we had to and he found some hidden talent."

UMSL pulled off some surprises this year by beating Pittsburgh St. of Kansas after trailing by 17 and beating Baker University twice.

Chappell thinks the future is bright for UMSL's basketball team. "We've got some good people coming back," she said. "We've got something to build on." In the meantime, Sanchez is busy recruiting, and hopes to land a few big people.

Pitching carries softball squad

Terri Moore

Strong pitching performances led UMSL's softball team to a 3-1 record and a second place finish in the Central Oklahoma softball tournament.

UMSL was led by a strong pitching staff of Carol Hulbert, Kim Niccum, Sherry Cook, and Mary Dorsey.

Hulbert opened the season getting the victory in UMSL's 5-4 win over Wichita State, and Kim Niccum followed by beating Northeast Oklahoma State, 4-2. Second baseman Patti Crowe put UMSL on top with a leadoff homerun against Northeast Oklahoma.

The women won their third straight game beating Central University of Oklahoma, 4-2. Sherry Cook pitched a two hitter and struck out 12 enroute to her first victory of the season.

First baseman Corlette Schuler put UMSL on top 3-0 in the first inning with a bases loaded double. Central cut UMSL's lead to one, but in the top of the seventh, with two out, third-baseman Sandy Burkhardt doubled, leftfielder Lisa Studnicki followed with an in-field single, then stole second. Schuler singled to center to drive in an insurance run.

In the championship game, UMSL faced Central Michigan University. The game was scoreless until the top of the fifth, when Central Michigan loaded the bases with two out. The roof fell in on UMSL as second baseman Dotty McCormick tripled, and Central Michigan went on to win 9-0. Carol Hulbert took the loss, squaring her record at 1-1.

"We're excited about our performance," said coach Sanchez. The team had been practicing indoors, and coach Sanchez thought they might have been a little rusty, but felt they executed well.

"We're off to a good start," he added. "It should be an exciting softball season. The emotion and enthusiasm of the team is very strong."

team is very strong. That should carry us a long way this year."

Sherry Cook had a very strong tournament, playing exceptionally well at shortstop, and did a fine job pitching. Sanchez was impressed with the play of Sandy Burkhardt, Patti Crowe, catcher Cathy Lewis, and Lisa Studnicki.

The women open the regular season tonight at Cape Girardeau with a doubleheader against Southeast Missouri. They return home on Friday to play a doubleheader with Buena Vista college of Iowa at 3:00, and will close the weekend with a third double header against St. Ambrose of Iowa on Sunday at 1:00. All of UMSL's home games will be played on the field behind the Mark Twain building.

"We have a very strong schedule, and I feel we can play with anyone," said coach Sanchez. The women will play 42 games this year, including five tournaments. All non-tournament games will be doubleheaders.

Sanchez feels a tough schedule will benefit the team. He said the more a team plays, the better they will get. He definitely feels the team will be a contender for the state title, but added, "we're going to take it one game at a time."

Overall, Sanchez was very pleased with the team's play. He said, "I know it's early, but, I sense good things for the team."

Athlete of the week

Basketball

Pat Conley, a senior at UMSL, has been named UMSL athlete of the week. Conley scored four points, which doesn't seem like much, against Fort Hayes in the region six tournament, but in so doing, she became the first player in UMSL women's basketball history to reach 1,000 points in a career. She started for the cagers the last three years at forward.

AIAW rule confuses women athletes

Jeff Kuchno

It was about four months ago when UMSL's volleyball team was denied a bid to the AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) regionals after compiling an impressive 31-10 record during the regular season.

Only three months later, the UMSL women's basketball squad advanced to the region six tournament held here, March 6-8, after winning only 13 of its 31 regular season games.

This confused many, especially the volleyball players, who felt they should have advanced to regionals on the basis of their record. So, how does a team with a 13-18 record advance to post-season play while one with a 31-10 record doesn't? Believe it or not, there is an explanation.

The AIAW has a rule that allows the host school of any post-season tournament to automatically qualify. Thus, the women cagers qualified for the regional even though they had a record below .500.

"If the regionals would have been held at any other place, we would not have gone," said UMSL coach Joe Sanchez. "The athletic committee had to vote us in, too. If they had not approved it, we wouldn't have gone."

Still, the volleyball players felt somewhat indignant about the fact that they may have qualified as an at-large team had a bid been made. Judy Berres, women's athletic director, explained why one was not made.

"It costs $150 to participate and we just don't have the money to send everybody," she said. "If they had qualified (through state competition), though, we would have sent them. When a team qualifies, there is a commitment to send them."

A case in point is the women's swimming team. It was sent to regionals and even Patty Wilson went to nationals on the basis of her qualifying time in the 50-meter freestyle.

"We didn't have to pay the entrance fee for the basketball team because we hosted it," Berres added. "We would have liked to have sent the volleyball team, but we have to draw the line somewhere."

And, it just happened to be an unfortunate circumstance for the volleyball team, while an AIAW rule benefitted the women cagers. For a little while, anyway. The cagers lost in the first round to Fort Hays.

Intramural cage season ends nightly, goes on daily

Mike Hemen

The Intramural Basketball season has come to a close in both the Day Division and Evening Division. The Evening Division has already concluded its playoffs while the Day Division's are just beginning. Here is a summary of what happened in each league.

The Day Division is broken up into three separate leagues—leagues #1 and #2 for non-fraternity players and the Fraternity league. This is how the final standings looked:

League #1
Team	W L
Black Stars	4 0
Running Rebels	3 1
Steamers	2 2
Black Magic	1 3
"OH"	0 4

League #2
Team	W L
N3O	3 1
Bondage and Discipline	3 1
30 and Out	3 1
No names	0 4

Fraternity League
Team	W L
Tau Kappa Epsilon	3 1
Sigma Tau Gamma	2 2
Pi Kappa Alpha	2 2
Sigma Pi	0 4

Evening Division

Team	W L
Slam Dunks	5 0
River Rats	4 1
Papal Bulls	2 3
Celtics	2 3
Pi Kappa Alpha	0 5
Silver Bullet Band	1 4

The playoff format for the Day Division consists of four teams making the playoffs. Those teams are the league winners and the team with the best second place record. Well, because of the way the standings wound up in the Day Division, there was a problem choosing which four would be in the playoffs. The Black Stars won League #1 and Tau Kappa Epsilon won the Fraternity League, but in League #2 three teams tied for first place with 3-1 records, the same as the second place finishers in League #1, the Running Rebels.

What all this means is that the Black Stars and Tau Kappa Epsilon are assured of playoffs spots. The other two playoff spots will go to two of four teams—N3O, Bondage and Discipline, 30 and Out, and Running Rebels. The first three teams mentioned were the ones that tied for first in League #2.

To find out which teams will fill the final playoff spots, a "preliminary" playoff will be held. On Tuesday, March 18, Bondage and Discipline played the Running Rebels and N3O played 30 and Out. The two losers will be out of the playoffs. The two winners will then play. The loser of this game will play the Black Stars, the team with the best overall record, and the winner will play Tau Kappa Epsilon, the team with the second best record overall.

These games will be played on March 25, with the two winners advancing to the Championship game on March 27.

In the Evening Division, the top four teams in the six team league made the playoffs. In the first round games, the Slam Dunks played the Celtics and the River Rats were scheduled to play the Papal Bulls. The Slam Dunks beat the Celtics but the River Rats never showed up for their game, thus giving a forfeit win to the Papal Bulls.

In the championship game, the Slam Dunks beat the Papal Bulls, 68-32. The Slam Dunks finished with a 7-0 mark and the Papal Bulls finished with a 3-4 record.

Tennis squads swing into action

Women

Mike Hemen

The UMSL women's Tennis team is preparing to open its season under the guidance of first year coach Pam Steinmetz. This year's team will consist of eight players, although the rankings of the players haven't been determined yet. "I want to give everybody the motivation that if they improve they will be playing more," said Steinmetz.

Steinmetz said she hopes to use six singles players and three doubles combinations during each match. The players playing singles will be changing throughout the season because Steinmetz wants to go with players who are hot, instead of using the same six throughout the season. But the three doubles combinations will stick together.

One of them will be Janet Ossie and Jan Branch, a taden that played together last year. Another doubles combination will probably be freshmen Chris Seckle and senior Jane Crespi. Both have looked very impressive so far. The third combination has not been determined yet.

The rest of the team consists of freshman Lisa Geers, sophomores Linda Meyers and Mary Suchers, and senior Christel Maasen. All of them could wind up playing a big part of the team's success this year.

The Riverwomen will open the season on March 25 at St. Louis University. The schedule doesn't get any easier. It includes a home-and-away with Principia and the Billikens, along with matches against Arkansas State and Southern Illinois University-

Edwardsville.

Despite the schedule, Steinmetz is optimistic. "It's tough," she said of the schedule. But then she added, "The girls have improved since the fall. I think we will have a good season."

Men

The men's tennis team will be an experienced unit this year and is expected to be competitive. Six of the seven players on the team have had varsity experience, with the top two being juniors. Coach Randy Burkhart is hoping for tremendous improvement from last year's team.

The Rivermen will be led this year by juniors Guy Knapp and Al Wolk, the two captains. Both

A different kind of interview

There comes a time when each and every one of us feels the need to do something different. We get caught up in the daily routine of going to school, going to work and then, when we are completely exhausted, go home and relax before starting again the next day. Therefore, it is necessary for some to seek new challenges, or, borrowing a bit of "Star Trek" lingo, to boldly go where no man has ever gone before.

Such is the case of a sportswriter. Personally, my time in the past year and a half has been concentrated on school and the newspaper. Although I enjoy what I do, there comes a time for some kind of change.

So, I decided to take part in UMSL intramural basketball, which began about one month ago. Until then, lifting a pencil was about the only exercise I've had in college and I was happy to participate in intramurals. As a member of the Papal Bulls, I played in four games and averaged about six points. I was out on the court just for the sheer enjoyment of playing and whether we won or lost didn't make any difference.

After it was all over, though, I really went off on a limb. I thought about what it would be liked to be interviewed, I mean, I interview athletes every day and ask them questions, but I never give any answers. So, I thought I'd try interviewing myself and it went something like this:

Q: Jeff, what was it like playing intramural basketball?

A: Well, Jeff, it was fun at times, but I found out that I wasn't in very good shape. Some of our opponents were pretty tough, too.

Q: Like who?

A: Well, the soccer team had some pretty good basketball players. One night, I had to cover Dominic Barczewski. You know, the big All-American.

KUCHNO'S KORNER

Q: And how did you do against him?

A: Are you kidding? I toyed with the guy. I mean, I gave him more trouble than Don Ebert. Physically, Dom is tougher than I am, but I had him psyched out.

Q: How many points did you score that night?

A: I scored about 12.

Q: Was that your best game?

A: Yea, but it's ironic. I was playing for the Silver Bullet Band that game because they didn't have enough players and not the Papal Bulls. Remember, I was out there just to have a good time.

Q: Did you suffer any injuries?

A: Well, I twisted my ankle a few times and the blisters and sore muscles were almost unbearable, but it was all worth it. I had a good time.

Q: Sounds like you may have a future in athletics, Jeff. Are you thinking along those lines?

A: Yea, sorta.

Q: So, what are you going to do?

A: Well, I think I'll stick to sportswriting.

College prospects before losing to Rosati Kain, 73-43. Grass and teammate Gerl Weinstroer, a 6-foot senior center, were instrumental in Notre Dame's late season surge.

Another college prospect who has logged more time on prep courts than any other is DuBourg guard Joan Morrow. Morrow started at point-guard as a freshman in 1977 when the Cavaliers finished second in the state. One year later, Morrow led her team to a fourth place finish. DuBourg opponents are tired of being victimized by the skillful, 5-foot-5 Morrow and look forward to seeing her-gone from the lineup next year.

Other prospects with college potential included Laurie and Leslie Behm from Missouri class 4A runnerup McCluer North, Jackie Joyner of East St. Louis Lincoln, Rosary's Mary Benne, Barb Douherty of Mercy, and Nancy Lay from Parkway North.

Next week, we'll take a look at the prospects UMSL is after and the chances of signing them.

Toben eliminated

Rick Cappelli

The final curtain came down on Roger Toben's wrestling season at Omaha, Nebraska two weeks ago and the last act was a frustrating and personally disappointing one for the UMSL junior.

Toben qualified for the national tournament at 142 pounds and a shot at All-American honors. However, Toben was defeated in the first round of the competition and subsequently eliminated from the tournament when his conquerer in the opening match was disqualified in the second round of action.

It was a tough way to end a brilliant season for Toben, who had wrestled with and beaten the best all year long. He explained his opening round loss:

"I wasn't really mentally prepared for it. I fell behind on points early and it wasn't until the third period that I realized I could beat this guy. I then attempted to score a pin and ended up on my back." Toben was pinned with two seconds to go in the match.

"I wished I had it back," he said. "It was tough not getting a second chance. I watched the whole tournament all the way through and I know I could have been right in there. I don't have any doubts about my physical abilities. As I said before, I just didn't seem to have the proper frame of mind."

What about next year?

"We're definitely going to surprise some people. We have a lot of good recruits coming in. We made a lot of progress this year and with Coach Loughery at the helm I think this program will continue its way to excellence."

Women swimmers impress at regionals

Mary Dempster

It was the women swimmers' last fling of the season. They had already compiled an 8-2 record, and had placed fifth in state. Swimmer Patty Wilson had already qualified for nationals and every other swimmer had bettered her time considerably. Many of them had become triple winners every week. So what else could these women do to receive the recognition which they had already achieved?

Well, they placed fourth in regional competition on February 29th. Out of the eighteen teams which came, ten of them were from Division II.

Top scorer was Bitzie Hebron, who was the Division III champ in the 50 meter butterfly and the 100 fly. She just missed being a triple winner "by a touch" in the 200 fly, too.

Patty Wilson was the second highest scorer placing first in the 100 freestyle, second in the 50 free and sixth in the 200 free.

UMSL's other three regional swimmers all placed high in their events. Martha Casey took fourth in the 50 breaststroke, Karen Cernicek came in ninth place in the 50 free, and Paula Smith placed fifth in the 50 breast.

"We're satisfied," said Coach Maier. "we didn't even have a whole team, especially for the relay events." Of the five women who qualified, not one of them had really specialized in the backstroke. Julie Mank who did qualify for regionals was unable to attend because of her student teaching, and Michelle Drain, a very strong swimmer, had just missed the qualifying time in her event.

The five lone swimmers held their ground, though, all throughout this very difficult meet against competitors from all over the Midwest.

It was a very successful 'last fling' of the season for the UMSL women swimmers.

Tennis

have played since their freshman year. Wolk has been the team MVP in each of his two previous seasons on the varsity level. Knapp is the no. 1 ranked player on the team.

Other players expected to contribute are freshmen Mike Lehmkuhl, juniors Tim Buerk and Jim DeLuka, senior Ken Helm, a started from last year's team, and sophomore Craig Ellermann.

In the past, UMSL has played a competitive schedule and this year will be no different. The Rivermen opened their season with a 9-0 loss to Southeast Missouri State on March 1. After a three week layoff, the Rivermen will swim into action again this weekend when they play in a five team tournament down in Cape Girardeau.

Coach Burkhart expects St. Louis University and Murray State to be the toughest teams UMSL will face all year. After competing against Murray State this weekend, they still must play the Billikens in a home-and-away series.

Burkhart is expecting his team to rise to the occasion against the tough schedule. "I would say if we were four games over .500 I would be ecstatic," he said. "We have a good solid team. We should be over .500."

Brighter days are ahead for Rivermen cagers

Mike Hempen

Despite a 9-17 record, the UMSL basketball season was better than most people think. When all things are considered, the tough schedule played, the closeness of many of the losses, and the youth of many of the players, there might be a bright future for the Rivermen.

UMSL will be losing two players from this year's squad to graduation—guard Rick Kirby and forward Alan DeGeare. Kirby came to UMSL his junior year and had an outstanding two years for the Rivermen. This year he led the team in scoring with a 17.2 per game average and led the team in field goal percentage with a .571 mark, nearly breaking the record held by Hubert Hoosman of .574. But the Rivermen will be getting new players, too.

Two new players will be Eric Freeman and Tim Jones. Freeman is a 6-foot-9 forward who transferred from Southwestern Louisiana. He won't be eligible until the second semester. Jones is a 6-foot-4 guard who was red-shirted this year. He is a Drake transfer who three years ago was considered one of the top two high school players in the Memphis area.

Key returnees next year should be William Harris, the 6-foot-3 guard who finished second in scoring with a 16.4 average. While Kirby was injured, Harris picked up the slack by averaging 22 points per game. Coach Tom Bartow also expects big things from Harris. "I would hope he would become one of the best guards in the state," he said.

Other experienced players coming back next year include Dennis Benne, who led the team in rebounds with a 6.8 average; Gary Rucks, who finished third in scoring with a 10.3 average; and Tom Houston, a freshman who improved tremendously during his first year.

Out of the opposition the Rivermen played this year, five of the teams went to post season play. Wright State and Eastern Illinois each made the Division II playoffs, while Illinois and Murray State were in the NIT and Arkansas made the NCAA tournament.

Next year the schedule will be different. UMSL enters the MIAA which will lock them into 15 conference games. To make room for the conference games, some of the non-conference opponents had to be dropped. Arkansas, Illinois, and Murray State were dropped, but the Rivermen did manage to add St. Louis University to the schedule. The Billiken game will be played at the Checkerdome.

Coach Bartow was very pleased with the improvement he saw his team make during the season. "This team improved more from the first day of practice to the end of the season than any team I have ever coached," he said.

Wilson fails to place nationally

Mary Dempster

Patty Wilson did not place in nationals. But she did, however, come away with some recognition. Patty was the first UMSL participant in a national championship tournament in the AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women).

Wilson had qualified for the 50 meter freestyle but was eliminated in the preliminary at Meadville Pennsylvania on Friday.

"Psychologically, things didn't go too well," said Coach Don Maier. "We were to have flown into Erie but because of the weather we wound up in Pittsburgh, and then went in by bus. We missed almost an entire day and a chance for Patty to swim warmups.

"It's always good to send a swimmer to nationals, especially at UMSL because she is the first woman ever to go," Maier added. "It's an important step in building tradition and creating interest in the program. Patty was a little awestruck by the level of competition. There were a lot of good swimmers, especially from California."

But for Patty Wilson the season isn't really over. There is always next year.

Rivermen get off to rocky start...

UMSL compiled a 3-5 mark on its recent trip to New Mexico

New Mexico 15
UMSL 6

UMSL lost its season opener to New Mexico, 15-6. Keith Kimball started for the Rivermen and was knocked out early. He was relieved by Mark Craige in the fourth inning. The Lobos, who had already played more than a dozen games, scored 14 runs in the first three innings with half of them coming in the third. Designated hitter Tom Martin was two for three with two runs scored and shortstop Tim Kavanaugh was one for three with two RBI for the Rivermen. Kimball took the loss. Sam Sibala and Dan Rankin stole two bases apiece for the Rivermen. UMSL was scheduled to play a doubleheader against the Lobos on Tuesday but it was rained out.

New Mexico 8
UMSL 6

UMSL lost the first of a twin bill to New Mexico, 8-6. UMSL entered the top of the seventh trailing, 8-4, but its bid for a last inning rally came up two runs short. First baseman Rob White and outfielder Mike Stellern were the key offensive contributors for UMSL. White was two for four and Stellern was two for three with a home run, a triple and three RBI. The wind was blowing at 30 miles an hour, gusting to 40, and the inability of UMSL's outfielders to track down wind-blown fly balls proved to be very costly.

New Mexico 10
UMSL 9

UMSL lost the second game of a twinbill to New Mexico, 10-9. UMSL exploded for seven runs in the sixth inning to go ahead 9-8, but couldn't hold the lead as New Mexico scored twice in the seventh. Again, the wind was a factor as the Lobos smacked four home runs. Junior College transfers Bob Heitz and Wayne Clermont both went two for three for UMSL. Clermont drove in two runs.

New Mexico 11
UMSL 1

UMSL lost the first of two to New Mexico, 11-1. Steve Ahlbrand started for UMSL and exited in the fourth inning after giving up a majority of New Mexico's runs. The Lobos scored five runs in the second inning. The Rivermen were plagued by the double play as they hit into four. However, senior third baseman Steve Karrasch had a good day with the stick as he went two for three. Ahlbrand took the loss for UMSL.

New Mexico 7
UMSL 4

UMSL lost again to New Mexico, 7-4. Steve Jones started for UMSL and was victimized by

Key returnees

Steve Karrasch

Karrasch was nominated co-captain along with Keith Kimball. He posted a solid .297 batting average and turned steady defensive performances from his third base position last season. He doesn't have a lot of natural ability but he makes up for that with his great determination.

Mike Stellern

Stellern has outstanding speed, an outstanding arm and is a good defensive player. He has the most power of any player that's ever played at UMSL and is a definite pro prospect. He batted .359 last season and swiped 24 bases.

Sam Sibala

Sibala is a senior outfielder from Shawnee Mission, Kansas, who has excellent speed and defensive ability. His hitting improved last year and he is capable of having an outstanding year for the Rivermen.

the long ball. Designated hitter Keith Kimball was two for three and Wayne Clermont was one for three for UMSL. Clermont supplied the Rivermen with their lone run on his first four-bagger of the season.

UMSL 17
Colorado School 7

UMSL defeated Colorado School of Mines 18-7 for its first win of the season. The Rivermen had many hitting stars. Mike Stellern was two for four with 3 RBI, Wayne Clermont was two for two with two RBI, Steve Karrasch was three for three with two RBI and Rob White stole two bases.

The Rivermen scored four runs in the first and second innings and six in the fourth. All seven of Colorado's runs came

Newcomers bolster speedy Rivermen lineup

Rob White

White led Meramec Junior College in hitting and stolen bases last season. He is very fast getting down the line and is the only switch-hitter on the squad. He is a good defensive first baseman, but should contribute a lot to the offense, too.

John Prueitt

Prueitt comes to UMSL with impressive high school credentials and should make an immediate contribution behind the plate. He batted .462 his senior year at Pattonville and has a great attitude and desire to play.

Tim Kavanaugh

Kavanaugh, who has excellent range and an excellent arm, is an outstanding shortstop prospect for the Rivermen. Coach Dix says he is better than All-American Skip Mann was as a freshman. He also should develop into a very good hitter.

William Shanks

Shanks posted a 7-1 mark with a 1.37 ERA last year at Sumner High. He has a great fastball, breaking ball and change-up, and shows a lot of composure on the mound. He should develop into an excellent pro prospect.

Wayne Clermont

Clermont is a junior college transfer from Florissant Valley. He is very strong, is a good defensive player and possesses good speed. He should see plenty of action this season for the Rivermen.

...as pitchers falter in early games

Klaus and Kimball spearhead young corps of hurlers

Lenny Klaus

Klaus is a big, overpowering right-hander from Pattonville who will be counted on in UMSL's big games this season. He has a devastating fastball and breaking ball, which makes him a pro prospect. His biggest problem is lack of control.

Keith Kimball

Kimball was elected co-captain along with Steve Karrasch. He was UMSL's leading pitcher a season ago with a 6-2 record. His best pitches are a fastball curve and a changeup. He can also play first base, left field and designated hitter.

Steve Jones

Jones, a sophomore from Parkway West, has a very good arm and a lively fastball. When his control is right, he is as tough as anyone on the staff. He showed great potential while compiling a 4-1 record last season.

Steve Ahlbrand

Ahlbrand, a sophomore from Lutheran North, is the best fielding pitcher on the staff. He throws a good sinking fastball and is capable of being a big winner this season. He was 3-5 last season.

Mark Craige

Craige, a junior right-hander from Aquinas, will see plenty of action as a reliever. He relies on breaking ball and off-speed pitches, and hopes to improve his control. He was 4-3 last season.

UMSL 19

Colorado School 9

UMSL won the first game of a doubleheader from Colorado School of Mines, 19-9. Tom Martin was three for three, Wayne Clermont was four for five with four RBI, Keith Kimball and Steve Karrasch were three for five and freshman catcher John Pruiett hit his first homer of the season in UMSL's biggest scoring output.

The Rivermen scored five runs in the first, five in the fourth and five in the sixth innings. They ran wild on the bases, stealing eleven with freshman Tim Kavanaugh swiping three.

William Shanks, a highly-touted freshman hurler from Sumner High, was credited with his first collegiate win. UMSL hit two homeruns in the game. Pruiett's shot was a 3-run job, while Wayne Clermont hit an inside the park home run.

UMSL 9

Colorado School 2

UMSL ended its road trip with a 3-5 record and a three-game winning streak with a 9-2 win over Colorado School of Mines. UMSL scored three runs in the fourth inning and sixth in the fifty. Sam Sibala was three for four and Mark Hupp was one for three with a triple and three RBI for the Rivermen. Mike Stellern stole two bases as UMSL swiped a total of five in the game.

Hard-throwing right-hander Lenny Klaus pitched a complete game and struck out nine batters in a seven-inning game. It was his first victory of the year.

RIVERMEN NOTES: After its first eight games, UMSL is among the nation's leading teams in hitting with a batting average of better than .370. Wayne Clermont leads the team in hitting with a .588 average. He also leads in homers with two while Mike Stellern and John Pruiett have one each.

The Rivermen will open their regular season this afternoon here at UMSL with a contest against Illinois Institute of Technology. Game time is set for 1 pm. On Saturday, UMSL takes on the University of Illinois of the Big Ten in a doubleheader, which begins at 1 pm.

Other schools UMSL will play at home this season include Milliken University (April 7), McKendree College (April 10), Indiana State-Evansville (April 12-13), St. Louis University (April 14), Washington Univer-Evansville (May 10), Lewis University (May 11).

UMSL head coach Jim Dix enters his fifth year as coach of the Rivermen. In his first four years, Rivermen teams have compiled a record of 107 wins and 63 losses. The Rivermen have gone to NCAA post-season action in each of the four seasons, and in 1976-77, Dix was named the District Five Coach of the Year by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches.
