Too Much Litter

DEAN THREATENS TO CLOSE LOUNGE

Dean James Bugg recently said that he would have to close the lounge if the litter situation there did not improve.

David Zerrer, Student Association president, brought the problem before the Student Senate meeting on October 12. It was decided at that meeting that Zerrer was to write an open letter to the students, telling of the Dean's position, and authorizing senators to report students leaving trash on the tables to Dean Elckhoff for action by the Student Court.

Copies of the letter were placed on tables in the lounge on October 16.

As yet no summons have been issued, and no cases have been brought before the Student Court. There has been no apparent improvement in the litter situation in the lounge, and students may soon be faced with a shutdown of the lounge.

Dr. A. Mallory Accepts Position

Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, former Dean of the Night Division at Missouri University (St. Louis Campus), has accepted the position of President of Southwest Missouri State College. Dr. Mallory left for Springfield on Friday, November 6 after a great deal of consideration. "As you might expect," he said, "leaving the University is a very difficult thing to do."

The acting director of the Night Division is Mr. Donald Bowling, who was formerly Assistant to the Dean of Instructors at Northeast Missouri State Teacher's College.

The unseasonably warm days this week gave many students an excuse to tour the campus. Sophomores Mike Zerillo and Judy Hitheimer pause at a small bridge near the main building.

Dean Releases Parking Regulations; Students Asked to Obey Rules

Dr. James L. Bugg, Dean of Faculty, has posted the new parking and traffic regulations on the bulletin boards. Day and evening faculty and students are asked to comply with these regulations.

All students who wish to park a motor vehicle on campus must register the vehicle in the Dean's office within the first week of the semester. The registration sticker must be permanently affixed as instructed. Drivers failing to register a motor vehicle are subject to the following penalties: first offense, $5.00; second offense, $10.00; third or subsequent offenses, $10.00 and referral to the Student Affairs Committee.

Any student with a registered vehicle who finds it necessary to park an unregistered vehicle on campus may do so without penalty provided he first contact the Dean's office to receive a temporary permit.

Students may park only in areas designated "Student Parking." Students may not park their unregistered vehicles in the visitor parking places.

All persons must observe posted speed limits and parking regulations. Drivers failing to do so are subject to the following penalties: first offense, $2.00; second offense, $5.00; third or subsequent offense, $10.00 and referral to the Student Affairs Committee.

Visitors receiving traffic tickets are requested to return them to the Dean's office, with their name, address, and an explanation for the violation.

Due to be Finished in August

New Buildings Begin to Take Shape

The three buildings under construction in the southwest corner of the campus are scheduled for completion in August, 1965. Each building will house separate facilities. Office-space, laboratories, and classrooms will be provided.

According to Ernest Thacker, general superintendent of the Rollo Construction Co., the three structures will soon begin to look like buildings. The foundations of the three buildings have been completed. The second floor of the laboratory has been poured and soon the men will begin laying bricks. The men are currently working on the third floor of the office building, which at completion, will consist of five stories. The lab and classroom buildings will have four stories each.

Mr. Thacker is responsible for seeing that all subsidiary companies work together smoothly so that the jobs are completed on schedule. A large rise in construction throughout the city has produced a lack of skilled laborers, such as carpenters and ironwork-

New Organizations Started on Campus

Two new organizations are being formed on campus. They are the Spanish Club under the leadership of Dr. Crowley and a Drama Club, being sponsored by Miss Jenkins and Mr. Whaelen.

The Spanish Club which meets every two weeks, was granted a charter at the last Senate meeting on Monday, November 2. The Spanish Club has drawn up their constitution and elected officers who are Wilson Miller, president; Sandy Waalkes, vice president, and Sharon Wood, secretary. The purpose of this organization is to create an interest in Spanish and to learn more of Spanish culture through Spanish songs and dances. The next meeting will be on November 17. It will be a luncheon at a pancake house.

The Drama Club held its organizational meeting last week. They plan to request a charter at the next Senate meeting to be held on November 16. Their present plans, call for practice with dramatic readings and simple plays to enable the members to get used to one another.

Anyone interested in joining the drama club should make contact with Mr. Whealen or Miss Jenkins, and anyone interested in Spanish Club should get in touch with Dr. Crowley or one of the officers.

called the St. Louis Campus AFROTC agreement with Washington University was passed two weeks ago, allowing 35 Mizzou students to attend the Washington AFROTC program once more.

Although the newly reinstated AFROTC cadets are starting half way through the semester, the new legislation allows them to receive a full semester's credit for taking the air sciences course. The seven students enrolled before October 15, 1963, who were retained under the interpretation of the 1916 act, have been reassigned to the St. Louis Campus flight.

The old legislation was undesirable to both W.U. and the St. Louis Campus because the M.U. air science classes were on a purely temporary basis.

The St. Louis Campus cadets, while receiving full credit for the course, still have much to do. They must complete the full semester's work in the second term.

Barry Schneider, a lieutenant in the St. Louis Campus AFROTC, said that he has high expectations for the M.U. St. Louis Campus AFROTC. "We should," commented Schneider, "come from behind and win all honors in the AFROTC program. The boys are interested and capable. That is all it takes."

Kennedy Memorial March Scheduled

A torchlight memorial march will be held from the Washington University Quadrangle to Jefferson Memorial on November 22 in commemoration of the late president John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

The Young Democratic clubs of Missouri University, St. Louis University, and Washington University are sponsoring this march to give the people of the St. Louis area an opportunity to rededicate themselves to the principles for which the late president stood.

There will be invocations by major clergymen of the Catholic, Jewish, and Protestant communities. These will be followed by a short talk to be given by a speaker, who will be announced later.

The march will begin at approximately 6:45 p.m. from the Washington U. Quadrangle and will proceed down the front steps of the administration building to Lindell Blvd., and then on to the Jefferson Memorial.

Candles used for the march may be obtained at Washington University for 25 cents apiece. They will serve as symbols of the light of youth evinced by our late president.

A crowd of 10,000 is anticipated.

World's Waste Basket?

No Fairy Tale

The midwest is often referred to as the breadbasket of the nation—our cafeteria is rapidly becoming known as the wastebasket of the world. Dean Bugg has threatened to close the lounge if the condition of the littered cafeteria doesn't improve. Davze Zerrer brought the problem before the Student Senate.

The solution arrived at by the Senate came in the form of a sheet of pink paper, which blended in very well with the flamingo pink tables, but failed to clean up the lounge. This proclamation said that anyone leaving a table with trash on it would have his name and student number referred to Dean Eickhoff and would be subject to discipline before the Student Court. This rule was to be enforced by the senators, but to date, there have been no summons issued, and no cases brought before the Student Court. The lounge is still littered, and the Senate's solution has proved to be no solution at all. The ruling has failed to be effective because the senators have failed to enforce it.

It's about time the senators realized that when one accepts the privileges and status of office, one must also accept the corresponding duties and responsibilities that come with being a senator. Some of these duties might be distasteful, but as Harry Truman once said, "If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen."

Cadets Flying High Again

In September the Department of Air Science at Washington University dropped 35 M. U. cadets who were enrolled in the Air Force ROTC program there, because of an outdated ruling prohibiting students from one university from attending ROTC at another university. The MIZZOU NEWS ran an editorial at that time deploring this situation, and urging immediate action on the part of the university to make arrangements for the establishment of an ROTC detachment on this campus. Although a detachment has not as yet been formed here, those cadets who had been dropped, have since been reinstated in the program at Washington University.

Letters . . .

Dear Editor

As two former staff members of high school papers, we realize the long hours of thought and work required to publish a newspaper such as the Mizzou News.

Because of several derogatory remarks heard from students ignorant of your fine efforts we would like to give a brief picture of the work behind the finished product.

Planning an issue includes assigning stories, setting due dates for articles to be turned in and revised, and devising an interesting layout. When articles or copy have undergone revision they must be accurately typed according to the printer's specifications. Fingers are crossed so that the material fits in the original layout. If it doesn't, articles must be added or cut or a new layout is made.

Next comes the task of making headlines. While it may seem simple, this is often a time consuming job.

Finally the copy is sent to the printer. While waiting for the galley, which are sheets from the printer showing the size and type of articles as will appear in the issue, plans are in the making for the next issue. When the galley are returned, they are proof-read and made to fit the layout, again a process of adding, cutting and changing. Copy is sent to the printer for the final time and one more issue of the Mizzou News is ready for distribution.

We hope through this letter students will appreciate the great work being done by the Mizzou News staff.

Medieval Musical Held

On Wednesday, November 4th, the Evening Concert Series featured a concert of English Medieval and Renaissance Music. This was presented by the Collegium Musicum, composed of faculty and students of the University of Missouri at Columbia. The Collegium Musicum was organized in 1959 to give performances of pre-nineteenth century music. Its repertoire ranges from Gregorian Chant and songs and dances of the troubadours to 18th century cantatas and concerts.

Among those pieces which received the most favorable audience reactions, were "Estampe" from the Medieval Court songs of the 13th and 14th centuries. The "Estampe" was one of the most popular dance forms of this period. From the Court of Henry the 8th, "My Lady Carey's Dompe" was played by Wina Morgan on the harpsichord. A dompe is an elegy or lament, either vocal or instrumental. This early example of a keyboard dompe was probably written on the death of Lady Carey, the sister of Anne Boleyn. "Country Cries" from the Country Songs of the 16th century was played by the College Ensemble. This fantasy depicts sounds associated with life in the country during the Renaissance; the awakening of the household; care and feeding of the animals; an early morning hunt for the hare; the merrymaking after the harvest is in.

Of notable interest was the use of authentic reproductions of Renaissance and Baroque instruments -- recorders, shawm, krummhorn, cornetto, rankett, gambas, fanfare trumpet and harpsichord.

The next concert program will feature soprano Carolee Coombs on December 16th.

Subject: Cafeteria Maintenance

As you have seen, the cafeteria has been completely redecorated this year. The Administration and the Student Association have gone to a considerable expense to make the Student Lounge more comfortable and give it a more pleasant atmosphere. To this date, however, the cleanliness of the lounge has been, to say the least, unsatisfactory. There are two courses of action open at this time: 1) to close the lounge if immediate improvement does not come; 2) To initiate an effective system of continuing maintenance on an individual level.

The Senate has authorized me to put forth this plan to the students of this campus:

1) Anyone leaving a table is responsible for all the Trash left on that table, whether it was present when he sat down or not.

2) Each senator and each individual student will be the enforcing authority of this rule. Anyone who refuses to clean off the table which he left will have his name and/or student number turned into the Office of the Dean and will be referred to the Student Court.

3) This rule also applies to the malicious defacing and destruction of university property in the lounge.

As many of you know, the Dean has stated that he will close the cafeteria if the general appearance does not improve. The Student Association is taking the initiative here to prevent such action. The lounge belongs to you and, therefore, it is your responsibility to see that it is kept clean.

Adolescent Agony is Popular Topic; American Novelists See Problem

The Adolescent in the American Novel, 1920-1960. W. Tasker Witham, Frederick Ungar Publishers, 345 pp.

Adolescent agony is presently a popular topic of many American fiction writers. In his study, The Adolescent in the American Novel, 1920-1960, Dr. Witham examines the works of several distinguished American novelists.

The book shows that the adolescent in fiction has progressed a great deal. Tom Sawyer, Penrod and Sam and Corlis Archer are being superseded on the literary Question: Do you think Sino-Soviet relations will improve now that Khrushchev is out of the picture? Asked in the cafeteria.

Dave Pactor

(Freshman) "I feel that Brezhnev's and Kosygin's will try to improve the relations between the Soviet Union and Red China. However, Chou-en-lai and Mao-Tse-tung don't seem to want the friendship. The problem seems to be in the hands of the Red Chinese leaders."

Daisy Landholt

(Freshman) "I think they will improve. Khrushchev was a barrier to negotiations with Red China Premier Chou En-Lai. They seemed to have unreconcilably 'locked horns.' Russia can reason more independently with China now."

Sanford Rosenfeld (Freshman)

"I don't think that the split was as much an ideological one as it was nationalistic and territorial. There seems to be an intense national rivalry between the two countries and they have always had boundary disputes. I really think Khrushchev had little to do with the split. I think it is mainly a split between peoples rather than between leaders."

Ed Kottkamp

(Freshman) "I think they definitely will because Khrushchev was such an antagonizing element in the conflict with China. New Russian leaders can now make new overtures to China to settle their dispute. Premier Chou-En-lai laid the groundwork in the recent meeting in Moscow. Khrushchev's theories of Marxism conflicted with the Chinese Communists. I think this alienation of China was a big factor in Khrushchev's deposition. Moreover, I think he's getting old—he had talked of retirement before the changeover."

scene by Holden Caulfield (Catcher in the Rye), Caleb Trasks (East of Eden) and Mick Kellys (The Heart is a Lonely Hunter). In other words, the stereotype, giddy, haven't - a - trouble - in - the - world adolescent has virtually disappeared.

Dr. Witham says, "Besides finding a way of earning a living and exercising his talents, the youth approaching adulthood must find a meaning in life or else he must persuade himself that he can be satisfied with a meaningless existence." This 'search for identity', as it has been tritely called, is invariably a part of every serious adolescent novel and Dr. Witham believes it forms the pivot for the characters's conflicts in the story.

Dr. Witham recognizes adolescence as a crucial time in life as the table of contents fully indicates. The chapters and sections are divided according to problems and experience: puppy love, idyllic love, sex problems, rebellion against family, rebellion against family status, adjustment in school, witnessing death, and many more. As one can see, adolescence presents a cornucopia of inspiring, dramatic material for an author. Much of the success of the aforementioned novels, the author feels, is due to their lack of heavy symbolism. They are clear, straightforward stories.

Holden's appeal, the author says, lies in his scathing rejection of phoniness, his sincerity and desire to help others, and his yearning to be loved.

Caleb is the Good-Bad-Boy and all the more colorful for it because, as psychiatrists agree, we tend to admire those with a potential for being "bad" (violence quotient).

Mick Kelly is also a vivid character. She vainly dreams of escaping family poverty. We have all dreamed. Her experience is in the realm of her reader's she is familiar; the reader can empathize as well as sympathize with Mick and her predicament.

The works herein cited are only three of nearly six-hundred contained in the study. The book is a treasure for sociologists, parents, and teachers as well as students.

Democratic Party Captures Elections

President Lyndon Johnson received an almost 3 to 1 victory margin over Republican contender Barry Goldwater in the mock national election held here October 30.

In the election, sponsored jointly by the Student Association, the Young Democrats, and the Young Republicans, President Johnson received 371 votes to Goldwater's 133, leading the entire Democratic ticket to victory.

Vice presidential candidate, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey received 354 votes to William Miller's 128.

Meet the Prof: Dr. Roy G. Burns

by Jeanne Evans

Two small figurines, a Buddhist monk and a Japanese Shinto god, stand guard over the desk of Dr. Roy Gene Burns, Associate Professor of History.

They were gifts of students and represent his deep interest in the Far East.

Dr. Burns and his family spent the year 1962-63 in Japan while he taught for the Far Eastern Division of the University of Maryland and he has retained affection and respect for the country and its people.

No ordinary tourist, Dr. Burns chose the Far East as his major area of study and wrote his doctoral dissertation on U.S. Japanese relations during the period 1920-25.

Participates Actively

In addition, he made every effort to understand the people of Japan by active participation in their customs and ceremonies. He has a keen appreciation of the art and philosophy of the East and this feeling is evident when you discuss his experiences with him.

"The most beautiful land I have ever seen" is the way he describes Japan. This is not an unqualified judgment as he has visited most of the United States and various other foreign countries.

He found Mt. Fujiyama more beautiful and impressive than he had thought it would be. Perfectly symmetrical, the Japanese believe that it harbors a special spirit and refer to it as "Fuji-Sam", Honorable Fuji.

The surrounding beauty of the countryside has molded the Japanese attitude toward nature, according to Dr. Burns. Frequently, on trips around the countryside beautiful trees can be seen roped off with prayers written on small pieces of paper attached to them.

Finds People Appealing

The people of Japan appealed to Dr. Burns because of their courtesy, warmth, vitality and sense of values. He found the children particularly attractive with smooth skin, bright eyes and glowing health. Discipline problems seemed nonexistent. He attributes this to the great love lavished on the Japanese children and says, "Love seems to do the disciplining." Evidence of the special love for children can be noted everywhere in Japan. For example, the vast range of children's clothes available in the stores in Tokyo.

He found the Japanese homes neat, sparsely furnished and serene. Their ritualistic approach to eating and other social occasions he found pleasant and relaxing. Artistic in all things, from gardening to painting to food (wherein the "eye eats first") Dr. Burns did admit that some of the food looked better than it tasted. However, raw fish, the national delicacy, he found delicious.

Enjoys Fast Pace

Although you would expect Dr. Burns to miss some of the Oriental tranquility of Japan he seems to also enjoy the fast pace he maintains on campus. He is serving on several committees at Missouri University at St. Louis as well as additional committee work at Columbia and finds it all "very enjoyable because it is such an essential and integral part of our university."

In spite of a full schedule, Dr. Burns is always available to students and his office maintains a strict "Open Door Policy." His combined interest in both international understanding and student enrichment form the basis of his hopes for a student Study Abroad Program.

To stress the difficulty of explaining his appreciation of Japan, Dr. Burns quoted jazz musician Louis Armstrong's apt observation: "There's some people, if they don't know, you can't tell them!"

The Coaches Speak

An Interview with Dave Ellis

The first of a two part series viewing our athletic teams through the eyes of the coach.

Editor's Note: Mr. David Ellis, coach of the St. Louis Campus wrestling team, is a graduate of Normandy High School where he lettered in football, wrestling, and track. He then attended Southern Illinois University, on an athletic scholarship, where he was a member of the football and wrestling teams. After a year at SIU he transferred to Central Methodist and competed on the wrestling and football teams at that institution. After graduation he served as assistant wrestling coach at Missouri University at Columbia. He is now freshmen wrestling coach and assistant football mentor at Normandy Sr. High School.

Q. Mr. Ellis, how many boys tried out for the wrestling team?

A. In all, a little over twenty athletes are trying out for the squad. But there are still places on the team for interested wrestlers. We are fairly strong in the middle and upper weights, but in the lower weights we lack depth and experience.

Q. What teams will you wrestle this year?

A. So far we have scheduled two matches with Washington University and one each with the Kirkwood AAU, Ritenour Y, and Granite City AAU teams. We could have scheduled more matches this year, but because of our late start and the limited practice time available, I thought it advisable not to engage in a full schedule this year.

Q. What do you think the team's chances are this year?

A. Frankly, I don't know. The squad is highly cooperative, but due to limited practice time, condition is a major problem. For this reason I have scheduled most of our matches on a scrimmage basis, that is the match result will not go on the record of either, similar to a pre-season exhibition football game. But let me say that if the team does well I will schedule more matches on an official basis. If spirit and drive were the only factors in determining winners the team would be a champion. As it is I have very high hope for a good record this season.

Q. Do you have anything to say in conclusion, Mr. Ellis?

A. Wrestling is one of the fastest growing sports in the nation. The great popularity the sport enjoys in the Southwest is spreading across the United States. St. Louis Campus follows Cape Girardeau, Kirksville, Springfield, and other area schools in the organization of wrestling teams. I am now looking forward to a time when Missouri generally, and the St. Louis Campus, in particular, will be recognized as wrestling power.

Thank you Mr. Ellis. Next week Coach Bob Meyers of the basketball team speaks.

Suds Take Championship

The high-flying Suds clinched their intramural football title with a 16-6 victory over the Surfin' 69ers, November 11, on the rolling hills of the U. M. at St. L. football field. This victory ended an undefeated season in which the only team even to give the Suds a good scare was the defending-champion Nads. The 0-0 tie on October 22, was the only time when the swift running Suds backs were kept from scoring. The season ended with the Nads in second place and then the Surfin' 69ers, J-boys, Ryan's, and Team six following in that order.

The co-captains of the champion Suds Stan Paur and Pete Chara-mitaro, attributed their success to a desire to show everyone that they were the best. They have done that.
